HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Actions of the federal trade commission (FTC) and the question of its proper role in the future have been in the public eye recently. Media coverage of congressional and court actions and editorial views have kept the FTC in the news. In particular, attention has centered on the FTC's assumed jurisdiction over professionals and non-profit professional - organizations.

Medical profession is concerned that its position regarding the FTC has not been clearly understood by the public. The American medical association (AMA), in its long battle with the FTC, has not been asking for exemption from federal antitrust laws as implemented by the U.S. department of justice. The medical profession is asking that claims of improper conduct by professional groups be tried in courts with impartial judges rather than in administrative hearings before salaried employees of the agency making the charges, reports AMA.

Medical profession firmly believes that Congress did not intend to establish a FTC to regulate professional associations and to preempt enacted state laws governing the professions. FTC was established to supplement the Sherman act in those areas of industrial and commercial business in which regulation by an administrative agency with business expertise was believed more desirable than judicial enforcement. The FTC, with its commercial orientation and narrow focus, simply does not have the expertise to evaluate professional activities of nonprofit professional associations, AMA believes.

The AMA from first-hand experience, has become acutely aware of the staggering costs and enormous burdens incurred in responding to a FTC complaint. The AMA knows only too well that medical associations face an unacceptable choice when confronted by the FTC. They must either divert scarce resources from socially beneficial activities to defend against unfounded FTC charges or simply capitulate because of the overwhelming amount of time and money needed to defend meritorious positions.

The medical profession, through the AMA, has urged enactment of legislation clarifying that Congress never empowered the FTC to regulate professional associations or to strike down state laws governing the professions. The recent favorable vote of the Senate commerce, science and transportation committee is, we believe, a step in the right direction. Legislation before the House of Representatives that would place a moratorium on FTC activities concerning the professions also has strong support from the medical profession.

In addition, we physicians support proposals that would introduce basic fairness into all FTC proceedings. The measures include (1) providing financial relief from excessive demands for information from the agency, (2) limiting the overly broad subpoena power of the Commission, (3) clarifying what constitutes an "unfair" practice for purposes of the FTC act, (4) repealing the intervenor program by which the Commission funds entities that it selects to advocate their causes before the agency, and (5) requiring the FTC to bring its actions in federal courts.

To the extent that the FTC may be successful in forcing the medical profession to abandon or minimize responsible self-regulation, the real loser will be the patient whom such self-regulation is intended to protect.

Council Approves Building Purchase

At a special meeting held last night at city auditorium, Thief River Falls city council approved the purchase of the Toreq Inc. building, for $256,800; agreed to participate in a joint powers agreement with other area communities in opposition to development of a hazardous waste site in this area; discussed the selection of Bemidji Airlines by the civil aeronautics board as replacement air carrier for the city; and heard a mostly complimentary auditor's report.

Decision to purchase the Toreq building for $256,800 came at the recommendation of the finance committee, which had been negotiating with Toreq representatives since another special meeting held April 20. At that time, the city had offered $240,000 for the building with some equipment, and Toreq representatives had made a counter offer of $260,000.

Alderman Ambrose Wysoski, who is a member of the finance committee, stated that Toreq representatives had agreed to accept the $256,800 offer, adding that the purchase price includes two traveling cranes which are installed in the building. Utilities and park and recreation departments which will be moving into the building, had requested that certain equipment be left for their use. Wysoski, who is also chairman of the utilities committee, noted that they were in the process of negotiating with Toreq for additional equipment, in exchange for considerations on the company's utility bill, which is delinquent by approximately $3,000.

Final closure of the deal is naturally dependent on the city's being able to obtain clear title to the property, and Toreq will be required to pay approximately $32,000 in back taxes owed for the last three years.

Noting that the utilities department had been planning on building a new facility for some time, and had set aside some funds for that purpose, Wysoski stated that they had a current estimate of $488,000 replacement cost for the building. He noted that figure did not include the eight acres of real estate on which the building is located.

Superintendent of utilities John T. Anderson was questioned regarding the expense of converting the building to their use. He stated that while he couldn't put a dollar figure on it, the primary

D. Wetenkamp Injured In Airplane Crash

Donald R. Wetenkamp of route 2, Thief River Falls, reportedly suffered two fractured vertebrae about 10:30 a.m. today when the experimental airplane he was piloting crashed on the runway at the Thief River Falls regional airport.

Observers said that the airplane was leaving the main runway in a northwesterly direction when it climbed to about 100 feet in a stall attitude, then nosed over and came down under power, just beginning to level off at the time of impact. The airplane was not an ultralight craft.

Impact tore off the landing gear of the plane, owned by Sky Unlimited of Thief River Falls, and damaged the fiberglass hull. Wetenkamp, 41, who remained in the plane and was conscious, was taken by ambulance to Northwestern hospital. His condition was not available as the Times went to press. Observers said Wetenkamp is an experienced pilot.

Bemidji Airlines Selected To Replace Republic Here

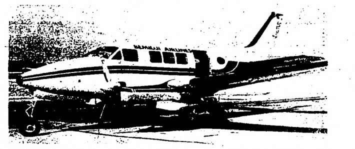
Final decision Tuesday morning by the federal civil aeronautics board (CAB) to award Bemidji Airlines the replacement carrier designation for Republic Airlines in Thief River Falls met with elation by Bemidji Airlines officials but disappointment by city officials and management of Mesaba Airlines of Grand Rapids, the other primary competitor.

Informed of the CAB decision Tuesday morning by Linda Hall, regional director for the office of congressional, community and consumer affairs for the CAB in Washington, DC, Mayor Bob Carlson of Thief River Falls immediately responded that the city would appeal the CAB decision.

Rob Swenson, president of Mesaba Airlines, told the Times it was too early to say what the airline's course would be, but indicated it may elect to send comments to the CAB. He said the company "would have dearly loved to serve Thief River Falls" and that it stands available to help the city in any way possible.

Hall told the Times in a phone interview that the final decision was made by the five-member board on a 3-2 vote following one of the longest discussions she can remember on a replacement airline vote. She said the selection is on a two-year basis with re-negotiation of subsidy after the first year of operation.

Bemidji Airlines offered to serve the city for a federal subsidy of $241,166 the first year with five round-trip flights daily. Mesaba asked a subsidy of $374,972 for three round-trip flights daily (using larger aircraft) with one stop at Bemidji, or a subsidy of $495,072 for three non-stop flights. These Mesaba requests were for the first year only.



BEMIDJI AIRLINES has been named as the replacement carrier for Republic Airlines in Thief River Falls by the federal civil aeronautics board. Plane service will be provided with two Queen Air Excalibur conversion aircraft, one of which is pictured in the photo above. Captain John Paschka and Dave Bullock, first officer, flew the plane with passengers into the Thief River Falls regional airport this morning. Paschka commented, "We're very excited about coming to the area to serve Thief River Falls."

Barbara Berggren, general manager of Bemidji Airlines, said people in her company were elated at the decision and confirmed that the firm had worked very hard to secure the replacement designation. She said she hoped the city of Thief River Falls would not appeal the CAB decision and believes the city needs to help the new carrier. She was remindful that the mayor had said at earlier hearings here that the city would be supportive and work with whichever carrier was selected by the CAB.

Berggren said negotiations have not been initiated with Republic to determine when the change-over date will be. She said her company will be hiring four to six more pilots, two additional ticket agents for Thief River Falls and will be discussing hangar rental with the city of Thief River Falls and purchase of equipment with Republic.

Service will be provided with the company's two Queen Air Excalibur conversion aircraft which utilize two pilots and carry nine passengers, Berggren said. The company has provided local service since last September 1, filling in approximate time slots when Republic flights were discontinued.

Tentative flight schedule will be for non-stop flights from Thief River Falls to Minneapolis-St. Paul from 6:15 to 7:45 a.m. Monday through Friday and non-stop return flights from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Flights which will have one stop (in Bemidji) will depart Thief River Falls at 10:05 a.m., 12 noon, 2:30 p.m. and 4:10 p.m., and will depart Minneapolis-St. Paul at 8 and 9:30 and 12:25 and 2:05 p.m., according to the tentative schedule. Three round-trip flights will be offered on Saturday and Sunday, with early and late flights being non-stop.

While the five flights will offer 45 seats per day from and to Thief River Falls, some of these will be taken by Bemidji origin passengers, Berggren said. She said the schedule meets the 50 per cent established load factor which had been a CAB requirement and is well in excess of the current 16 passenger average served daily by Republic.

"We hope the people of Thief River Falls are pleased by our selection," Berggren told the Times, "and we will certainly try our hardest to provide airline service that is dependable and flexible to suit the needs of the community."

Rob Swenson of Mesaba said he thought the CAB looked too closely at dollars rather than service, although he understands the difficulty the board faced in making its decision. He said his company had requested a second year

PROJECT CHILDSAFE, a program to provide approved car seats for infants, is now underway in Thief River Falls through sponsorship by the Jaycee Women organization in cooperation with the Pennington county nursing service and Northwestern hospital. There are 12 car seats available for rental in the program with the first unit being taken Tuesday. Mrs. Cindy Moe (left) rented the first unit for her one-month-old son Nathan. Also pictured are Mrs. Cheryl Lee (right), chairman of the Jaycee Women Project Childsafe committee, and Anita Cardinal, representing the county nursing service.

Car Safety Seat Rental Program Offered Locally

"Project Childsafe," an infant car seat loan program, is now underway in Thief River Falls under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women in cooperation with the Pennington county nursing service and Northwestern hospital.

Twelve approved car seats for infants have been purchased by the Jaycee Women and are being rented at a cost of $18 for nine months of use. Upon return of the car seat in good condition, half of the $18 fee will be refunded.

Brochures entitled "Protect Your Baby in the Car. . . in Minnesota It's the Law" explain the uses of car seats and other child safety restraints and are available at pre-natal classes, the children and parents learning together program at Mark Twain elementary school and the obstetrics department at Northwestern hospital.

Brochures or additional information may be obtained by calling project chairman Cheryl Lee at 681-5461. She emphasizes that the car seats may be loaned to residents of any part of northwestern Minnesota and are not restricted to Thief River Falls or Pennington county.

Childsafe is supported by the Minnesota department of public safety and the department of health as well as the Minnesota safety council. In the United States every year nearly a thousand children younger than age five are killed in motor vehicle accidents and nearly 100,000 are injured, often seriously and sometimes permanently. Using a federally approved car safety seat can greatly reduce the risk of injury or death.

"You can help your child begin a lifetime of safe riding habits by using a car safety seat from the very beginning, starting with that first ride home from the hospital," Mrs. Lee said. "You'll be protecting your baby at a time when the risk of death in an auto accident is at its highest."

Minnesota law now requires that the parent or guardian of a child under age four must install a federally approved child passenger restraint system in his or her vehicle before the child can ride in it.

PIK Program To Cut County Crop Acres By 73,000

"Participation in the 1983 farm program will reduce the planted acreage of wheat, barley, oats and corn by nearly 73,000 acres in Pennington county. Each one of these acres is subject to conservation use requirements, and we want everyone to have a clear understanding of what can be done and what cannot be done," states Phillip Bergland, executive director of the Pennington county ASCS office in a notice to farmers.

"Land designated as set-aside acreage must have been in crop for at least two years out of the last three, and summer fallowed land is not considered to have been cropped. The same set-aside acreage used in 1982 can be used in 1983. Hay land is eligible only if it is in a regular rotation, and an equal acreage is seeded down as replacement hay land during 1983. The newly seeded acreage of hay is not eligible as set-aside. The alternative is to seed a harvestable nurse crop along with the new seeding of hay," Bergland said.

"There are options in the conservation use requirements, such as flax strips, sun flower strips and grass strips, and we would be happy to explain these. The two most popular options seem to be the seeddown of the entire set-aside acreage to grass or winter grain by Sept. 1, or a late plowing of the acreage, which will leave the field in a roughened condition with at least 30 per cent trash cover on top of the ground," the executive director said.

"Any of these options are acceptable, and one or more must be selected and carried out. If the set-aside acreage is not protected from wind erosion, our only alternative is to cancel participation in the

District GFWC Report Heard At Zehlian Meet

Reports, including the one on the District convention of the General Federated Woman's club (GFWC) held at Stephen, were given at the recent meeting of the Zehlian club held at the home of Jean Heinrichs.

Reporting on the district meeting held April 16th, were Ina Thorsgard and Bunny Dondelinger. It was noted that other delegates attending the convention were Margaret Saetre, Dee Forney and Mary Evans.

Highlights of the convention were the style show, featuring clothing from the 1920's to the present time; a parade of hats, depicting the different personalities of the club women; and the keynote address given by District President Lou Ann Stoffel, who was introduced by district vice president Margaret Saetre.

In her presentation, Mrs. Stoffel listed her many achievements including her present office as mayor of Hastings. She credited her success in having overcome her shyness by being a member of the Woman's club. She stated that "at the time I was asked to be president of our club, I had always sat in the back row and had never even seconded a motion." In telling how one position led to another, she encouraged club women to be willing to assume an office when asked.

The delegates also reported on the art and craft display at the convention. It was noted that Mrs. Saetre placed first on the counted needle point; Diane Krepp, first in the pottery division; and Jean Hogan, first places on a knitted suit and an oil painting, and third on a knitted dress. Entries in the student art contest had been submitted by students from Lincoln high school and the Franklin Middle school.

Other reports were given by Gretchen Beito, who stated that many people had attended the art exhibit at Northern State bank; Bunny Dondelinger, who gave the information on the Health clinic set for May 3 and 4th; and Cookie Ault, who reported on the Women's club figurine which is for sale.

Mrs. Saetre reported that each club has been asked to submit to the district a report of this year's outstanding project. The group selected the art display at Northern State bank, a part of the Art Adventure program, as the club's major project.

Mrs. Saetre also reported on the suggested reading list for the Eso program. She encouraged the members to see the French caricature art display at Northland community college, and reminded members that Gretchen Beito would be giving a presentation on "Prehistoric Life in this Area" in conjunction with Library week.

In addition to the various reports, the book, "Marco Polo," was discussed.

Members were encouaraged to bring suggestions to the next meeting for books to study as well as programs for the art group.

The next meeting will be the spring luncheon. The event will be held at the home of Marge Hanson. Hostesses will be Mrs. Hanson, Annette Bergan, Bunny Dondelinger, Gail Kenville and Diane Krepp. Elaine Kayser has been invited as a guest.

Excavation Of Prehistoric MN Village Begins

Contract for archaeological investigation at a site in Red Wing, from which has come "some of the finest prehistoric craftsmanship in Minnesota," has been awarded by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to the University of Minnesota.

Excavation will begin in late April at the site of a prehistoric village, which was occupied between 700 and 1,000 years ago, according to Clark Dobbs, university researchers in anthropology, who is the field director.

Inhabitants of the village are known to have grown corn, beans and squash in fertile Mississippi river bottomlands. Although the relationship of the inhabitants of the area to other early groups is still unclear, he said, it is possible that this site may have been the northerly terminus of a trade network involving the complex Mississippian cultures of the southeastern United States.

During the summer, archaeologists hope to learn more about the precise time when the site was inhabited and the exact kinds of plants and animals used by these groups. Fine scale excavation and screening techniques will be used to collect floral and faunal remains discarded hundreds of years ago. In addition, the remnants of houses and other structures will be sought. Analysis of the summer's findings will continue into 1984.

Site was discovered in 1951 when artifacts were found during graveling operations in the area. During the 1950s the university conducted several excavations at the site in an attempt to learn more about Minnesota's prehistoric period, according to professor Elden Johnson, chair of the university's department of anthropology and principal investigator for the project.

In 1982 archaeologists from the trunk highway archaeological survey of the Minnesota historical society determined that although the site had been largely destroyed by gravel mining operations, significant data still remained buried in the undisturbed areas, Johnson explained.

Replacement of a deteriorating trunk highway 61 bridge over the Cannon river overflow channel will require realignment of the highway through the small undisturbed area of the site.

Under existing laws and regulations, Mn-DOT must investigate and attempt to preserve significant historical findings within the path of any of its projects. Since Mn-DOT does not have within the department the experts to correlate this type of research, it has contracted the project to the university, said commissioner Richard Braun, state transportation department.

"This project is an excellent example of inter-agency cooperation in an effort to meet historical preservation requirements without delaying work that is desperately needed for the continuance of Minnesota's transportation system," Braun added.

PIONEER TALES

from the
Pennington County Historical Society

by Inga Geving

It is soon Mother's Day, so let us drift back to see what our pioneer mothers and grandmothers would be doing.

We are thankful for our Christian mothers. Sometimes they had to use a firm and stern hand to lay the foundation in us for good character and respect for other people. They taught their children the Ten Commandments, one by one, to make them their guide in life.

They had just finished canning meat for the summer — 300 quarts. Then they rendered the lard for baking those good doughnuts they always made. The lard that wasn't good for cooking, they would melt slowly for soap making. This was stirred carefully and when it was the right thickness, a little lavender oil or rose oil would be added. The soap was always nice and white as were their washings.

In order to wash clothes, the water was carried in the night before and put into the boiler to heat on the wood stove. A washboard was used to rub the soiled garments and then they were boiled for 15 minutes. They were slowly lifted from the boiling water, into the rinse water to be rinsed several times. Then into the bluing water they would go and then were wrung out by hand. Some things had to be starched, such as the ruffles and lace. Grandpa's shirt collars had extra special care. The washings were hung carefully and in order on the clothes lines. I miss the long lines of washings.

This was also the time to set the incubator. It was kept in a warm place and the wick was lit. The eggs were put in carefully and watched to make sure the temperature was always right. Soon there were baby chicks to care for.

The winter quilts were taken apart and the wool was washed and re-carded. The lining and quilt tops were washed and then put back together and retied. They were put in the chest with moth crystals and lavender sachets until the next winter.

I can't imagine how the pioneers could get tomatoes and cabbage plants to grow in boxes in the house. There were no beautiful green houses like we have now. I believe God gave them extra green thumbs, and a few extra hours in a day.

Thursday was "Ladies Aid" day. Most of the mothers and grandmothers walked two to five miles and there were no roads. If the water was deep, they would use grandpa's rubber boots and carry their shoes. They had their own Bible studies and hymn sing. A big lunch was served at the table where everyone was seated. The offering, which was used for mission work, was 10 cents per member. The total came to about a dollar.

Early in the morning we woke up listening to our mother stirring the fires and making a hot breakfast, before our long walk to school. From our bedroom window, we could see the big yellow moon in the sky smiling at us. It looked like a big sugar cookie that we could reach up and take.

In the Spring, we remember how good it felt to toss aside the black leggings with the black shiny buttons. . . not to mention the heavy coats, mittens, scarves and stocking caps. We were several pounds lighter after discarding the woolen garments and we walked about with "springier" steps because of the gladness within us.

The melted snow made little rivers that sparkled over the countryside. The cool nights transformed them into smooth bands of "rubber ice." If we stepped lightly, it crackled and sagged, but it held our weight. It carried us dry until we jumped on it and it gave way. Then we came home with sniffles and colds, and our mothers knew we had stepped through the "rubber ice." I wonder if "rubber ice" is still as attractive.

The children of yesterday greeted spring's arrival with joy. It was a time when sunshine melted the ice and snow and the breezes seemed to blow a promise of good times in our faces. "Baseball" and "run Sheep Run" were played. This made us tired at the end of the day, and we came home hungry. There would be 10 or 12 fresh loaves of bread, cookies and a hot meal to greet us.

As we look back and think of our childhood and way of life, we are again thankful for a mother's love and guidance during our growing years.

Bemidji Firm Selected For Air Service

subsidy less than the first year request of Bemidji Airlines, and indicated he thought the CAB may have made a mistake in not looking at the overall picture in the long run.

Hall said the board's final decision was made on the basis of the lower subsidy cost; high frequency of flight service by Bemidji Airlines with five round-trip flights per day, three with stops at Bemidji; a non-stop evening flight which should appeal to business travelers returning from the Twin Cities; and that Bemidji Airlines appears to be a capable carrier in providing replacement service. She also noted that the board felt reasonably sure the airline would provide 39 seats in and out of Thief River Falls while the current passenger load on Republic Airlines only averages 16 per day.

Republic and Bemidji Airlines will be allowed by the CAB to make their own arrangements for implementing the change-over, Hall said, but the general time span for change-over following the final CAB decision is 45 to 60 days. A court appeal could delay the procedure, she said, but it would take a court case because all other actions through the CAB itself have been exhausted.

Bob Gibbons, media relations representative for Republic Airlines, said Republic will continue to operate as it has been until the new carrier is ready to assume its new role. He also indicated Republic would like to work with Bemidji Airlines in terms of carrying Thief River Falls passengers to points beyond Minneapolis-St. Paul. He said Republic now has 101 flights to 112 destinations daily from the Minneapolis-St. Paul international airport.

Gibbons also said travel agents can handle flight bookings incorporating Bemidji Airlines into the total routing of passengers and that the airline can contract with other carriers for computer reservation services, baggage handling, loading area and other needs. He said the time lapse from Republic's filing of intent to discontinue service more than a year ago until the CAB final decision Monday has been lengthy but not the longest his company has experienced.

PIK Program To Cut County Crop Acreage

1983 program," Bergland warned county farmers.

He said the office is getting many requests for information on the PIK bushels which farmers will be receiving, and he thinks there are some points which should be explained. The wheat bushels will be released on August 15 and the corn on November 1.

"Between now and then we consider it to be the same as any other grain under loan to the Commodity Credit corporation," he said, "and is subject to the usual spot checks and inspections. If any of the PIK grain is removed from the bin before the availability date, it will be considered as an unauthorized removal of mortgaged grain. This could mean the cancellation of the PIK contract and other financial penalties as well.

"We are paying storage on this PIK grain, and will continue to do so for an additional five months after the availability date, if farmers leave the grain in the bin. The only marketing authorization that we can issue is for grain under loan which is in excess of the needs for a farmer's own PIK contract."

Bergland also noted that each year the county office of ASCS receives an allocation of funds which are used for the promotion of agricultural conservation. "In most cases we can pay up to 75 per cent of the cost of establishing improved conservation practices on the farm. These practices can include tree planting, permanent new seeding, livestock and wildlife pits, grassed waterways, etc. In cases of severe pollution from animal waste, up to $3,500 can be granted for the construction of control facilities," Bergland said.

"Farmers who have a conservation problem and would like our help may stop in at the county office and talk to Emmy or Karen," he added. "Requests will be referred to the soil conservation service for technical assistance, and before the summer of 1983 is over, the farm could be a better conservation farm."

Car Safety Seat Rental Plan Offered Here

Some of the "dos" and "don'ts" of making sure children have a safe ride are listed in the brochure as follows:

+ Do make sure any child less than four years of age, and weighing less than 40 pounds, rides in a car safety seat at all times. Older or heavier children can — and should — use standard lap seat belts.

+ Do use only seats which have met federal standards in dynamic (crash) tests. Seats manufactured after January 1, 1981, must meet these standards and must be labeled as meeting them.

+ Do use an infant car safety seat, in the rear facing position, for a baby younger than about 9 months of age or who weighs less than 20 pounds.

+ Do carefully read and follow the instructions which come with any seat you use.

+ Do make sure the car safety seat is properly secured to your vehicle, with a standard lap seat belt, at all times.

+ Do use the harness system, if the seat you're using has one, at all times.

+ Do use the "top tether" strap on any forward-facing seat that requires one, so it will be properly anchored to the vehicle.

+ Do cover your child's car seat with specially designed seat covers or towels during hot weather, to prevent burns.

+ Do set a good example by always buckling up yourself.

+ Don't hold a child on your lap while riding in a car.

+ Don't buckle yourself and your child into the same seat belt.

+ Don't let your child ride in an infant feeding seat, or any seat, or any other device that hasn't been designed and approved specifically for use as a car seat.

+ Don't use a second hand child car seat unless you're sure it meets current safety standards.

+ Don't use any car safety seat that has already been in a major accident.

+ Don't give in if your toddler resists the idea of riding in a car seat. The child will accept the car safety seat if you're firm about it, and properly restrained children usually behave better in the car.

+ Don't allow any child to ride in the cargo area of a truck or station wagon. Children are not cargo.

Solutions For Hearing Aid Problems

"I can't live without my hearing aid—it's brought sound back into my life." The vast majority of hearing aid users find them a positive addition to their lives. A few, however, complain about squealing, or discomfort, or lack of effectiveness. Most often there is a solution to their problems.

Frequently new users may be troubled with mild discomfort stemming from the earmold fit. This is easily remedied with a slight adjustment by the dispenser or audiologist. Often simple adjustments are all that is needed to enhance communicative skills. Tube changes, tone adjustments, and cleaning are all part of the normal care and maintenance of hearing aids.

Many of the common problems are rooted in the user's apprehensions and his or her general misunderstanding of the hearing aid's function. Understanding the benefits as well as the shortcomings of the instruments will usually allow for a more receptive attitude. This acceptance plays an integral part in the user's success by increasing motivation and desire.

Open communication between the user and the professional, to discuss the wearer's problems and concerns, will help guarantee the success you expect from your instrument.

Kindergarten Cookbook Made For Mom's Day

Mothers of Goodridge kindergarten students will receive a special gift this week from their children who contributed their own versions of popular recipes in a class taught by Linda Peterson.

Some samples from the cookbook prepared by the youngsters include:

Steve Grosz's French fries: One potato; take off skin with a knife. Shape into bumps. Then put in oven for three minutes in three degree oven. Enough for one person. Good with catsup.

Randy Ryan's Jello: Put in bowl — one bag full of marshmallows, one box red jello, one teaspoon any liquid; Fix with mixer. Put in the fridge until we are going to eat it. Enough for however many we have over.

Shonda Anderson's strawberry cake: Four big strawberries, six cups aplesauce, one cake mix, four cups milk, six cups water, one box butterscotch pudding. Put in bowl and mix with a spoon. Put it in a pan and that's all. Bake for nine minutes at 67 degrees.

Todd Anderson's chocolate chip cookies: Three chocolate chips, three cups sugar. Heat this up in a kettle. Take it out and mix up. Put into balls and put on a plate.

Leah Vigen's Grandma's doughnuts: Make a white dough of one teaspoon sugar, two cups flour, four teaspoons brown sugar, one egg. Mix in round thing with a pusher. Push into round pan with grease or oil in it. Cook five minutes. Can roll in sugar. Makes a lot of doughnuts, about 18.

Brady Wiseth's hamburgers on bun: Two pounds hamburger. Pat into little round things. Put in eight degree oven for nine hours. Take out and put on buns. Serves 10 people. Can use catsup or pickle on these.

Beaver Bryl's brownies: One scoop sugar, three teaspoons chocolate syrup, 16 walnuts (chopped up), one scoop butter. Mix together in a bowl. Put in a pan. Bake in oven for two minutes. Eat them after they get cool, or frost with white frosting. Enough for three kids and two adults.

Amber Wilken's cookies with chocolate chips: Three cups powder, five spoons sugar, four big spoons margarine, six big spoons milk, 14 chocolate chips, one small spoon salt. Put in a big bowl and mix with a spoon. Make into cookies. Bake five minutes at four degrees. Makes six cookies. Have with milk.

Aaron Miller's Rice Krispie bars with chocolate on top: 40 Rice Krispies, 50 marshmallows. Put in oven. Melt chocolate chips and put on top of Rice Krispie bars. Makes 20 bars.

Shannon Sjulestad's Knox blocks: One cup water, bowl, pan, box with orange packages in it, two boxes of Jello. Heat up water. Put in bowl with Jello and orange stuff, pour in big pan. Put in fridge to freeze. Keep it a long time, then check to see if it's hard. Then cut into blocks.

Mark Broughten's angel cake: Melt about one dozen marshmallows and cook them. Trade with somebody to make the bottom; in case you need a pan. Use a Betty Crocker box and put frosting on melted marshmallows. Sugary frosting: Take 10 scoops coloring and add about 10 scoops sugar. Stir it up and put it in a little jar and make a picture on the cake.

Jodi Manderud's vanilla cookies: Step I — four cups crushed apples, one cup flour, two cups peanut butter. Step II — one more cup peanut butter, a bowl full of butter, one cup butter, one more cup peanut butter. Stir the two batches together. Put it all on a big pan. Bake in oven at 4 o'clock. The oven should be one-half degree. Bake until 6 o'clock.

Set Phone Line For Utility Disconnections

"Hot line" service will offer help to low-income Minnesotans who face being disconnected from their gas or electric utility, according to Ray Bohn, director of the department of public service.

Utility customers who have not been able to pay their winter bills could be without gas or electricity unless they make arrangements to pay. According to Bohn, the shut-off hot line will put customers in touch with people who can help work out payment arrangements.

Energy assistance program (EAP) offices will take the hot line referrals. Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of the department of economic security, indicated that energy assistance funds are still available for eligible low-income households. She cautioned, however, that the federal funds can only be given to those people who have not already received assistance this past heating season.

"Energy assistance has been available since November 1," Beerhalter explained. "Local offices will continue to take applications through May 31."

Bohn has requested local EAP staff to continue to provide assistance to customers in working with utilities to develop payment plans for overdue accounts. Bohn suggests that customers of regulated utilities facing shut-off of service seek assistance by calling their local community action agency or county social service agency.

Referral to the nearest EAP office will also be available by calling the hot line toll free at 1-800-652-9747 and ask for "Utility Shut-Off." The telephone hot line will be in service from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Stewardship Of Soil Observed On May 8 to 15

May 8-15 is soil stewardship week, set aside to recognize the importance of taking care of our natural resources of soil and water. This year the theme is "Living Waters."

"This week is a time to think of the fact that we are here for only a short time and it is up to us to take care of the land," States Ralph Rundell, technician with the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD. "We need to protect and improve our resources so we can leave them in as good or better condition than when we got them.

"The basis of our great country is the land and its produce. I have heard the saying 'as the farmer goes, so goes the country' and I think this is especially true in our rural area. The farmers have had some difficult times in the recent past and it is reflected in the whole area.

"Most farmers we work with realize that they must take care of their land or it will not be able to provide for them," Rundell said. "We need for the rest of the people to realize that they need to support farmers' efforts in conservation so we may all continue to live and prosper in our great country. Let's all take time during soil conservation week to thank our Lord and the farmers for the abundance we enjoy. Say thank you to your farmer friends and encourage them to continue to take care of their land so it will be there for future generations."

AFTER NEARLY two hours of aerobic dancing, some of the participants in the "Dance For Heart" marathon on Saturday, were showing signs of being tired, but 18 out of 27 dancers managed to complete the full four hours. Corinne "Cor" Flynn, organizer of the event, (at far right in the picture) reported that approximately $1,800 was raised for the Heart Fund by the dancers, and expressed her thanks to all of the participants and sponsors, adding that much of the credit belonged to assistants Gloria Kildahl (far left) and Cathy Hinz (third from left).

Field Work Is Ready To Run In Early May

Sunny weather with seasonable temperatures finally reached Minnesota in late April. Reported average date for beginning full-scale fieldwork is May 1.

Soils in most of southern Minnesota remained saturated following a very snowy winter, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. In the southwest and south central the only planting possible so far has been on very well-drained-light soils. Small grain seedings might be reduced by the lateness of the season in these areas.

In great contrast to southern Minnesota, most of the Red River valley and the adjoining counties had very little snow over the winter, so topsoils are drier and are mostly ready for planting. In the north central and northeast districts, frost is still coming out of the ground.

Topsoil moisture as of April 29 is rated eight per cent short, 52 per cent adequate, and 40 per cent surplus, while the subsoil is rated five per cent short, 52 per cent adequate, and 43 per cent surplus. Statewide, pastures and hayfields have come through the mild winter temperatures in generally good condition, but growth has barely begun. Pastures and hay fields are rated 34 per cent poor to fair and 41 per cent good to excellent, with 25 per cent still dormant.

Seeding of small grains has been active since about April 22 in the west central district, but has barely begun in many other areas. Spring wheat stands at 30 per cent seeded as of May 1, which compares with 32 per cent last year and 43 per cent for the five-year average. Oats at 27 per cent seeded are behind last year's 41 per cent and the five-year average of 46 per cent. Barley seedings total 23 per cent of the acreage versus 20 per cent last year and 35 per cent for the five-year average. Condition of winter wheat and rye is rated 25 per cent poor to fair and 57 per cent good to excellent, with 18 per cent still dormant.

Preparation of field corn and soybean ground is underway on a limited scale. Field corn ground is now 12 per cent prepared compared with 18 per cent last year and 27 per cent for the five-year average. Preparation of soybean ground stands at four per cent compared with nine per cent a year ago and the five-year average of 13 per cent.

Planting of sugarbeets stands at 34 per cent complete versus 39 per cent last year and 41 per cent for the five-year average. Green peas for processing are 19 per cent planted compared with 21 per cent a year ago and the five-year average of 26 per cent.

Eligibility For Set-Aside Acres Listed

Leo Orpen, chairman of the Marshall county ASC committee, requests that farmers be certain their set-aside acreage is eligible for the 1983 wheat and feed grain program.

Orpen stated that land designated as set-aside acreage must have been in crop for at least two years out of the last three. Land that was set-aside under the 1981 or 1982 program would be considered cropped for the year it was set-aside and could again be used for set-aside in 1983.

Hayland is eligible only if it is in a regular rotation, and an equal acreage is seeded down as replacement hayland during 1983. The newly seeded acreage of hay is not eligible to be used as set-aside.

Orpen also stressed that land set-aside in 1983 will have to have one of the approved winter cover practices carried out on it to prevent wind and water erosion.

He concluded by stating that farmers who have questions on their set-aside should contact their county ASCS office.

MnDOT, 'U'M Selected To Update Manual

Minnesota department of transportation (MN-DOT) and the University of Minnesota have been selected to prepare an updated traffic charateristics chapter for a national manual used worldwide, the department announced.

Federal highway administration (FHWA) has selected Mn-DOT and the University to write the traffic characteristics chapter for the highway capacity manual. This is part of a national effort led by the transportation research board, Washington, D.C., to update the last edition of the manual which was done in 1965. The project will be funded 100 per cent by the federal government.

Manual is used as the basis for solving a wide variety of highway and transit engineering and planning problems, ranging from congestion at a single city intersection to a major land-use change affecting streets and highways. In addition, the manual also is used as a basis for designing new highways or rehabilitating old highways in both city and rural areas.

Traffic characteristics chapter will provide an introduction to other chapters on procedures by describing highway and street traffic volumes, speeds, spacing between vehicles and information on transit operations and bicycle use.

Project co-investigators will be Dr. Matthew Huber, associate professor of the University institute of technology's department of civil and mineral engineering, and Perry C. Plank, Mn-DOT transportation planning engineer for the program management division.

An informal panel will be formed representing different manual-user groups to serve as a sounding board to obtain reactions and additional ideas.

Persons who would like to offer suggestions and comments or who want to serve as panelists may contact Perry Plank, Mn-DOT Program Management Division, 820 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, phone (612) 296-1621, by May 16.

Wildlife Report Is Given From Grygla Meeting

Annual wildlife meeting sponsored by the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District was held recently at Grygla.

Agency personnel on hand included Gerald Maertens and Gordy Forester of the Thief Lake refuge; Phil Watt of the Red Lake wildlife management are at Norris Camp; Jon Parker, area game manager at Thief River Falls; and Paul Hansen, citizen participation coordinator from St. Paul.

Forester told of the work being done in the refuge along with a map showing shearing, food plots, etc.

Watt said they are doing a lot of the same type of work as being done in Thief Lake. He showed slides of the work being done to create food plots for moose. He discussed the drop in the moose population as they have been moving more west and south. Since 1960 the moose population has dropped an average of 7 per cent per year. The major cause is loss of habitat as the Aspen grows more mature. By shearing food plot areas, new growth can be obtained.

Jone Cole, area game manager, announced the new hydrologist in the Thief River office was Don Grasner. He also discussed their plans in the areas of controlled burning, shearing and food plots. He also discussed the protected waters inventory.

Paul Hansen from the DNR office in St. Paul, discussed legislation concerns which recently prevented the coyote from becomming a protected animal. Some statistics on the T.I.P. (Turn In Poachers) program include 2,719 calls in 1982, of which 468 had enough information for conservation officers to follow-up. There 323 arrests were made with a 99 per cent conviction rate. There were 129 rewards paid to people calling in the amount of $17,815. Hansen also stated only about 40 per cent of the callers asked for a reward, the rest preferred to remain anonymous. Hansen also discussed violations in fishing regulations and the impact of the illegal fish taken.

DelRay Larson, Marshall county commissioner talked about the brushing along the Mud river and plans for getting it cleaned.

After the meeting, agency personnel had time for answering questions and visiting with local landowners and interested persons in attendance.

April Index Of Farm Prices Is Up Slightly

Mid-April index of prices received by Minnesota farmers rose three per cent to 133 during the month, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This level fell one per cent short of the index a year ago. Prices were up from the previous month for most crop commodities; exceptions were flaxseed and dry edible beans which declined. While lower prices were received for most livestock commodities, prices were higher for beef cattle and wool, and the milk price was steady.

The crops index rose seven per cent to 125 during the month. This was two per cent above the index a year ago. The mid-April prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.84 per bushel, up 19 cents from the revised March estimate; corn, $2.84, up 31 cents; oats, $1.45, up seven cents; barley, $1.94, up nine cents; soybeans, $5.92, up 30 cents; flaxseed, $4.63, down seven cents.

Potatoes averaged $4.40 per hundredweight for all grades, up 10 cents. All hay was up $4 per ton to $74.00; alfalfa hay at $80 was up $5; and other hay at $55 was up $2. All sunflowers at $8.80 per hundredweight were up 40 cents from the revised March price. Dry edible beans were down 20 cents to $10.20 per hundredweight.

Meat animal index at 144 was unchanged from last month but was four per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $47 per hundredweight were down $3..30 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $53.80 per hundredweight, up $3.10. Calves were down $2.40 to $64.50 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $14.50 per hundredweight, down $3.50. Lambs were down $4.10 to $58.70 per hundredweight.

The dairy index remained unchanged during the month but was one per cent above the index of last year. The preliminary milk price at $13 per hundredweight was unchanged from the revised March price.

Poultry and egg index at 96 was two per cent below last month and down 13 per cent from a year ago. Turkeys were 31 cents per pound liveweight, down one cent from a month earlier. Table market eggs brought 43 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-April, down a cent from mid-March and eight cents below a year earlier.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am outraged at the constant inconsideration and rudeness of some people. A few weeks ago I was in a restaurant where Senator Stumpf and Representative Sparby were also eating. I observed a thoughtless constituent sit down with the legislators and their families while they were eating and discuss politics with them for a lengthy period of time.

This evening I went out for dinner with my parents, and like so many times in the past, I found myself in the same situation. We'd just been served our meals when a rude person sat down with us. By the time this person was through discussing business with my father, we were practically finished with our dinner.

People who work for the taxpayers put in long, hard days, which begin very early in the morning and usually are concluded with evening meetings. They aren't able to spend much time with their families. If the taxpayers want to talk to these people, they could make an appointment and see them during office hours.

In the fast-paced society in which we live, and more and more failies breaking up, the time that families spend together has become ever more precious. It's too bad that more people are not considerate enough to realize this.

Sincerely,
Susan Block

To The Editor:

Recently I was shocked to learn about the bill before the Minnesota legislature called "Senate File 119". This bill is in defense of all homosexuals and would not permit you as an individual or business owner to refuse employment to them. This would include school hiring. You could not refuse them dorm living, counseling positions or refuse them the rental of any properties you may own.

This bill was introduced by admitted lesbian Rep. Karen Clark, DFL, Minneapolis and is having stiff opposition in the senate now from many legislators and lobbyist groups. If you are against such a bill, I urge you to write to your representative in St. Paul in regard to this "Senate File 119".

Be aware that this is not happening in New York or California but right here in Minnesota. It was passed on once in the Minnesota House by a majority of 84-35. This bill could possibly be tried to be pushed through this week so please don't delay in contacting your representatives: Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Rep. Wallace Sparby or Rep. Jim Tunheim, State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Precautions Help Prevent Bike Thefts

With more people beginning to ride bicycles now as summer approaches, it is time to remember how to guard against bike theft. Just a few precautions can help people avoid the frustration caused when a bicycle is stolen, according to Minnesota crime watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety.

When leaving a bicycle unattended in a public place, always chain the rear wheel and frame to a stationary object. By simply chaining one wheel to the other a bike can be easily tossed into a truck or van and the chain cut later.

Case hardened chain and a sturdy padlock offer good protection against theft. The chain should be at least ⅜" thick and covered with a plastic tube to prevent scratching the bicycle's finish. A lighter, more convenient cable can be used instead of a chain, but it is more vulnerable to being cut. The padlock must have a strong metal body and at least a ⅜" shackle.

"People should store their bikes indoors or in a locked garage when they are not being used," said Minnesota crime watch coordinator Charles Rix. "Bicycles that must be left unattended in public places at night should be chained to an immovable object in a well lighted area."

Bike thieves can be discouraged by joining operation identification and engraving identification numbers on the bikes. Citizens can join this free, property marking program by calling their local police or sheriff department. Members receive an engraving tool to mark their property, warning stickers and an identification number.

"There is evidence that an engraved operation identification number does deter would-be thieves," said Rix. "A ten speed bicycle that wasn't marked with an I.D. number was stolen from a garage in Golden Valley while a ten speed bike next to it that was marked was not taken. An engraved number also helps recover stolen equipment."

Bicycles can also be registered with the state of Minnesota to improve the chance of recovering stolen bikes. Registration costs $4 and can be accomplished at any motor vehicle deputy registrar's office in the state.

Otter Tail To Close Plant For Summer

Otter Tail Power company's Hoot Lake plant, located east of Fergus Falls, will be off line until next fall due to a number of factors including higher coal-handling and freight charges, a decrease in electric loads and the availability of lower-cost electricity from Canada.

There are about 50 employees assigned to Hoot Lake plant. During the summer months most of these employees will be needed for overhaul work, general plant maintenance and seeing to it that the plant is available for generation should the need arise. Additionally, plant employees will perform certain tasks which would have been on the agenda for future years, among them plant modifications, and temporary assignments to other work units in Otter Tail for the summer months.

Present plans call for one of two units at Hoot Lake plant to be operational this coming September 1.

MCC Board To Consider Cuts In Next Budget

Marshall County Central school board will consider budget reduction for 1983-84 school year at a special board meeting May 12 at 8 p.m. in the high school library.

According to Supt. Gene Busch, the board will hear public input concerning budget reductions of up to $15,000 for next year. The four main topics will be:

(1) Full-day kindergarten classes on alternate days with a transportation reduction of $7,000;

(2) Reduce the activity bus to three days per week with a transportation reduction of $3,500;

(3) Establish participation fees for athletics, with income increased approximately $3,000; and

(4) Increase the price of athletic admission prices with income increase of $1,500.

"Main reason for this reduction action by the local board is the reduced state share of funding without authority to increase the amounts locally," Supt. Busch said.

"The board has made major budget reductions the last two years which have had an effect on the quality of education for the students. For the current year the board made reductions in teaching staff, other personnel and other items amounting to $56,000. Another $63,000 was cut from the 1981-82 budget. With planned reduction for the next school year, the totals for the three years will be about $150,000 in reduced educational programs and services to students," the superintendent added.

Preliminary budget needs for the 1984-85 school year will be developed over the next few months. If the state of Minnesota continues the trend of a reduced ratio of funding of the local educational program, additional program cuts will be necessary. To avoid additional drastic cuts, a voted referendum levy by the people of the school district may be needed for the 1984-85 school year. Many school districts in the area passed voted levies many years ago, Supt. Busch also noted.

Council Ok's Purchase Of Toreq Building

thing needed was a good cleaning. He suggested that it was an operating building now, with five offices, adding that they might have to build one more office using their own forces.

Some discussion was held regarding disposition of the building which currently houses the utilities and parks departments, once the move is made into the new facilities. Alderman Don Goodrich suggested that if the city was going to buy more property, one of the buildings should be put up for sale. Mayor Bob Carlson noted that avenue was being pursued, but commented that "out of consideration of the need for jobs in Thief River Falls, we are seriously offering it to our garment industry." (The finance committee is currently negotiating with Northern Outerwear representatives to lease the building.)

Alderman Milan Borsheim suggested that moving the off-sale liquor store into the building should be considered, and the present "tin shack" be put up for sale. Borsheim noted that his intent was to evenutally get the liquor store moved downtown. Comment was made that since the city has a monopoly on liquor sales anyway, location of the store is not all that important.

Roll call vote on a motion to purchse the Toreq building had all council members voting in favor, with the exception of Alderman James Womack, who abstained due to a possible conflict of interest (he was treasurer of Toreq), and Alderman Ken Murphy who was absent.

Presentation on the joint powers agreement to organize Northwestern Minnesota communities in opposition to establishment of a hazardous waste site in this area was presented by City Attorney Robert Wurst. He noted that the agreement was basically the same as those which the city had previously reviewed, except that it did not attempt to establish a formula for payment of expenses. He explained that that question was left to be worked out by the parties involved, since some had expressed reluctance to commit themselves to a specific amount.

Wurst commented that the time factor was critical in approving the agreement, since litigation in the matter is currently going on, adding that they were in danger of the issue becoming "dead in the water."

Alderman Bill Penning expressed concern that Thief River Falls not be the only city in the agreement, noting that if the other cities in the area did not stay in the organization, he felt Thief River Falls should drop out also. Noting that it was the county's responsibility, he added that he was only "thinking of the dollar signs", and wanted assurance that city taxpayers not end up paying separately from the rest of the county.

Wurst again emphasized the need for prompt action, noting "if nothing happens, our rights could go right down the drain." He also added that he hoped the parties involved would be able to reach a just agreement on contributions to expenses. Members would be able to withdraw at any time, on 30 days notice, he added.

Resolution to enter into the joint powers agreement, and designating Alderman Ken Murphy as the city's representative on the joint powers board was unanimously approved.

Considerable discussion was held over the announcement from the civil aeronautics board that it had selected Bemidji Airlines as replacement carrier to provide service to Thief River Falls regional airport. Little enthusiasm for the choice was shown by any of the council members, who had previously informed the CAB of their preference for Mesaba Airlines. Although he said he had requested forms to appeal the selection Mayor Bob Carlson said he had been informed that "virtually 10 out of 10 appeals are turned down".

Goodridge commented, "It looks to me like they didn't take anything into consideration besides subsidies." Referring to criteria which CAB had previously given for its selection, he noted that they had established the importance of providing a linear system, advanced computer reservation system, joint fares, community preference, and relative financial strength, before subsidies on their list.

Although Wurst noted that there was no way of knowing how much money an appeal could cost, he stated that the Minnesota department of transportation was concerned that the city be provided with essential air service, adding that he would be in contact with representatives of that body's aeronautics division to discuss the CAB decision.

Report of the accounting firm of Holcomb, Knudson and Co. on the completed audit of the city's books for 1982, was presented by Robert Poissant. Although a more detailed analysis of that report will be attempted at a later date, Poissants comments were complimentary to the bookkeeping department of Thief River Falls, noting that it was a "well run city." He said that faults found had been "minor things. . . even picky." One figure of note is that this year's audit cost less than those done the last four years, primarily due to the city's move to an on-line computer system, and more preparatory work done by city employees. Holcomb Knudson and Company's fee was $10,907 this year, compared to $14,873 in 1981.

Sons Of Norway Honor Charter Member Hetland

Recognition of a 95-year-old charter member and hosting the supreme president of Sons of Norway International were highlights of the 75th anniversary of Snorre Lodge 70 of the Sons of Norway April 20 in the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls. More than 250 people were in attendance.

Sam Hetland, who came to Thief River Falls in 1906 at age 18 from Egersund, Norway, was introduced as the only living charter member of the local lodge. He and his wife Emma have been married 64 years. Supreme president Egil Olson of Maryland commented that he had attended several 75th anniversary celebrations in the United States and Hetland was the first living charter member he had met.

As main speaker for the evening, Olson said he had been intrigued by the name "Snorre" and his research revealed it was the name of the first white child recorded as born on the North American continent. Some Vikings from Norway had formed a colony on Greenland and a group from that colony moved westward to Vinland where baby Snorre was born in about 110 AD. Finding Vinland Indians to be unfriendly, the group returned to Greenland and later Snorre grew up and lived in Norway.

The Snorre name for the local lodge was suggested by Dr. O. F. Melby at the time the lodge was founded.

Lodge president Robert Stroble opened the banquet program with a welcome to visiting dignitaries and other guests, then introduced toastmaster Carrol Juven of Fargo, ND. Norway's national anthem and the "Star Spangled Banner" were sung by the group. Soloist Arne Samuelson, accompanied by his wife Elvira, sang Norwegian and English songs and his wife joined him in a vocal duet later, accompanied by Myrtle Stenberg.

Visiting dignitaries from the Sons of Norway were introduced and spoke briefly and representation from several other area lodges was acknowledged. A poem written by charter member Sam Hetland entitled "Et dikt a dvele med" was read in Norwegian by Myrtle Myrin. Hetland then gave the English interpretation of the poem which expresses his memories and longing for his childhood home in Norway.

The Hetlands' daughter, Mary Lampi of Grand Rapids, also a member of the Sons of Norway, pinned a heritage pin on her father's lapel, the two flags on the pin symbolizing the two countries cited as dear to the poet's heart.

Among special guests introduced were Orville Prestholdt, supreme director; Ole C. Solem, Duluth, First District president; Ellef Erlien, First District director; Alden Pederson, insurance representative; Herman Kjos, past supreme director; Lawrence Aase and Omar Bain, past First District directors.

The banquet program ended with the singing of "America" and dancing followed. Later in the evening coffee and a variety of Norwegian delicacies was served. Decorations included flowers and flags of the two countries, waitresses were in Norwegian costume and a display of articles from Norway was arranged for viewing. Distinguished guests at the gathering were presented with corsages from the lodge.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, I am a new Christian and summer time to me is the most special time of the year. I love to go fishing, camping, and just in general getting away on the weekends. Some of my Christian friends say that it is wrong to miss services, and that I should assemble with other Christians even if I am out of town. What does the Bible say about this?

A. Heb. 10:25 says "not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much more, as ye see the second coming of Christ approaching."

Public worship and assembling ourselves together is something that is very important to God. He designed it for a way to build relationships with one another and to help encourage and support one another when we face trials and difficulties in this life.

Jn. 14:21 says, "He that hath my commandments' and practices them, he it is that loveth me."

When you and I obey God's word such as Heb. 10:25, it is a sign that we love God.

Matt. 22:37 says, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind."

Matt. 22:39 says, "and the second commandment is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

People who really love God, love God's people and love to be around them.

In Acts, chapter 2, we find the early church loved one another so much that they didn't want to be apart from each other. Acts 2:42 says "they continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching, spiritual fellowship, eating meals together, and praying for each other."

Today we are finding the spirit of apostasy is creeping into the average church. Apostasy means a falling away, or slowly sliding away, from our diligent committment to Jesus Christ and the Word of God.

II Tim. 3:4 teaches that in the last days people will become lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God.

Lk. 8:14 teaches that Satan will hinder many Christians from making spiritual progress by the cares, riches and pleasures of this life.

God doesn't mind us enjoying many of the decent pleasures that there are in this life, as long as we don't enjoy them at the expense of forsaking the assembling of ourselves together when God's people get together.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

VA Salutes 60,000 Nurses This Week

Veterans administration, which operates the largest organized nursing service in the world, is saluting its 60,000 nurses, licensed practical nurses and nursing assistants during national nurses week, May 2-8.

"In every state in the nation, these employees help America's veterans to regain health, live with chronic disease and disability, or die with dignity," stated VA administrator Harry N. Walters. Ceremonies have been set in many of VA's 172 hospitals and clinics on Friday when national nurses day will be observed.

ROLE REVERSAL was evident recently as residents and staff of Oakland Park nursing home took the opportunity to give special recognition to volunteers who donate freely of their time to make life more pleasant for the residents. From left, activities director Lois Anderson observed as residents Annie Lindblom and Olga Hess served punch to volunteer Mrs. Howard Hodne. At right, resident Florence Kinney sampled her punch.

FILLING UP 10 brand new motorcycles (identical except for color) with gasoline, was one of the details which had to be completed in preparation for motorcycle training classes now being conducted in Thief River Falls. According to instructors Mike Lehrer and Doug Engstrom, the course is designed to teach riders good riding habits and handling skills without being subjected to the dangers of riding on the street. Vernon Lee, manager of Thief River Oil, who filled the bikes, noted that the total sale came to about $4. Although the machines already had some gas in them, good mileage is one reason often cited for the popularity of motorcycling. An article on the motorcycle safety class is planned for a future edition of the Times.

Meet May 10 To Reorganize Saddle Club

Reorganizational meeting of the Thief River Falls saddle club — a 60-year-old organization which is presently suffering a lack of membership — will be conducted next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Florence's Cafe in Thief River Falls.

Persons involved in the reorganizational effort emphasize that the club will exist to enrich, educate and share fellowship among horse owners regardless of the breed of horse owned or the specific interests of the owners.

In addition to the competition provided by the traditional shows, the club plans to offer non-competitive activities for adults, young people and families including picnics, trail rides, seminars and fun days.

Speaker at the May 10 meeting will be Dr. Lyle Kenner, DVM, who will discuss "Preparing Your Horse for Spring". A question and answer period will follow and lunch will be served.

"If you have in the past been a member or are considering seeking out a club, come to this meeting," the reorganization group states in its public invitation. "Bring a friend, come as a family, share your ideas to help strengthen one of this area's oldest clubs."

PIZZA FACTORY established in the basement of St. Bernard's Catholic church on Saturday created 1,400 pizzas and raised about $1300 to assist in operation of St. Bernard's school. Families of students took orders for the pizzas, offered in three varieties, during the first two weeks in April, with an incentive prize of $20 offered to the student whose family sold the most. That prize was won by Kay Dondelinger, a fifth grader who sold 76 pizzas. Over 52 parents and students volunteered their services to work on the assembly line, making the project successful enough that, according to Betty Gonsorowski of the finance committee, they hope to make it an annual event.

LAWRENCE A. McDOWELL
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA 56701

TO THE VOTERS OF INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 564:

Education in the State of Minnesota and across the country is undergoing some of the greatest changes we have seen in many years. There is presently, probably more so than ever before, a need to have people on your School Board who have a good understanding of the educational system and how it functions.

I am a candidate for re-election to the School Board of Independent School District No. 564 first of all because I have a keen interest in youth. I believe that the education which a person receive is critical in shaping his or her future.

Secondly, I have nine years of experience as a School Board member. This gives me a good understanding of the educational system and how it functions.

Thirdly, It is necessary to be innovative to provide our children with the best possible education we can. This must be done while remaining responsible to those who have placed me in office.

I have the interest, experience and innovative ideas to continue to represent the best interests of the children and voters of School District No. 564.

Your vote on May 17, 1983, will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Larry Mc Dowell

Hill: Many Critics But Few Helpers

"Many criticize public education, few have suggestions to help," is the reaction by president Donald C. Hill of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) in the wake of a barrage of criticism-comment-cuts from a national panel, the Citizens league and state government.

"What we really need in education," observes Hill, "is leadership. That rarely comes from a panel or a blue ribbon committee. Those who get elected to public office must deliver when they get into office."

Hill's response is triggered by the recent report from the Reagan administration's commission on excellence in education, which calls for sweeping changes in public education.

"It's an exciting report," says Hill, "but, if it's to be implemented, there will have to be additional billions of dollars committed to public education, together with a big boost from the Reagan administration, which — judging from its record — is not likely.

"The commission's report also calls for far greater national leadership in education — of which there has been great scarcity — as well as state leadership, of which we also have seen little."

Hill points out that there's no support in the report for tuition tax credits ("to which MEA is adamantly opposed"), vouchers ("which we also vigorously oppose"), cuts in federal aid to education ("the federal government should spend more on public education, not less"), or for abolition of the new U.S. department of education ("even though President Reagan has publicly announced a vendetta against the department").

In a weekend news conference, the Citizens league (in its "Appeal to the Legislature and the Governor") calls for building "more quality into services" and getting "control over spending increases."

It also calls for taking "some concrete steps toward achieving quality in elementary - secondary education" and moving "more of the decisions on distribution of state funds for higher education to the students and the systems."

"It never ceases to amaze me that there are those who expect to improve what is perceived as a bad situation by cutting funds and firing those expected to do the improving," Hill said.

He points out that in 1982-83 Minnesota's basic foundation allowance for local public schools was cut from $1,416 to $1,313 per pupil unit, a reduction of $103 or 7.3 per cent per pupil unit.

At the same time, categorical programs (programs that get specific funding, as opposed to block, or general, funding) were cut 9.9 per cent. Total monetary cut was $135 million.

At the same time, there was a cut of approximately $237 million in state aids, which was shifted to local property taxes, he said, and at the same time, there was a two per cent cut — approximately $30 million — in the state's teacher retirement contribution, which was shifted to teachers.

School districts also are suffering, Hill explains, because of the property tax shift and because they lose interest when the state holds back payments of aids, interrupting cash flow.

That makes "a whopping total of more than $400 million in cuts — for one year", Hill summarizes, "the second year of the biennium, which was funded for about $1.5 billion — a 25 per cent cut in that one year.

"And," Hill predicts, "it'll get worse — there's a proposal to make even bigger shifts.

"Even the $1,475 per pupil unit for the 1983-85 biennium, supported by the governor and leaders in the legislature, provides only a meager $59 increase — or 4.2 per cent — above the expected $1,416 this biennium (which never materialized) — not even enough to keep up with inflation, let alone improve the situation," he said.

Then there's the firing of teachers — euphemistically described as "unrequested leaves", RIFs (reductions in force) estimated by MEA research at some 2,500 this year.

"It boggles the mind," Hill concludes, "that the education community is expected to do better — with far less money and far fewer practitioners.

"In short, public education needs leadership, retention of qualified practitioners — and adequate funding. It does not need more cuts — charitably referred to as unallotments — or more unfounded criticism."

DPS Offers Safety Tips For Joggers

Average jogger is painfully aware of the afflictions that can hamper runners, but many give little or no thought to an equally sinister hazard that could sneak up on a runner at any time: the average American motorist, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

In 1982 in Minnesota, 78 pedestrians were killed and 1,397 pedestrians were injured, including a number of people who were jogging.

Public safety commissioner Paul Tschida recommends some basic safety precautions for runners:

—Joggers should not run on roads after dark.

—Always run or walk facing traffic, rather than with traffic. When running against traffic, joggers are better able to anticipate and react to the movement of vehicles nearest them.

—Joggers should run on the shoulder or close enough to the edge of the road so that vehicles in the nearest lane do not have to alter their paths.

—Joggers who run with others should run single file if there is not enough room on the shoulder for more than one person.

—It's a good idea for joggers to be familiar with the route they're taking. Drive through the route to check it out before running the course.

—Joggers are urged to carry some type of identification. It's also a good idea to wear an identification bracelet listing blood type and any medical allergies.

—Since joggers are pedestrians, they are required by law to obey all pedestrian traffic laws. Joggers should be aware that intersections are particularly dangerous, and never cross against a red traffic light. In addition, joggers should be cautious when crossing intersections at night and should wear light colored clothing and reflective tape for higher visibility. Pedestrians do not have the right of way in roadways, except under certain conditions, such as crossing with walk or green signals.

"Through courteous and knowledgeable use of our roadways, all of us can safely share Minnesota roads. Safety is a cooperative agreement between joggers, bicyclists and motorists," said Tschida.

Mental Illness Affects One Of Three Families

Behind one out of every three doors in America is someone with some form of mental illness. That's over 37 million who suffer from depression, anxiety, stress or emotional disability. At least another 50 million men, women and children suffer the anxiety of relating to a family member with a mental disability.

Mental illness is sending more people to hospitals than cancer, lung and heart disease combined; it ranks third as the reason for social security disability, ninth as the cause of physician office visits, and tenth in the area of work loss.

The direct medical costs for mental illness treatment annually are in excess of $19 billion or 12 per cent of the GNP. The indirect and hidden costs are anybody's guess.

Mental illness acounts for 11 per cent of the total health costs in America, but receives only four per cent of the health research dollars. This country spends $150 per citizen on cancer and heart research, but only $4 per person on research in the field of mental and emotional disorders.

Mental Health association of Minnesota theme for this year's observation of mental health month is "Open the Door to Help." It's an invitation to the 19 million Americans who seek no treatment at all for their problems to open their door to help.

Strict Pasture Rotation Aids Forage Value

Cattlemen can double their pasture's carrying capacity, provide a more digestible, protein-rich forage and encourage successful rebreeding by putting cows and calves on a strict pasture rotation this summer.

"Ideally, the cattleman should be working three different pastures," says Dr. Ralph Yoder, beef production manager at Fort Dodge, Iowa. "The first pasture can be grazed for two weeks, then shift cattle to another for two weeks and a third for two more weeks."

Limit the second rotation period to 10 days to two weeks in each pasture and then move to a three-week schedule for the third rotation period, Yoder advises.

"Rotating pastures gives grass time to grow to the leafy, six to eight-inch height that provides the best nutrition for cattle," Yoder says. "Smaller, leafy plants are tender and easy for cattle to digest. They're high in soluble carbohydrates and low in lignin, a hard-to-digest fibrous material."

Older plants with more stem have a greater percentage of lignin and less feed value.

With no rotation cattleman can run only one cow-calf unit per three to five acres, but by rotating pastures an acre will support one cow-calf unit, Yoder says.

For best performance, apply fertilizer on each pasture after grazing, Yoder suggests. Base fertilization on soil test results.

Nutritious pasture grass will grow heavier weaning calves and cows that gain well and are in good body condition to make milk and breed back more easily, Yoder concludes.

Jury, Rustad Win Tennis Titles

Thief River Falls' Bill Jury was a champion at No. 2 singles and was also on a title-winning No. 1 doubles team over the weekend for the University of Minnesota-Duluth tennis squad in the 1983 Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) tournament at Fargo.

At the same time, Thief River Falls' Mitch Rustad was a runner-up at No. 1 singles and was on a title-winning No. 1 doubles team for the University of North Dakota tennis team in the 1983 North Central Conference (NCC) tournament at Sioux Falls, S.D.

Jury and Rustad were the top two players on those strong Lincoln high school tennis teams coached by Whitey Olson during the late 1970's and 1980.

Duluth won the NIC tournament with 40 points, finishing well ahead of runner-up Northern State with 25.

Jury played No. 2 singles throughout the year for the Bulldogs and teammed with No. 1 singles player Scott Kellet, a senior from Duluth, to win the NIC doubles championship after his title-winning performance in singles.

University of Northern Colorado topped runner-up UND 42½ to 34½ for the NCC title.

Rustad played No. 1 singles throughout the year for the Sioux, owning a 22-3 record, and teammed with No. 2 singles player Dean Rudrud, a sophomore from Grand Forks, to win the NCC doubles championship after his runner-up finish in singles.

Rustad's season was extended by an invitation to play in the NCAA Division II national tennis tournament May 12-15 at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, Texas. Rustad and Rudrud were both selected for the tournament, which is by invitation only, and will play in both singles and doubles. Season-long partners in doubles, Rustad and Rudrud were 19-6 this spring.

NCAA Division II national tennis tournament is made up of 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams. Jury and Kellet were hoping to get an invitation to the event, but have yet to hear from the selection committee. Last tennis players from UND to play in the nationals were Tom Wynne and Rick Dahlen in 1977.

Rustad and Jury are both juniors.

Sabo, Hickerson May Meet

University of Wisconsin junior Scott Sabo of Thief River Falls and University of Minnesota freshman Bryan Hickerson of Bemidji, a pair of lefthanded pitchers, may square off against each other Sunday as the Gophers host the Badgers in Big Ten baseball. The two teams meet for 1 p.m. doubleheaders both Saturday and Sunday at Siebert Field in Minneapolis.

Sabo is expected to pitch Sunday, and if Minnesota coach John Anderson, as expected, uses his same starting rotation for the third consecutive weekend, Hickerson would also be pitching one of the games Sunday.

Both Sabo and Hickerson are 2-3 for the year in a conference dominated by the batters at this point. The Gophers, for example, are hitting .392 as a team and have five batters hitting .458 or better. Hickerson in 27 innings has given up 34 hits, 27 runs, 21 walks and has 24 strike-outs while carrying an unattractive 7.67 earned-run-average.

It's been a tough season on Sabo, too, who was the losing pitcher in an 11-9 loss to Iowa Saturday. An arthritic toe has given Sabo problems this spring, forcing him to alter his pitching motion. However, he's still a certain selection for the June 3 major league baseball draft, with Milwaukee and Kansas City both expressing a great deal of interest in his 92-mile-per-hour fast ball. Bad weather hasn't helped Sabo or the rest of the Wisconsin pitchers, either, with weekend doubleheaders against Iowa the first time the Badgers have been able to play at home this spring.

Minnesota, after sweeping four games from Illinois last weekend, leads the Big Ten West Division with a 7-1 record, followed by Iowa 5-3, Northwestern 4-4, Wisconsin 5-7 and Illinois 3-9. The Gophers are 17-18 for the year. The Badgers are 19-12. Top two teams in both the East and West Division standings meet in the Big Ten baseball playoffs.

Sabo, in addition to his major league draft situation, has been approached by U.S. Olympic officials about participating in the National Sports Festival this summer in Colorado.

Warren Boys, Crookston Girls Win Quent Jones Track Titles

Strong winds and chilly temperatures made for less-than-ideal high school track conditions Tuesday, but a Thief River Falls Quent Jones invitational meet that has had a history of weather problems ran smoothly as Warren boys and Crookston girls went home with team titles.

Listed as the 12th annual Quent Jones invitational, it was the first time the meet hasn't been weathered out since 1981, and it was the first time the girls ran along with the boys.

Crookston girls took advantage of the opportunity to score 152 points, followed by Roseau with 112, Thief River Falls 96, East Grand Forks 68, Warren 31 and Warroad 4.

In the boys' portion of the meet, Warren won with 150 points, followed by East Grand Forks with 131, Crookston 109, Thief River Falls 68, Warroad 37 and Roseau 28.

Christy Rongen of Crookston was the only double-event winner in the girls' competition, taking the 220-yard dash in 29.17 and winning the 440-yard dash in 1:05.37. The strong winds inflated most of the times, but all winning figures for the girls will go into the books as meet records since it was their first go at it.

Thief River Falls' lone win in the girls' races came in the meet-ending mile relay where sophomore Georgia Howard, junior Paula Wilkens, senior foreign exchange student Hildegunn Nyland of Norway and sophomore Stacie Kruta won easily in 4:35.78.

"I'm really happy with our performances," mentioned Thief River Falls girls coach Tom Schafer. "We scored a lot of points. You can't really go by times on a day like today, but I thought our mile relay looked awfully impressive and I thought our hurdlers did a good job — they're really coming along."

In the hurdles, Kruta, fellow sophomore Jackie Thune and junior Sherry Sabo gave the Prowlers three top six place finishes in both the 110 and 180-yard races where they placed in the same 2-4-5 positions.

There were three double-event winners among the boys, including Thief River Falls senior Lon Aune in the distance events where he won the mile in 4:51.50 and took the two-mile in 10:41.23.

Steve Berg of Crookston swept the hurdle events, winning the 120-yard highs in 17.48 and taking the 330-yard intermediates in 45.51.

Pat Bothum of East Grand Forks doubled in the sprints by winning the 100-yard dash in 11.51 and winning the 220-yard dash in 25.12.

Thief River Falls' only other first place points came from sophomore Chris Helle in the pole vault where he cleared 9-6.

Coach Tim Olson of the Thief River Falls boys' team was most impressed with Aune's showing. He came into the 1983 season regarded as one of the top distance runners in the area, but got off to a slow start in the Prowlers' first four meets.

"That's the strongest he's shown," acknowledged Olson. "He's had a tough year, and he knows it. Now maybe he can turn the corner and have a strong season."

And it's important for the rest of the team that Aune do well, admitted Olson. "He's a senior, a leader," he pointed out. "It means a lot to the other kids to see Lonnie pull out and run away from guys like he did today."

A rare chance to compete in a home meet was a big motivational factor, indicated Olson, and both the boys and girls hope to have another opportunity to run at home next Tuesday when the Thief River Falls invitational will be held at 4 p.m.

Lincoln high school boys will first compete Friday in the Elks Track-O-Rama at Grand Forks Red River Friday starting at 5 p.m.

TRF Defeats Detroit Lakes Net Team 5-0

Thief River Falls blanked Detroit Lakes 5-0 Monday in high school tennis action on the Lakers' courts, putting the Prowlers' record at 4-4 for the year.

It was their second straight 5-0 victory in dual meet competition, matching a Thief River Falls victory at Moorhead last Thursday.

"Our kids are now starting to play better," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, who was forced to juggle his line-up a bit when Dan Imgrund, a regular in singles, missed the match because of illness.

Thief River Falls will compete in a quadrangular meet at East Grand Forks Thursday at 12-noon and will host the Green Wave Monday in a 3:15 p.m. dual.

Moorhead Scores Early In Baseball Win Over TRF

Moorhead erupted for four runs in the first inning Tuesday and went on to beat visiting Thief River Falls 7-1 in high school baseball action.

It was the Prowlers' second loss after three season-opening wins.

"The first inning was our un-doing," explained Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "We weren't mentally ready to play. We just didn't play good baseball."

Moorhead pitcher Chad Swanson checked Thief River Falls on just two base hits — both by Rick Spong.

Thief River Falls trailed 5-0 before getting a base hit — a lead-off single by Spong to start the third. Todd Ortloff walked and Spong scored on a fielder's choice on a ball hit by Jim Hallamek. Although they left the bases loaded that inning, that was the extent of the Prowlers' offense for the day.

Moorhead's big first inning included a hit-batsman, two walks and run-scoring doubles by Swanson and Kurt Kovash (a two-run job).

A 12-2 Moorhead decision in the junior varsity game yesterday dropped Thief River Falls' B squad record to 1-2.

Thief River Falls will return home to host rival Bemidji, the defending Region 8AA champion, Thursday in a 4:30 p.m. game. Thief River Falls junior varsity had its Thursday game against Bemidji scratched, but will play Tri-County Friday in a 4:30 p.m. doubleheader at Karlstad.

MSHSL Adopts New Football Playoff Format For '84 Season

Expanded state-wide section football playoffs, which could involve 288 teams leading to 40 berths in the state high school football championships in five classes, was approved for 1984 and 1985 seasons by the Board of Directors of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) at its April 28 meeting, reports MSHSL director of publications Larry Larson.

New plan differs from the current playoff format where only conference champions or independents qualify for state playoff spots. The current plan, which involves 72 teams, will stay in effect during the 1983 season.

Effective in 1984, four teams will be seeded in each section playoff of Class AA, following nine regular-season games, while Classes A, B, C, and Nine-Man will have the option to determine whether it wants eight regular-season games and an eight-team section playoff or nine regular-season games and a four-team section playoff. Each class will be comprised of eight sections.

New proposed change will have no effect on the state championships where eight teams in each class, or 40 in all of five classes, will participate during a three-week period in November.

An ad hoc committee studying the new section playoff format recommended to the MSHSL board that the smallest 96 schools playing 11-man football will be in Class C, with the next 96 smallest in Class B and next 96 smallest in Class A. Remaining 11-man football playing schools, which numbers 72, are in Class AA. All 108 Nine-Man schools will be in the Nine-Man division. The board adopted that recommendation, using spring of 1982 enrollment (average daily membership) figures for grades 9-10-11 to determine enrollment classifications.

Current enrollment figures and a breakdown by classes has Class AA with 800 students and above in the upper three grades followed by Class A with 799-320; Class B with 319 and under (largest 50 per cent of conferences in Class B) and Class C with 319 and under (smallest 50 per cent of conferences in Class C); and Nine-Man playing schools.

Under the plan adopted for 1984 and 1985 changes alter the dividing lines between the classifications as follows: Class AA — 835 students and above; Class A — 825-321; Class B — 308-182; Class C — 181-39; and Nine-Man.

Forty separate section committees, eight in each class, will be organized in order to develop procedures and guidelines for administering section playoffs. League office will assist each section in naming a host school for a first meeting, and provide each section committee with a recommended agenda and model seeding procedures for their consideration.

Rationale for the change in the football playoff format follows:

1 — It will prevent a larger school from competing in a championship series in a classification that is smaller than that schools enrollment classification.

2 — It will eliminate current inequities that exist in the size of conferences throughout the state (currently it varies from 4 to 14).

3 — It will treat independent schools in an equal manner with schools who are members of a conference.

4 — It will increase playoff participation by the member schools more than four-fold.

5 — It will increase interest because teams will retain eligibility for qualification to the playoffs throughout the season.

6 — It will encourage schools to schedule games within their enrollment and section classification.

7 — It will provide for local control of section playoffs by special committees elected by the member schools of each section.

8 — It will provide MSHSL awards as with other MSHSL region and section tournaments.

Schools are assigned to sections based on enrollment, geographical location and conference membership. Section assignments which follow were approved by the MSHSL board of directors for 1984 and 1985 football season.

Doubleheader Sweep Puts Northland Record At 9-3

Northland community college baseball team improved its 1983 season record to 9-3 Tuesday with a doubleheader sweep in the wind at Grand Forks over the University of North Dakota junior varsity 6-5 and 10-4.

"The wind was vicious," reported Northland coach Chet Engelman, whose team completed its second twinbill sweep over the Sioux JV in less than a week. The Northmen beat them 10-2, 14-3 last Wednesday.

Northland will face Hibbing in a pair of weekend doubleheaders in Thief River Falls, hosting the Cardinals at 1 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Northland snapped a 5-5 tie with a run in the top of the seventh inning to defeat the University of North Dakota 6-5 in Tuesday's doubleheader opener.

Winning run scored when Kevin Sanders stroked a one-out triple to left-center and courtesy runner (mandated by the college speed-up rules necessitating designated pinch runners for the pitchers and catchers) Todd Graalum scored on an infield ground-out by Bob Rockwood.

The two teams swapped first inning runs, with UND taking a 4-3 lead in the third. Northland scored in the first when Scott McKeever singled, stole second, moved up on an error and came home on a wild pitch. Mark Lundin singled in the third, scoring on a squeeze bunt by Ladd Bjugson, who reached base on a play at the plate and later scored himself on a single by Todd Bergland.

Northland took a temporary 5-4 lead in the top of the fourth as Joe Ramiller beat out an infield hit and Lundin singled up the middle. An error scored Ramiller and a single by Bergland scored Lundin.

UND tied it in the bottom of the fifth, but lost it in the seventh.

Northland out-hit UND 8-7, but also collected four of the game's five errors.

Region 13 Baseball Pairing Are Set Up

Host Northland community college will take on Normandale in the opening round of the 1983 National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region 13 baseball tournament, scheduled to be played in Thief River Falls Friday, May 13.

It'll be a 1 p.m. start for the Northmen and the Lions of Bloomington. First game of the four-team, three-game tournament will be played at 10 a.m. that day, but the opponents have not yet been decided.

Northland is in the tournament as the mid-season leader in the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division, and the Northmen are hosting the event because under a rotating schedule, it's the Northwest Division's turn to stage the tournament this spring.

Normandale is in the field as the mid-season leader in the MCCC Southeast Division.

Several possibilities remain for that 10 a.m. tournament draw. First, the MCCC Southwest Division mid-season leader must face the Wisconsin representative and the MCCC Northeast Division mid-season leader must face the North Dakota representative. Those winners will advance to the Region 13 field in Thief River Falls.

But even preceding those qualifying games are MCCC playoff games to break mid-season divisional first place ties. Golden Valley Lutheran and North Hennepin met to determine the Southwest Division representative, with the Norsemen winning 7-4 Monday, while Anoka-Ramsey and Lakewood were to meet to settle the Northeast Division question.

Region 13 championship game will be played at 4 that Friday afternoon.

Kennedy-Hallock scored three runs in the third and two more in the fifth.

Caldis is a Grand Forks attorney who has served on the UND Alumni Association Board of Directors as a representative to the UND Athletic Board of Control for many years.

He came to UND in 1938 after a standout high school athletic and scholastic career in Thief River Falls. At UND he lettered as a two-way back in football during the 1939-40-41 seasons, starting every game but one. He also played basketball for the Sioux in 1938-39 and was a member of the track team in 1941. He was elected a football co-captain in 1941 with Hall of Famer Walter Dobler, now a Grafton, N.D. resident, and was also named UND's most improved football player in 1941.

As a Lincoln high school senior, Caldis was a member of the Prowlers' unbeaten 7-0 football team in 1937 and also played on the Prowlers' unbeaten 27-0 state championship basketball team that winter.

After graduating from UND in 1942 with a commerce degree, Caldis entered the United States Navy, being commissioned an ensign in 1943 at Columbia University, serving as PT Boat captain in the South Pacific and with distinction in several battles. After honorable discharge from the Navy, he returned to the UND Law School, receiving a Juris Doctor degree in 1948. While a student he was a member of Iron Mask, campus honorary selected by UND presidents. He has served as Grand Forks county states attorney from 1950-56, as Grand Forks city attorney from 1957-75 and currently is president of Caldis & Arneson, Ltd., a Grand Forks legal firm.

Brenkus, a long-time civil servant in Texas, came to UND from Whiting, Ind., to play football. Brenkus was a two-time All-North Central Conference selection as a runningback and was considered one of the top backs in the midwest during his Sioux career. He lettered 1937-38-39 as a right halfback and was a sprinter on the Sioux championship track teams in 1938 and 1939, serving as track captain his senior year.

Brenkus graduated in 1940 with a bachelor of science degree in education. In 1940 he was one of 40 students who completed requirements for pilot training by the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Authority and later in World War II served as a pilot in the U.S. Army Air Corps, serving on 27 bases in the U.S. and in Hawaii and on the island of Kwajalien. He was discharged a major in April 1946 and went to work for a refining company in Whiting, Ind. After that he worked for financial concerns in Houston and Galveston, Texas, 1947-66, and then for the city of Galveston, until his retirement in October 1982.

Robertson was an outstanding UND basketball center, lettering in 1936-37-38, serving as team captain his senior year and also being named to the All-North Central Conference team that year.

A native of Willow City, N.D., Robertson graduated in 1938 with a B.S. degree in commerce and accepted an appointment as a Marine Corps second lieutenant that spring. He immediately entered the corps and served with great distinction for almost 34 years in the USMC, retiring April 30, 1972.

Robertson earned a number of medals and decorations for outstanding and valorous service in the USMC, including the Navy Cross on Iwo Jima in World War II for personal heroism and two awards of the Distinguished Service Medal in Vietnam.

Robertson also has won a number of other personal awards, including a Sioux Award, decorations and letters of commendation from the governments of the United States, Korea and Vietnam. He is listed in Who's Who in America, and the Significant Sig Award from his Sigma Chi fraternity and is an honor graduate of the National War College and has received service awards from the cities of Oceanside, San Clemente and Vista, California and Jacksonville, North Carolina. In all he has received over 30 military medals, awards and decorations.

Robertson served all over the world as a USMC officer, including tours of duty as commander of units and stations in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba and Camp Pendleton, Cal. and had several tours of duty in Washington, D.C.

The three men to be inducted May 26 will bring the total of ex-UND athletes inducted into its Athletic Hall of Fame to 79. Three other UND-related men will be inducted in July 13-16 during the Sioux Rendezvous reunion of all UND letterwinners and coaches and another 10 are scheduled for induction during Homecoming festivities Oct. 8.

National Wildlife Federation
News Release

Name a domestic animal raised on 2,000 farms in the Southern hemisphere whose meat and soft hair are in great demand.

Sheep? Llamas?

Neither. The animals are red deer — the world's newest domestic stock — and raising them is a booming business in New Zealand.

Red deer, originally captured from high-country forests, are joining sheep in New Zealand pastures, according to this month's issue of International Wildlife, the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

All domestic animals are descendants of wild species. But what's different about New Zealand's red deer is that the domestication has taken place in a few years, rather than millenia. The first red deer farm was started in only 1970. Today, the country has a herd of more than 180,000 animals.

That growth is even more remarkable when one considers that the first deer arrived from Europe in 1851. Previously, plants and flightless birds had reigned unchallenged in New Zealand, and people had been the first mammals to arrive in about 950 A.D., according to International Wildlife.

In those New Zealand surroundings, the deer found abundant food year-round — and no competitors. Within a year, their breeding had adjusted to suit the new seasons of the Southern hemisphere; they survived winter easily, grew quickly, and bred early in life.

As its population increased rapidly, however, the deer's overgrazing denuded many slopes. After deer trampled out vegetation, soil slid into valleys, causing floods and clogging hydroelectric dam reservoirs with silt.

But what seemed like an ecological disaster was to become an economic boom as farmers realized the profit potential in domesticating deer.

Since the first deer farm was started, New Zealand's animal scientists at the Invermay Animal Research Station have uncovered some interesting facts:

+ Deer produce over 40 per cent more meat per acre than sheep or cattle.

+ Deer raised in captivity may achieve commercial body weight within 15 months, compared with 30 months in the wild.

+ Pasture that supports one dairy cow will support four deer.

New Zealand deer farmers hope that the venison industry will one day rival the country's massive wool trade, according to International Wildlife. Venison is a highly prized meat, considered a luxury item in many restaurants.

Venison is not the only product of New Zealand's deer farms. "Velvet," the soft hair that covers a stag's antlers and is shed every year, is another. One farmer claims that "velvet" from one stag is worth as much as the wool from 24 sheep.

In China, Korea and the Soviet Union, velvet is used in treatment of heart disorders and anemia. Doctors there say it dilates blood vessels and stimulates production of red blood cells.

Deer farming has also helped address New Zealand's erosion problems, according to International Wildlife. Deer populations have diminished and domestic populations have increased, improving vegetation cover on eroded slopes. Some alpine forests are regaining their original splendor. Bird habitat has improved, and spring flowers are reappearing.

Ken Miers, the director of the environmental division of the New Zealand Forest Service, says the deer are now "absolutely under control. It's the best thing that ever happened, as far as we're concerned."

In the conservation arena, Ducks Unlimited's field and administrative staff of 66 is one of the most well respected and includes six men who have successfully completed their PHD's; 29 who have masters degrees and 28 who have bachelors degrees in wildlife management. Each averaged 16 years of professional wildlife experience before being hired by Ducks Unlimited. Eighteen members of the staff are former directors of state fish and game agencies.

Grizzly Bear Population Is Being Studied

Agreement has been reached on a plan to improve the chances of survival for the threatened grizzly bear, G. Ray Arnett, Interior Department Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, has announced.

Agreement, signed jointly by Arnett and John B. Crowell, Agriculture Department (USDA) Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment, establishes an interagency grizzly bear committee, responsible for implementing federal and state efforts designed to encourage the recovery of the grizzly bear population. It will coordinate research and management on all grizzly bears in the lower 48 states and will make recommendations to federal agency heads and state governors concerning efforts to protect grizzly bears.

"Assistant Secretary Crowell and I are committing our departments to ensure that the grizzly bear does not join the ranks of other wildlife species that have become extinct," Arnett said. "This agreement will improve communication and coordination among all federal and state agencies that are involved in grizzly bear research and management and will involve high-level officials who can make sure that necessary actions are accomplished."

Members of the new committee are the regional directors of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and National Park Service; three regional foresters of USDA's Forest Service; and one representative each from the states of Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

In addition, other officials of the Fish and Wildlife Service, National Park Service, and Forest Service from the Washington state area, and a representative from Washington state government are invited to attend and participate in meetings.

Arnett said the interagency committee replaces the former grizzly bear steering committee and significantly increases the area to be included in the grizzly bear study and management program. Efforts of the previous committee centered on the Yellowstone ecosystem located primarily in Wyoming. The new interagency committee's work will include grizzly bears in the northern ecosystem of Montana and Idaho as well as Yellowstone area bears. The status of a small grizzly bear population in northwestern Washington will also be of conern to the group.

Interagency committee will have three subcommittees for the Yellowstone Ecosystem, the Northern Ecosystem and research. Members of the subcommittees will include national park superintendents and national forest supervisors, the Bureau of Land Management director for Montana, representatives from the Fish and Wildlife Service and the affected states, and a representative from each Indian Reservation having grizzly bears.

Grizzly bear is listed as a "threatened" species in the 48 contiguous states under the endangered species act. There are fewer than 1,000 grizzlies in the 48 states, most of which occur in the states of Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. Grizzly bears once ranged over most western states in numbers estimated at between 50 and 100 thousand. Wildlife biologists are concerned that the status of the grizzly bear is being significantly affected by human activities such as poaching, habitat destruction and disturbance, and recreation.

Over the past 46 years, Ducks Unlimited has spent more than $146 million on 2,100 projects encompassing more than three million acres in Canada and Mexico.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lemm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

Receiving of Bids for Rental of Fully Operated Excavation Equipment

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS — Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle-River-Snake River Watershed District, 122 West Johnson Avenue, Warren, Minnesota until 9:00 A.M. o'clock on May 26, 1983 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes may range from ¾ cubic yards and larger and must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a servis recorder.

The work to be done consists of but is not limited to the clearing and disposal of trees and brush and the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks and the leveling of spoilbanks. The work required and the location of the work will be designated by the engineer for the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following; price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payment will be made on a monthly basis. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, that equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmans compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Soo Increases Purchase Bid To Buy Trackage

Soo Line Railroad company has presented a supplemental offer to the trustee of the Rock Island Railroad company covering the purchase for $11,500,000 of 97 additional miles of rail line.

In March, the court overseeing liquidation of Rock Island assets gave preliminary approval to a $93 million offer from the Chicago and North Western Transportation company (CNW) for approximately 720 miles of line over a competing offer of $88.5 million from the Soo for 672 miles of line. Today's supplemental offer raises to 770 miles the total miles of trackage proposed for purchase by the Soo.

"Because of differences between the offers of the Soo and CNW, the two purchase agreements could not accurately be compared by the trustee and creditors of the Rock Island," states Thomas M. Beckley, chairman and chief executive officer of the soo. "To eliminate this confusion, Soo has presented a supplemental offer of $11.5 million to the trustee to acquire all the properties originally sought by the CNW as well as line segments above and beyond their offer.

"Soo's purpose in adding these properties to its offer is to provide a return to the estate that is clearly superior to the competing CNW offer and provide disposition of as much of the trustee's property as possible, the latter a concern that has been expressed by both the trustee and creditors."

Coinciding with today's new supplemental offer, the Soo filed with the Interstate Commerce commission its own applications for approval to acquire the lines as well as objections to the CNW application which was filed earlier.

Contained in the Soo's supplemental offer are line segments from St. Paul to Rosemount, (18.6 miles), Bricelyn to Rake, Iowa (6.2 miles), Ocheyedan to Sibley, Iowa (12.4 miles), Royal to Manson, Iowa (55.9 miles) and certain trackage and land in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa area. Soo's original purchase offer also contains line segments from Iowa Falls to Belmond, Iowa and Clarion to Goldfield, Iowa, which are not part of the CNW offer.

"The Soo Line does not intend to operate any of the line segments contained in the supplemental offer," Beckley continued, "but rather to dispose of them by sale to other interested parties who will continue rail operations wherever economically feasible.

"It is expected that there are interested parties who would undertake to purchase several of these line segments which are not necessary to successful Soo operation.

". . . The original Soo offer was confined to portions of the Rock Island system which we believe could be viable and make a productive contribution to the Soo rail system as a whole. With the exception of the short segment of the Rock Island east-west mainline through Des Moines and West Des Moines, it is the intention of the Soo to upgrade and maintain service over all of the Rock Island trackage south to be acquired by the original offer."

Soo's original offer proposed acquisition of 672 miles of line including the Rock Island main line from Northfield to Kansas City, MO.

MOTHER LOOKED OUT WINDOWS

For many of us that's why our lives have been broad and rich and full.

Mother thought about that world outside which we must be ready for.

She saw the challenges and opportunities we would encounter . . . tried to prepare us for them.

She turned her own eyes to the Light that brightens life. She sought to share with us her beliefs, her faith.

On Mother's Day we're having our Family Reunion in church. We're grateful to God for the windows He has provided, and for a Mother on whom their Light was never wasted.

Farm Practices Can Help Fight Water Pollution

In agricultural areas, spring is a time of great activity: tilling, fertilizing and planting fields. Unfortunately, these activities also make spring a time of increased water pollution. From April to June each year, lakes and streams receive greater amounts of nonpoint source pollution in farming communities, according to the Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA).

Nonpoint source pollution, also called runoff pollution, cannot be traced to a specific "point source," such as pipe discharging wastewater directly into a river. Instead, this type of pollution occurs when rainwater and snow melts wash pollutants into surface waters.

For instance, soil particles may be eroded from stream banks, construction sites, farms, logging and mining operations — anywhere than unvegetated soil is exposed — to cloud water and fill in lake and stream bottoms with sediments.

Along with soil particles, farm and lawn fertilizers and animal manures from feedlots and fields can be carried to surface waters as runoff. Most of these fertilizers contain phosphorus and other nutrients that work as well in water as they do on land. Just three pounds of phosphorus can grow a ton of algae in a lake over 60 days in the summer, so runoff of fertilizers can cause lakes and streams to become overgrown with weeds and algae.

Presticides and herbicides from farms and lawns and de-icing chemicals from roadways can also be carried into our state's waters as runoff pollution, affecting both water quality and aquatic wildlife, MPCA says.

With over 50 per cent of Minnesota's land being used for farming and grazing, agricultural runoff is a major contributor to water pollution problems in the state.

Minnesota River in the southern half of the state is an example of the effects of nonpoint source pollution. By way of tributary streams, this river receives runoff waters from one-fifth of the state's land, over 14,000 square miles. A recent study of this river by the MPCA identifies soil erosion and agricultural runoff as major sources of water pollution upstream from Shakopee. Inadequate erosion controls and well-established crop land drainage allow rainfall and snow melts to rapidly run off the watershed, carrying topsoil, manure, fertilizer and farm chemicals to the river, according to the study. These pollutants contribute to the river's water quality problems — excessive silt in the water, decreased oxygen for fish and other aquatic life, extensive algae growths and bacterial contamination.

Historically, the Minnesota River has had these same water quality problems because natural pollutants from grasslands and stream banks have washed into it since before the arrival of humans. However, 90 per cent of the watershed is now used for farming and grazing, and these activities cause the majority of the nonpoint source pollution.

In this and other agricultural regions where runoff pollution is affecting lakes and streams, human control of the land makes it possible to prevent some of these pollutants from entering Minnesota's waters. The agricultural extension service (AES) of the University of Minnesota offers farmers advice on conserving topsoil and preventing the loss of fertilizers and farm chemicals from runoff.

Use of conservation tillage techniques which leave crop residues and soil clods is identified by the AES as one way to slow the runoff of rainwater and snow melts. The resulting plant debris and rough soil surface retain more moisture for crops and capture soil sediments that might otherwise wash away. Similarly, terrace on hilly land and contour strips of grass between tilled land on slopes can slow the runoff of water and trap eroded soil particles. Untilled areas of vegetation along shores and streambanks also prevent sediments from entering surface waters. Without any erosion controls, the AES estimates that annual topsoil losses can be as high as 10 to 50 ton per acre. The extension service considers acceptable annual erosion in Minnesota to be one to five tons per acre.

It should be noted that conservation tillate replaces mechanical weed control with chemicals that prevent unwanted vegetation, MPCA stated. Because large quanities of chemicals are needed to control weeds, some methods of conservation tillage might actually increase the possibility of chemical runoff or other environmental problems. The AES can help individual farmers determine the most effective tillage method for their cropland.

By reducing runoff waters that can carry manure and farm chemicals, conservation tillage helps to hold these fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides on the fields for maximum benefits to crops at the lowest cost. According to the AES, other effective ways to retain nutrients and chemicals on crop lands are plowing manure into the soil immediately after spreading and applying fertilizer only at the rates recommended for specific soil types. Excess amounts of fertilizers and chemicals are unnecessary and may harm crops and the environment.

Runoff control practices can also be an economic benefit for farmers. By using low-tillage or no-tillage farming, the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) estimates that farmers can reduce fuel consumption by up to 80 per cent for planting crops. This is possible because conservation tillage requires lower horsepower, less equipment and fewer trips over the field, according to the USDA. Department estimates that conservation tillage can reduce topsoil losses by up to 90 per cent.

In addition, controlling runoff pollution helps to clean up murky, overgrown lakes and streams, turning them into assets for Minnesota's tourism industry, MPCA concluded.

For further information on how you can help control runoff pollution, call the AES soil extension at (612) 373-1060, the MPCA central office in Roseville at (612) 296-7373 or the regional office at Detroit Lakes, (218) 847-1519.

Who Works For Whom?

Following comments were written by Richard Lesher, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

Mr. Jones makes more money each year than you do — 35 per cent more. While you must wait until age 65 to retire with full pension benefits, Mr. Jones can retire with full benefits under his system 10 years earlier, at 55. And another thing, Mr. Jones' pension will be 56 per cent of his pretax salary — yours, most likely, will be only 30 per cent. His office is larger than yours. It is almost impossible to fire Mr. Jones and he isn't the least bit afraid of losing his job because of the recession of foreign competition.

Oh, and one last thing. Mr. Jones would like to thank you for paying his salary and his handsome pension plan.

That's right. Mr. Jones works for the federal government. He's a bureaucrat. And before you can begin to pay the rent, put food on the table, or make the car payments, Uncle Sam withholds enough of your money to pay Mr. Jones. Actually you and your neighbors finance the high salaries and unbearable pensions of 2,853,863 Mr. Jones. That is how many federal bureaucrats the taxpayer must support these days. (And that number excludes military personnel).

You may be a little annoyed, with things so tight, that your family budget is paying the salaries of bureaucrats who make more money than you do. Well, there's more. The pensions paid out to retired federal employees are indexed to rise with inflation. Only half of the workers in the private sector have any pension at all, and for those who do, three per cent are indexed to inflation.

The federal government's pension plan is so generous that more than 100,000 retired bureaucrats are now getting more money in their retirement checks than they ever made while working. It helps, of course, that the federal government's contribution to the bureaucrats' retirement system represents 33 per cent of payroll compared to an average of 17 per cent contribution by employers in the private sector.

Now, let's make one thing clear. Private employers are not pinching pennies when they fail to match the generous pay and pensions granted federal employees. They have to earn every nickel of employee pay and pensions benefits by selling products or services. The federal government simple reaches out into the taxpayers' pockets and takes what it needs.

With all those nice salaries and pensions it should be no surprise that the Washington D.C. area has a higher proportion of households earning more than $50,000 per year than any other city in the country.

And while the rest of the country is shelling out over $61 billion to pay for civilian federal employees — excluding postal workers who average more than $22,000 a year — and an additional $21 billion for pension and disability payments, there is even more to look forward to: a half-trillion dollar unfunded liability for the Civil Service Retirement System.

As you prepared your federal income tax this year and considered the inordinate federal salaries and pensions that your taxes pay for, you may have wondered about these civil servants. Do they work for us, or do we work for them?

Comp Action Needed

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

Spokesmen for rural Minnesota clashed with the big guns of organized labor Thursday in legislative maneuvering on a workers compensation bill. Fifteen rural DFLers joined with Independent-Republicans in an effort to get action on a workers comp reform package. After delay tactics and some arm twisting by the labor-dominated DFL leadership, eight of the DFLers returned to the fold and the House adjourned 64-63. But the issue if likely to surface again this week.

Along with high state income taxes, Minnesota's outrageous workers compensation premiums are a crucial factor in the state's job and business losses.

In the 50 largest payroll classifications, Minnesota's premiums are 2.5 times higher than in Missouri, 2.38 times higher than in South Dakota, and 2.22 times higher than in Wisconsin.

Minnesota's total benefits costs per one hundred thousand workers stood at $30.5 million in 1979, the most recent year for which figures have been compiled. That $30.5 million compares to $13.7 million in Wisconsin, $14.2 million in Wisconsin, $14.2 million in Iowa, and only $10.5 million in South Dakota.

For most Minnesotans, the answer is obvious: the legislature must act to reduce the cost of workers comp. But the Minnesota AFL-CIO is opposed to any bill that carries the possibility of reducing benefit levels. So far, DFL leaders are following the labor line by opposing any major workers comp reform bill.

Yet efforts by rural DFLers to bring about action on the issue may bear fruit. House DFL Majority Leader Willis Eken, who was taken by surprise in Thursday's maneuvering on the House floor, conceded that "It will send a strong message to the people negotiating that a majority of the House wants some action on workers comp this session."

An article in the Minneapolis Tribune last summer pointed out some of the abuses of Minnesota's workers comp laws. Such abuses caused a 6000 per cent jump in workers comp costs for the Metropolitan Transit Commission in just 12 years. The story pointed out that some MTC employees are making more money on workers comp than they did on the job.

We might expect that Independent-Republicans, who are not beholden to big labor, would support workers comp reform. But when rural DFLers have the courage to stand up to the AFL-CIO and the party leadership, there is a chance that we may see some action on this vital issue. With other states luring away more Minnesota businesses each year, a workers comp reform package should be one of the highest priorities for this legislative session.

In The Same Boat

Source of the following editorial is unknown:

After the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia in 1917, American Frieda Utley was one of the early and outspoken converts to the philosophy of Marx and Lenin.

"From each according to his ability to each according to his need" seemed to her ultimately fair. She called it "the grand dream."

And then, in 1940, she proclaimed her disillusion to the world with a volume called "The Dream We Lost." "The grand dream" had proved unworkable.

In the 1930s, American President Franklin Roosevelt inaugurated "the welfare state." The idea sounded great — and somewhat familiar: "From each according to his ability to each according to his need."

And taking from the rich and giving to the poor worked for a while. But one day, there were not enough rich to go around, and the handouts the poor had come to expect they are now having to re-learn to work for.

The socialist objective has proved similarly elusive in Europe. AP's Henry Gottlieb has called the roll:

Denmark was socialism's brightest showcase for 30 years — until the bills came due. Now Denmark is broke and unable to borrow more. Old-age pensions are being cut down; others, cut out.

Philip Calderbank of the European Common Market says, "There's not a county in Europe that is not trying to find ways to save money on Social Security."

Europe's governments have sought to outdo one another in lavish social benefits. They offered public money for pregnancy, for children, for students, for the handicapped, for the out-of-work and for the sick, the old and the widowed.

The Dutch government has cut back or cut out 10 categories of "benefits," including old-age benefits and civil-service pay. Italy has just cut $1 billion from old-age insurance and $1.5 billion in other pensions.

Britain has cut welfare five per cent and has begun taxing unemployment pay. Belgium is reducing unemployment pay and taxing it. West Germany, likewise. In France, an overtly socialist government has reduced unemployment benefits.

American preoccupation with America's problems has misled us to imagine that they are ours along, that it must have been something we did wrong. We all did.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Show me a home with young children and we'll show you a home where every deck of cards count out at between 37 and 51.

Wife: "Honey, will you love me even if I put on a few pounds?"
Husband: "Of course I do."

Angry Husband: "I want you to know the bank returned the check you wrote!"
Blissful Wife: "That great! What shall I buy with it this time?"

U.S. Senator
Rudy Boschwitz
reports to Minnesota

To say that my Senate office received 150,000 pieces of mail concerning withholding on interest and dividends is a fact that sounds relatively unremarkable until you consider the impact it had on the day-to-day operations of the office.

Consider these facts:

+ At the time of this writing, we have received something more than 150,000 pieces of mail since late January, either as newspaper clip-out coupons or personal letters. That's not only more mail than I have ever received on a single topic, but it is also more than my entire mail count over a complete year. I usually receive something like 500 letters per day, which comes to about 130,000 letters per year.

+ Each and every member of my staff (including my chief-of-staff) spent an hour each day just opening the mail during peak weeks — to keep us relatively up on it.

+ The influx of mail on Capitol Hill created a headache for the Postal Service — worse than any two Christmas seasons. While the Postal Service did an admirable job, our regular mail was arriving a few days later than usual. There were extreme cases, however. In one instance, another Senator told me it took 11 days for a document to travel the 150 yards between my office and his. (I still haven't determined if that is a comment on the huge influx of mail or on our own laziness in not hand-delivering it!).

+ Every constituent who writes to me deserves an answer, so we had our mail staff doing nothing but typing envelope labels into a computer, five computer terminals for 16 hours a day, and, at times, seven days a week. I surveyed those who wrote to me. For the record, here are the results (which are still coming in):

CHART OF RESPONSES TO SENATOR RUDY BOSCHWITZ CONCERNING THE WITHHOLDING OF INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS

It's okay to keep withholding	2,239
It's okay to keep withholding, but keep trying to work out the differences between the banks and the government	2,653
TOTAL TO KEEP WITHHOLDING		4,892 (14%)
Get rid of withholding	11,922
Get rid of withholding, but keep trying to work out the differences between banks and the government	14,737
TOTAL TO REPEAL WITHHOLDING		26,659 (76%)
Whatever you do, keep trying to work out the differences between the banks and the government	3,398	3,398 (10%)
TOTAL NUMBER OF RESPONSES		34,940
TOTAL NUMBER OF PEOPLE WHO WANTED US TO WORK OUT A COMPROMISE (more than one choice could be selected)		20,779 (59%)

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Larry graduated from a fine university with a good academic record. He applied for every job listed in the classified ads of a big city newspaper. He went job hunting door-to-door. No one would hire him. In a year and a half after college, he had held but one short time job as an inventory clerk in a steel mill during the annual audit. This was in a period of prosperity back in the 1960's.

Larry applied for a job with a small business that needed an accountant. They trained him, and once on the job he started proving what he was willing and able to do. He started moving up. When this small business grew and became part of a major corporation, he became a senior officer of this subsidiary. He earned the respect of those who worked with and for him.

Then this big corporation had financial trouble, and Larry's operation was closed down. With more than half a decade of good experience and references, he assumed that getting another job would be easy. He was wrong. It was now 1971, and he could not find a company willing to give him a second opportunity to prove himself.

All of the other employees in his division relocated, even where they did not have his background or record of performance. Larry, with an enlarged family (two kids) and a new motrgaged home, was in trouble.

A friend heard of Larry's problem and helped him line up another job. It wasn't an equal job to what he had enjoyed, but it was a job, and there was a potential promotion coming up when his boss retired in about a year. During this period, Larry again proved that he was a top notch employee.

Then Larry was contacted by a large bank. They offered what appeared to be a unique opportunity starting as a senior officer. He quit his current job and went to work for the bank. What he had not realized was that the bank wanted him as a "token" employee to satisfy community and legal pressures. He sat around all day with little to do, very disturbed even though he was well paid.

Then the bank lost its operations officer and Larry asked for the chance to take on this assignment involving supervision, guidance and control of more than a hundred employees.

At that point, I lost contact with Larry until I had a business transaction scheduled to close at Larry's bank. The executive vice president of the bank visited with me just before I was to leave. I asked him about Larry, explaining that I had known him for about 15 years. He told me that Larry had proved to be a miracle worker, extremely competent and conscientious when given an opportunity. He had shown that he had the potential to go all the way, so that bank had him on a promotion track to a top position as retirements took place.

Why did a fellow with so much potential and proven capability have, so much trouble getting a solid job? Well, Larry was black and had a physical disability, although it did not interfere with his performance. These two impediments had obscured the vision of a good many personnel and other management people to whom Larry had been exposed. They were so concerned with the insignificant that they could not see the real person.

Every time I see Larry, during my stop-overs in my old home town, I feel good about his success. I believe that he proved that each of us deserves to be considered on our individual merits, and not tarred with blinding "cataracts" of race, religion, sex, national origin or other bases for bias.

I believe that our country stands for freedom of opportunity for everyone, today, not a couple of generations down the line. Why should anyone have to wait for fair treatment in a free society? I wouldn't Would you?

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Imagine, if you will, that you are in a hospital bed recovering nicely from a long illness. Your doctor enters your room, seats himself beside you, opens up a jar of leeches and in his best bedside manner explains that you will be fit as a fiddle after a little bloodletting.

Your first reaction might be to bolt for the door.

You might, at the very least, request a second opinion.

Physicians, of course, no longer prescribe bloodletting for illnesses. The medical profession has — through trial and error — learned a great deal since the 13th century. They have learned, for instance, that the wrong medicine can sometimes kill a healthy patient.

I wish our politicians and the professional economists in Washington were as quick to learn.

For some time now, our economy has been under the weather; suffering from the malignant cancer of big government. And as this cancer grows — with higher taxes, more federal spending, regulation and inflation — it crowds out and kills off the healthy sectors of the economy. We have seen the damage caused to the auto and steel industries by overly restrictive environmental regulations. Government borrowing has pushed up interest rates and crowded out private borrowing by small companies. And punitive tax rates have killed off millions of jobs and weakened our competitiveness in international trade.

But now, just as our economy is beginning to recover from these assaults, what do the Washington witch doctors propose? Their answer, their miracle cure, is a return to the failed policies of the past — the patent medicines of higher taxes, more spending, make-work programs and a return to double-digit inflation.

Leeches. They would apply more leeches.

Now the use of bloodletting by medieval doctors may seem funny to educated men and women of the 20th century. But it was no joke to those patients who bled to death. And there is nothing humorous in the prospect of draining the American economy of the savings and investment needed to create jobs and opportunities both for those who are presently employed and for those young Americans who will be entering the labor force in the next few years.

A doctor can only bury so many patients before he comes to the realization that he is doing something wrong. Politicians, on the other hand, do not bury their mistakes . . . they repeat them. Again and again and again.

The time has come, however, for even Congress to understand that big government is the problem, not the solution — the disease, not the cure.

We have been through tough times, but the American economy is beginning its long delayed recovery. A real, sustainable recovery. Unemployment is falling; inflation has dropped below four per cent; interest rates and oil prices are dropping; and the stock market is reaching record highs. Our future looks bright.

My diagnosis: The patient is doing just fine. Our economy is on the mend and will surprise us with its strength and vitality if — and this is a big if — Congress refrains from trotting out the old-time "medicine" and putting us back in intensive care.

Economy To Fed: Get Back on Course

In the 1950's comedy "Some Like It Hot," Marilyn Monroe, bemoaning her fate in life, complained, "I always get the fuzzy end of the lollipop."

The American taxpayer can sympathize.

Whenever Congress rides forth to do battle over the federal budget it is the taxpayer who ends up carried from the field in a stretcher.

When deficits are low, the Washington politicians raise federal spending to "stimulate the economy."

When deficits are high, the same politicians call for raising taxes to fight inflation and high interest rates.

Increase spending. Raise taxes. Heads the taxpayer loses; tails the IRS wins. It is an old game and it becomes more expensive for us each year.

This time around the argument runs as follows: Deficits cause high interest rates; high interest rates deter new investment and stand in the way of a strong recovery; therefore, we must raise taxes to cut the deficit.

There are two problems with this line of reasoning.

First, there is more than one way to skin a cat or shrink a deficit. In theory, Congress may staunch the flow of red ink by either raising taxes or putting a tourniquet on the growth of federal spending.

However, we have already tried to tax away the deficit — and it gets larger with every tax increase. It is time to look at the spending side of the deficit equation.

Federal spending has grown from $577 billion in 1980 — Jimmy Carter's last year — to over $800 billion in 1982. And spending for direct payments to individuals rose from $271 billion to over $366 billion in those three years. This explosion of spending explains a great deal of the deficit. Slow economic growth explains the rest.

Just as you cannot dig your way out of a hole or tax your way out of a recession, Congress cannot "tax away" the deficit. Any increase in taxes will be another drag on the economy which increases — not decreases — the deficit.

The second problem with the "deficits cause high interest rates, therefore raise taxes" theory is that it is simply wrong.

Historically, deficits and interest rates have an inverse relationship. When deficits are heading upwards, interst rates are dropping.

The last two years show the same trend. The prime rate has dropped from a high of 21.5 per cent when President Reagan took office to 11 per cent. This while projected deficits have increased.

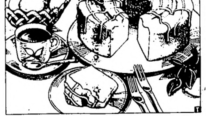
Interest rates must be brought down if America is to have a strong and sustained recovery. But we will not find the answer to slashing interest rates in focusing on the deficit. We must look instead to the real culprit — the Federal Reserve System. The "Fed" controls the supply of money for the economy. When the Fed has pursued a policy of slow and steady growth the inflation rate and the interest rates have dropped.

Unfortunately, the Fed has allowed its policy to be stop and go — step on the gas, slam on the brakes. It is frightening to realize that the growth in the money supply from last August to December rose at an annual rate of over 18 per cent. (This is higher than the growth which brought us hyper-inflation in the 1970s.)

If Congress is serious about controlling the deficit they could take the advice of over 75 per cent of the American taxpayers and pass a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget. They could tackle the runaway growth of entitlements.

And if the Congress wishes to keep interest rates moving downward, the only hope is that the Fed will return to a policy of slow and steady growth of the money supply. The Fed should not stay the course; it should "get back on course."

COFFEECAKE: PERFECT ANYTIME



Because of its name, most people think of coffeecake only as a breakfast food or as a morning snack to have during coffee break. While it suits both these occasions to a tee, coffeecake is right for other times, as well.

Unlike coffeecakes which have a bread-like texture, Lemon Coffeecake topped with a drizzled lemon glaze has a deliciously sweet cake-like consistency that will tempt adults and children alike. Serve it for the next birthday celebration on your list, as dessert after dinner, or with a glass of milk as a midnight snack.

Other places where Lemon Coffeecake fits are in a school lunchbox or a brown bag lunch. To minimize messiness when toting your snack, make this coffeecake without the topping. Lemon Coffeecake is moist and flavorful, even without the glaze. And it is much easier to pack and carry than a piece of frosted cake or a slice of pie.

So don't just think of coffeecake as something to eat in the morning. Have a slice anytime you feel like a moist, delicious treat.

LEMON COFFEECAKE
(Makes 10-inch tube cake)

1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup softened butter
1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups liquid Carnation nonfat dry milk
Lemon Glaze

Combine 3/4 cup graham cracker crumbs, brown sugar, and cinnamon in small bowl. Mix together remaining 3/4 cup graham cracker crumbs, flour, soda, and salt. Cream butter, granulated sugar, and lemon rind in large mixer bowl. Add eggs; beat well. Add dry ingredients alternately with liquid nonfat milk, mixing lightly after each addition. Spread 1/3 batter in buttered 10-inch tube pan. Sprinkle 1/2 crumb mixture over batter. Repeat layers. Spread remaining batter over crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 60 to 70 minutes or until done. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool. Drizzle Lemon Glaze over coffeecake.

LEMON GLAZE: Combine 1 cup powdered sugar and 4 teaspoons lemon juice. Drizzle over coffeecake.

Fluid Nitrogen
The Efficient Alternative

Fluid Nitrogen . . . a solution of ammonium nitrate and urea . . . has long been recognized for versatility, efficiency and safety. With the dramatic increase in reduced-tillage farming methods, fluid nitrogen is receiving renewed attention for its superiority to anhydrous ammonia.

Avoid Planting Delays with Fluid Nitrogen

Perhaps the single most important advantage of fluid nitrogen is the speed and ease of application. Research has conclusively shown that each one-day delay in planting can reduce corn yields by a bushel per acre. Can you afford the time . . . better yet, the days . . . to pull an energy-consuming ammonia applicator through the field and run the risk of delayed planting? The obvious choice is a custom application of fluid nitrogen!

Fluids Improve Herbicide Performance

In addition to energy-efficient application, fluid nitrogen offers another distinct advantage . . . especially in split nitrogen programs. A feed and weed application increased yields by 4 bushels per acre as compared to applying the chemicals in water. Certainly higher yields, energy-efficient application and elimination of a trip over the field combine to make fluid nitrogen a wise investment.

Preplant Fluid Nitrogen 9 Bushels Over Ammonia

The advantages of fluid nitrogen for feed and weed are obvious in the Kansas studies. However, recent research from Purdue University brings an added dimension to superiority. In a preplant/sidedress split nitrogen program on corn, the sidedress portion was left constant to eliminate application variables. Note that when anhydrous ammonia and fluid nitrogen were compared for the preplant portion, the fluids proved to be 9 bushels superior!

Fluid nitrogen . . . a solution of urea and ammonium nitrate . . . is truly a quality product. Starting with anhydrous ammonia as the basic feed stock, various upgrading processes result in two improved nitrogen sources . . . ammonium nitrate and urea. When these two are combined in fluid nitrogen, you have the advantages of both products, not the least of which is three forms of nitrogen . . . ammonium . . . nitrate . . . and urea.

Fluid nitrogen. Shouldn't it be your choice for optimium efficiency . . . and highest yields?

U.S. Has Lead In Genetics For Cattle

American leadership in cattle genetics will take work and foresight to maintain, persons attending the recent 43rd annual meeting of Midwest Breeders cooperative were told at the session in Shawano, WI.

The meeting was attended by 150 delegates, 93 alternates and numerous guests. The delegates were chosen at district meetings and represent 25,000 Midwest members in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Upper Michigan, eastern Nebraska and northern Missouri.

Bill Clark, whose Hanford, CA, based AI company is the largest of its kind in the world, has been in the business of exporting American bovine semen overseas since 1971. Clark's company represents 10 cattle breeding cooperatives and one boar semen cooperative in Europe, Asia and the Middle East.

"The semen export market is becoming more and more competitive. We are ahead and, with our large cow population, we can stay ahead. . ." Clark asserted.

". . .The scope and importance of European markets should not be underestimated by the American dairyman. I would suggest probably all of you are paying somewhere around $1 a dose of semen less than what you might otherwise be paying if there was no international market. I also suggest because of this international market, there are more young sires being tested than ever before," Clark said.

A principle threat is greatly-improved European breeding stock due to past imports of U.S. dairy and beef semen, Clark said. Better animals have encouraged the Germans, French, Dutch and Israelis, among others, to enter the semen export trade, Clark pointed out.

Health requirements are also getting stricter on imports into some countries, Clark added. While careful attention to the health of bulls involved in international trade is critical, Clark said some of the restrictions are not always motivated by veterinarian concerns.

Some countries, such as those in Scandinavia, are using semen as foreign aid. "Frankly, I think it is better than giving away guns. (But) it's pretty difficult to go into a country like India, say, and develop a market for frozen semen when it is given 400,000 free doses by Denmark, especially (if they're) from Danish bulls sired by U.S. fathers," Clark said.

Clark highlighted innovation as one remedy for U.S. companies and cooperatives to combat heightened world competition.

He complimented Midwest Breeders Cooperative for its leadership in developing the linear type program for evaluating cows. The linear type system, based on a 50-point scale for each of a cow's traits, is now in use by all U.S. dairy breed associations.

Computers will also play a bigger role in assessing matings for bulls "especially in developing countries in the Middle East and Africa where they really don't know how to use our bulls (to improve cattle bloodlines)."

U.S. breeders must also continue to root out genetic defects such as mule foot in Holsteins and weaver in the Brown Swiss breed. Clark said Midwest should be commended for its decision to pull its Johann Proud Matthew bull out of the market when the Brown Swiss sire was confirmed as a weaver carrier.

"The Europeans look to us for honesty and candidness in all such items and we cannot misuse their confidence in us," Clark stressed.

To protect U.S. sires from ever-tighter health standards, Clark urged U.S. AI studs to consider separate sub-stations for bulls used in the export trade. In an isolated facility, the bulls can be "certified as being free of any disease anyone probably would suggest," Clark said.

The "next big market," although considered a gamble, will be in the Red and White Holstein breed, Clark speculated. Clark, early in his speech, said that the Europeans had left their traditional emphasis on dual purpose animals and were now breeding separate lines for meat and milk.

Red cattle breeders, such as Simmental, have lately become more interested in this trend and have helped to create the new demand, Clark added.

American bull studs can respond to this growing demand by developing their own red-and-white genetics, Clark said.

It's A SNAP With SNAPPER!
GROOM YOUR LAWN WITH A SNAPPER HI-VAC RIDING MOWER!
SNAPPER Hi-Vac riding mowers are offered in three sizes: the 25 inch, the 28 inch and the 33 inch.
All SNAPPER Hi-Vac riders have the extra "high vacuum" feature that is created by the deep formed deck, the rolled lip on the bottom of the deck and the large air lifts on the blade. This action picks up where other lawnmowers leave off. SNAPPER Hi-Vac riders set up grass for a smooth and even cut, vacuum clippings, leaves, pine straw and light litter without an auxiliary fan or engine. Even high moisture can't stop a SNAPPER Hi-Vac rider.
Four models of SNAPPER self-propelled 21-inch Hi-Vac walk mowers are available in 3½ or 4 horsepower, 4 cycle engines. They are equipped with a differential type transmission and have rear wheel drive to push harder. Traction actually improves as the bag fills on models equipped with the 2½ bushel rear-mounted grass catcher.
But the feature that sets the SNAPPER self-propelled mower apart from any other is the six forward speed control. This variable speed control lets you go from less than one mile per hour to more than three miles per hour in five equal increments, so you can mow slowly in tough grasses without clogging or quickly in normal situations. Constant blade speed is retained regardless of ground speed.

Vegetables, combined with the fillets of flounder, are carrots cooked with dill and broccoli. Buttered bread crumbs are sprinkled on the dish just before serving.

DID YOU KNOW?

Last year, about 45,000 men, women and children died in automobile accidents. During that same period more than one million people were injured. About half of the vehicle occupants killed might be alive today if they had been wearing seat belts.

For seat belts to provide maximum protection in the event of an accident they should not be twisted or turned and the lap belt must be positioned low (not pressing against the abdomen).

Non-belted occupants of cars have been killed in crashes at speeds as low as 12 mph. At just 10 mph, the force of impact is equivalent to the force involved in catching a 200-pound bag of cement tossed from a first-story window. In the event of a head-on crash with another car also going 30 mph, the total forces involved are equivalent to an impact at about 60 mph into a parked car.

Safety experts at Volvo, a company that has been a strong advocate of one-piece lap/shoulder belts since they became standard equipment on its cars in 1963, point out that if you don't buckle up each time you drive or ride, you may be betting your life that an accident will not occur.

Glaucoma: Don't Let It Sneak Up On You

Glaucoma, the nation's leading cause of irreversible blindness, can be detected through a quick and painless test. When the disease is caught in time, treatment can prevent loss of vision.

In glaucoma, the fluid circulating through the front portion of the eye does not drain properly. It backs up, causing pressure that eventually damages the retina, destroying sight. The National Society to Prevent Blindness, which was founded 75 years ago, reports that about two million Americans have glaucoma, and half of them do not know they have it.

Warning signs include loss of peripheral vision, difficulty in adjusting the eyes to dark rooms, blurred or foggy vision, or the appearance of halos around lights.

The best defense against glaucoma, says the National Society, is an eye examination at least once every two years. People with a family history of glaucoma, those with diabetes and cardiovascular diseases, and senior citizens are at greatest risk and should be checked annually.

Don't let glaucoma rob you blind. A free brochure about glaucoma and how to help combat it is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to your State Society to Prevent Blindness, or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

School Election Time Is Quiet

Area school elections appear to be generally quiet this year with only a handful of candidates seeking election in each district at the election next Tuesday, May 17. Despite the stresses of school board service in financially troubled times, a large number of incumbents are seeking reelection.

Most open election appears to be at Grygla where only one incumbent has filed for reelection and four candidates are seeking the two positions open on the board. Ell-Kay Foss has filed for reelection while Glenn Larson did not file. Other candidates are Lois Olson, Alan Lunsetter and Leland Larson. Polls will be open from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Grygla and Gatzke schools and the Skime town hall.

At the Marshall county central school in Newfolden, incumbents Mark Carlson and Daniel Olson have filed for reelection after serving one three-year term each. They are opposed by Doreen Amundson for the two positions open on the board. Voting will take place from 5 to 9 p.m. at the Viking and Newfolden elementary schools and the Holt city hall.

There will also be a three-way race in the Middle River school district where incumbents Lois Peterson and Larry Korpi will have opposition from Elmer Melby. Polls will be open from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Middle River school.

At Oklee only clerk Jim Dulka and six-year board member Lloyd Mercil have filed for the two positions available on the board, while at Goodridge only clerk Larry Vigen and board member Paul Troska have filed for reelection.

At Plummer incumbent Wayne Lindroth has filed for reelection and William Michalski has elected not to seek reelection. Seeking to fill the second vacancy is Mrs. Almore (Ila) Lind.

And at Strandquist incumbents Janice Borowicz and Gordon Borsvold will be on the ballot, Borowicz having filed for reelection and Borsvold being nominated by petition.

Legislators Are Divided On Tax Deductibility

Special To The Times
by Lisa Burt
Northern Star News Service

Our state is in a minority, but is considering joining the majority that do not allow federal deductibility from state income taxes.

Deductibility of federal taxes is the key issue in determining how income taxes should be levied for the next two years and into the future.

Proposals by the Senate tax committee shift the burden of taxes, hitting those in high income brackets and single-filers the hardest. Subsequently, breaks will go to those in lower income brackets and joint-filing taxpayers.

Senate DFLers are also pushing to abolish state income tax indexing, a system which helps the taxpayer during inflationary times by preventing taxes from rising when a taxpayer's earning power does not rise.

Another proposal calls for simplifying the state income tax by way of "piggybacking" it to the federal income tax. The state tax would then be calculated by simply multiplying the total federal tax by approximately 40 per cent.

Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls said dropping federal deductibility "is not going to solve our (financial) problems," and he doesn't support it.

The proposal would hurt a lot of people and Sparby said he would like to look for other ways to raise revenues. He did not have any specific suggestions but he said that is what committees and commissions are for.

Sparby said dropping deductibility would be "more detrimental to individuals than business," but the plan may force people and businesses from the state.

Sparby said he "may consider" voting for another proposal that would raise revenue, eliminating indexing.

A third approach to simplify taxes, piggybacking, has "lots

School Board Election Is Scheduled Next Tuesday

Thief River Falls school board election will be conducted next Tuesday, May 17, from 4 to 8 p.m. at four polling places located throughout the district. Candidates for three positions available are Paul Bortnem, Myrle Carlson, Larry McDowell and Greg Pribula.

Polling places will be at the St. Hilaire post office building for the former St. Hilaire school district, Franklin middle school for the area of the district south and east of the Red Lake river, Lincoln high school for the area west of the Red Lake river and area vocational-technical institute for the area north of the Red Lake river and east of the Thief river.

To assist in introducing the four candidates to the voting public, the Times has invited each to prepare a first-person article regarding his candidacy. The articles submitted are published below and voters are encouraged to read all of them prior to making their voting decisions next Tuesday.

Paul L. Bortnem

I was raised on a farm near Volga, South Dakota, and graduated from a rural consolidated high school, Rutland high. I attended Augustana college, graduating with a double major in math and history, and later attended Luther Theological seminary.

I was ordained for ministry in the American Lutheran church in 1968 and served two three-point parishes in Alberta, Canada, for nine years. In 1977 I began work toward becoming a hospital chaplain and was hired in my present position as director of pastoral services at Northwestern hospital in 1977.

My wife, Rosine, was raised at Karlstad. We were married in 1968 and we have two children: Peter, a freshman at Lincoln, and Rebekah Anne, a seventh grader at Franklin. We are members of Zion Lutheran church.

I serve on the board of education at Zion Lutheran church and I am also a member of the board of directors for the Kiwanis club of Thief River Falls. I am a member of the American Association of Pastoral Counselors and a Fellow of the College of Chaplains.

I see the present limited financial resources in our school district challenging our school board to prioritize educational programs. My fear is that we will attempt to save all our programs by cutting everything a little and in the end fail our children by providing an inadequate education in our district.

Therefore, I will be an advocate on the school board for strengthening core curriculum subjects: Math and science, English comprehension and usage, social studies and the language of tomorrow — technical and computer skills — for all students. I will be an advocate for appropriate classroom size. I will be an advocate for keeping existing buildings updated and in good repair as well as the eventual modification or replacement of Lincoln high school.

Myrle L. Carlson

I am a life-long resident of School District 564 and I am married to the former Dolores Ryaw. We have two children and three grandchildren. My daughter is a teacher in Park Center high school in Brooklyn Park and my son is a medical records person for a nursing home complex in Minneapolis.

In 1943 I was called to serve my country in the military and did so for two and one-half years. I did receive a decoration from the King of Belguim for the Battle of the Bulge and I was honorably discharged in 1946. At the present time I am the Veteran's Service officer for Pennington county.

During my life time I have served and worked on numerous committees and I feel I have an understanding of that type of activity. Now after serving on your board of education for one term I feel more qualified to deal with the complex problems that confront us.

Good things have happened in the last three years. We have a drug awareness program in place, an ExCEL program that is working well and we have two employees trained into teaching and getting back to the basics. Let's all hope that the funding picture changes so that we may put back some of the programs that we lost.

Also, our transportation picture has improved greatly with the changing of routes and the purchasing of diesel buses; not to mention that it is one of the best managed transportation systems in the state. Our hot lunch program has taken on a new look and now has hopes of better service, more balanced menus and greater savings.

Last but not least work has been done on some of our school buildings to conserve energy and to make them more operational. Yes, the educational picture is still changing and I would like to continue to be a part of that.

Let's keep up with the national trend and of course let's not forget the three R's,

I am a candidate for reelection to the board of education of School District No. 564 because, after nine years on the board, I am still concerned about the education that we provide the childen of this area. With the present financial restraints which the district is operating under, it is of primary concern that we make the best use of the money available to provide educational opportunities that meet the needs of the children of our district.

I am married to the former Ruth Brodin, a life-long resident of Thief River Falls. We have one son, Baird, and a daughter, Anna Marie, who attend school in this district.

My qualifications begin with the fact that I have been a member of the board of education of School District No. 564 for nine years. During this time I have served as chairman of the board for four years and for the past three years have been vice chairman.

In light of the extremely complicated issues which are being faced by boards of education across this state and primarily in this district, there is a need to retain experienced people in positions on the board of education. The experience gained in dealing with school finances and with the total overall operation of the educational system makes it possible for me, as a board member, , to deal more knowledgeably with the problems that I have experienced in the past.

I have practiced law in Thief River Falls since 1968, when I received my J.D. degree from the University of North Dakota law school. I also hold a B.A. degree in business administration from Bemidji state university. I am a member of the Evangelical Covenant church of Thief River Falls and presently serve on that board.

I believe that it is important that we assess the educational system and the education which we are providing to our young people

Difficult — challenging — satisfying — frustrating — interesting — rewarding — just a few of the words that could describe my first three years on the School District 564 Board of Education: I do feel that I have learned a lot and have served the school district as a well-rounded school board member.

A well-rounded school board member must be a planner, a reactor, an innovator, a hard worker, a listener, a leader, and must also have a direct concern for what happens within the school district.

I have worked hard to develop an educational plan for the school district. Two years ago I introduced a resolution for the district to develop a three, five and 10-year plan. The plan has not been fully developed yet, but now at least there is a board commitment to planning. This plan, when time allows for its development, will provide the district with some definite goals.

Second, I have been directly involved in probably the most reactionary times for a school board member. Constant budget changes, state budget shortfalls, recisions, and strained employee-employer relations all have occurred repetitiously during the past three years. I have worked hard to resolve these issues while maintaining a positive attitude and a cool head through all of these adversities.

I feel we have made progress in improving employee-employer relations within School District 564 and I feel that I have played a major role in that improvement. The budget cuts have cut deeply into our educational budget but I have constantly strived for a balanced educational program. None of the cuts have been easy, some even unpopular, but the position I have maintained throughout is not that the squeaky wheel gets all of the grease, but the most for the dollar while maintaining a well-rounded

While these future students are visiting the kindergarten classrooms, the current kindergarten children will be attending a movie at the Galaxie theatre, arranged with the cooperation of owner Jerry Hickerson.

Children will visit classrooms and become familiar with the school surroundings. Parents who have not been contacted concerning kindergarten visitation day should call 681-2700, extension 301.

The half-mile jogging course includes stations for jumping jack, push-ups, knee bend, horizontal ladder, sit-ups, pull-ups, body spring, body bend, jump and touch, balance beam and body swing. In the photo above Jane Mackenroth uses the sit-up station with some friendly advice from her jogging partner Rose Wold and Mayor Bob Carlson. The mayor has proclaimed May to be "Physical Fitness and Sports month" in Thief River Falls in coordination with the national observance. Each station on the recently completed fitness course has an instructional sign like the one at right in the photo above. Winners Named In Local WCTU Poster Contest

Temperance posters were displayed and judged at the meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Christian Temperance Union held Tuesday at the Riverside Terrace.

Of the 17 posters submitted by the Lincoln high school art class, with Don Lerud instructor, three were selected as winners. Placing first, second and third were Janell Williamson's poster "Let Go and Let God,"; Tami Gustafson's "Drinking is Money Down the Drain," and Dawn Nelson's "Don't Get Your Life Tangled-Up in Smoke." Williamson's poster will be entered in district competition at the WCTU convention to be held May 12 at Newfolden. The winning entry there will advance to state competition at the Minnesota WCTU convention in September. The state winner will be entered in the National convention in 1984.

Judging the posters were Evelyn Homewood, Agnes Olson and Hannah Kish. Mrs. Valborg Hanson was in charge of the display.

Mrs. Anna Johnsrud gave the devotional meditation, based on I. Sam. 1: 9-22. She stated that the prophet Samuel's mother had prayed many years for a son. When her prayer was answered, she later turned him over to Eli the priest to serve God in the temple. She concluded by saying "Our prayer life is the foundation of a godly home and the greatest sermon that the children will ever hear." She challenged the women to lead the little children's feet down the "Little Pathways" to love and honor God.

Quick Action Necessary For Burn Victims

"Quick action" is necessary to save a burn victim's life or to prevent other serious complications. Knowing how to do the right thing fast is vital to the victim's future well-being.

Minnesota Medical association (MMA) offers the following basic first aid advice on helping fire victims.

(1) Immediately smother the flames by rolling the person on the ground. If there's a blanket handy, wrap the victim in it first, but don't waste time looking for one. Try not to put out the flames with your hands — use towels, coats or any large piece of clothing. After flames are out, put cool water on the victim's smoldering clothes to extinguish the fire completely.

(2) Continue cooling the affected area with cold water or compresses. This reduces the skin temperature, numbs the pain and prevents or reduces swelling. Next, carefully remove all burned clothing that does not stick to the skin. Special care should be taken to remove affected clothing when the victim has been burned with a scalding liquid. Otherwise, the fabric retains the heat of the hot liquid and holds it next to the body.

Keep the burned person lying on his back. If he has trouble breathing, place a pillow under the shoulders and position the head back and down. Remove rings, bracelets and other jewelry before the swelling begins. Maintain cool compresses on the affected area, but keep the uninvolved areas warm with a clean sheet and blanket.

(3) Seek help immediately for anything but a slight first-degree burn. With this type of injury, the skin is reddened, but not blistered, and damage is confined to the outer layer of the epidermis. Ordinary sunburn is a common example of a first-degree burn.

Second and third-degree burns require immediate medical attention. When a victim suffers second-degree burns, the skin blisters. The blisters may break, oozing a watery liquid, but they should heal in about two weeks. The skin is usually reddened and swollen. Second-degree burns destroy the upper and intermediate layers of the skin, but do not harm the deepest cells.

Third-degree burns leave the skin red or white in color and leathery in texture. All the cells and underlying tissue are destroyed. A person who has suffered third-degree burns can be pricked with pins and feel nothing. When burns of this magnitude are incurred, the affected skin is removed and replaced, usually with skin grafts from another part of the victim's body.

Burns are deceiving; they often look less serious than they really are — making it difficult to distinguish between second and third-degree burns.

Even a badly burned person can usually be moved safely. If a car is handy and the victim is easily carried, it's best to drive to the nearest hospital. If unable to move the victim, call a doctor at once.

(4) Even minor "kitchen-contact" burns require immediate attention. Cool the affected area with cold water — never rub with butter or oil — wrap in sterile bandages to protect tender or blistered skin and to prevent infection. If the area is still painful in a day or two, see a physician.

Pennington Co. SWCD Notes Soil Week

Pennington soil and water conservation district will join the nationwide celebration of soil stewardship week May 8 to 15, according to Ray Olson, chairman of the board. Theme of this year's celebration is "Living Waters."

National association of conservation districts (NACD) has sponsored soil stewardship week since 1955, in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts.

"If our water management practices in the past have been adequate, we may ignore the rising population, the increased industrialization and expanded irrigation, all of which require more water from our reservoirs," cites NACD in the 16-page soil stewardship week booklet.

"One of our more compelling social and economic needs is for a full appreciation of the true value of our abundant supply of water. It is time to think seriously about conservation, pollution, priority usage and our dependence upon it."

Informative material on the soil stewardship week theme is distributed each year through local conservation districts to clergyman, lay leaders, churches, civic, and educational organizations and to individuals participating in the observance.

"If we are to make certain that supplies will be adequate for present and future needs, we are obligated to abide by the universal laws and to help, rather than hinder, the process by which the constant supply of water is recycled and repurified," according to NACD.

Information for the 1983 observance of soil stewardship week is available from the Pennington soil and water conservation district at 1305 Dale Street in Thief River Falls.

City Planner, Mayor Thank For Support

Thief River Falls mayor Bob Carlson and city planner Jack Quinlivan have expressed their appreciation to people from the community and area who wrote letters or made phone calls in support of the city's application for a small cities community development block grant.

The city has been informed that grant approval has been given and funds will be received to provide loans for three industries in the community. The funding is intended to help the industries retain or create 130 jobs in the city.

"In no small measure," Mayor Carlson and Quinlivan said, "the success of this application is due to the tremendous support exhibited by the citizens of this and neighboring communities."

Career Day Held May 4 AT AVTI, NCC

Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, along with the area vocational technical institute (AVTI) and Northland community college (NCC), hosted a career information day for 200 Lincoln high school juniors on Wednesday, May 4 at the AVTI and NCC facilities.

Thirty-three speakers, representing a wide variety of career fields, met with the students to give them an opportunity to learn first hand various aspects of jobs in which they might be interested.

Twelve broad career areas such as business and related areas, health services, outdoor related, human services, criminal justice-law enforcement, communication media, education, and trade and industry were each divided into more specific areas from which the students chose three of interest to them.

Intent of this day, and the structure of it, was to give the students direct and visual contact with people working in and knowledgeable about their career areas.

$4 Million Given To VA Med Facilities

Veterans administration medical facilities in this part of the nation will be provided more than $4 million under the provisions of the recently-enacted emergency jobs appropriations bill.

The new jobs bill, signed by President Reagan last month, provides a total $75 million to the VA for thousands of jobs involving maintenance and repair projects.

"We are delighted at this opportunity to accomplish needed maintenance and repair on our medical facilities, while at the same time providing meaningful employment to thousands of people who need it," VA administrator Harry N. Walters said. He pointed out that the agency requires an extensive construction and maintenance program to keep modern the nation's largest health care system.

Hundreds of these projects at VA medical facilities nationwide will get underway next month under the new program. The additional funding is expected to make possible 625 projects at 158 different VA medical center locations, he said.

In this area, VA medical centers sharing in the program are listed below, together with the dollar allocation for each facility: Fargo, N.D., $225,000; Minneapolis, MN $149,000; and St. Cloud, $271,000. Other facilities are located in Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

Walters said the legislation urged agencies to use the funds in a way that will create new employment opportunities for individuals who were unemployed at least 15 of the 26 weeks immediately preceding the date of its enactment.

He said the agency made preparations in advance of the law's passage so it could act quickly to put people to work. He said some projects would begin immediately, and all the funds provided are expected to be obligated before the end of the fiscal year in September.

In identifying the work to do at each facility, Walters said VA sought to select projects that would be labor intensive, that can be started quickly and that can be designed and monitored effectively by the local medical center staff. He cited examples such as exterior building maintenance and painting, roof repairs and paving work.

Screening For Diabetes To Be Done Locally

To increase community awareness and help detect early warning signs of diabetes, local registered nurses will administer a free screening on Thursday at the Medicine Shoppe, 118 LaBree av. N., from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with no appointment necessary. The American Diabetes association will analyze tests and inform participants of their individual results.

Testing method for diabetes consists of a small sample of blood taken from a finger and placed on testing materials. By timing these ingredients accurately, professionals can determine if symptoms of diabetes are prevalent.

In order for the test to yield an accurate reading, persons must have eaten 100 grams of carbohydrates two hours before testing. A meal consisting of two slices of bread, 20 French fries, pie and milk would be adequate. Only water may be taken in the two hours prior to the test. After eating 100 grams of carbohydrates persons should wait two hours, but no more than three hours, for the test.

Inter-City Gas Announces Cut In Retail Rate

Inter-City Gas Corporation has reduced its retail natural gas rates by $970,000 annually effective May 1. Inter-City says that this action will reduce its rates by approximately 14.3 cents per million BTU (per Mcf adjusted).

Fred Little, vice president and general manager of Inter-City, said the reduction reflects the recent action by the Canadian government in lowering by 11 per cent the price of natural gas it exports to U.S. markets. Inter-City currently receives approximately 40 per cent of its gas supply from Canada. In addition Northern Natural, which provides approximately 60 per cent of Inter-City's gas supply, receives about 13 per cent of its gas supply from Canada. Inter-City has filed with the MPUC to effectuate this reduction.

"While we are pleased the Canadian action allows Inter-City to make this reduction in rates to our customers, it falls short of our expectations," Little said.

Inter-City continues to participate in the deliberations of Canadian authorities in an effort to obtain further reductions by Canada in the future. Inter-City serves 20,000 customers in 44 communities in northern Minnesota and has their regional headquarters in Cloquet and operates district offices in Cloquet, Chisholm, International Falls, Thief River Falls and Wadena.

Spring Brings New Chores, Painful Joints

Spring, when it comes to Minnesota, is a time for lots of activity. Lawns need to be raked, gardens need cultivation — and the garage needs to be cleaned.

Often these activities involve using muscles harder than they've been used for some time. And sometimes, according to the arthritis foundation, this can produce joint problems — bursitis and tendinitis.

Bursitis occurs when the small, slippery, cushion-like sacs found in many joints become irritated and inflamed, usually from sudden excessive use. Tendinitis is the inflammation of the tendons that make these joints move. Both disorders, while usually temporary, can be extremely painful, an arthritis foundation spokesman observed, and should not be ignored.

During May, the arthritis foundation has a special message on bursitis and tendinitis that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A free booklet on the disorders is available to callers. Answers to other questions will also be provided by the foundation.

Legislators Divided On Deductibility

of merit," according to Sparby. The accountants he has talked to say that the proposal would save money because less personnel would be needed, so he believes a study on piggybacking is a good idea.

Sen. Leroy Stumpf of Plummer said he would support eliminating federal deductibility if the bill were modified. Stumpf said he'd like to see lower tax rates, simpler tax forms and no permanent 10 per cent surcharge on the income tax.

The ideal simplification would make taxes easier for everyone to understand, while heading off any increases, Stumpf said. Stumpf predicted that dropping deductibility would have the most impact on upper-income people.

As for the plan to do away with indexing, Stumpf said an alternative could be to adopt a system like Iowa's. The formula Iowa uses changes with surpluses and shortfalls in the state budget, Stumpf said, and when there is a deficit indexing becomes ineffective.

"That kind of set-up would work well in Minnesota," he said. Indexing would be there when it is needed and the Legislature wouldn't "have to legislate at each shortfall".

Minnesota is among only 10 states that have unrestricted federal deductibility. Four other states have restricted deductibility and 29 do not allow for it at all.

So far, the Senate seems to be the most interested in eliminating federal deductibility. The House tax committee has rejected the idea, heeding Gov. Rudy Perpich's fear that eliminating federal deductibility could cause businesses to move out of the state or hinder them from expanding and growing in Minnesota.

Proposals in the Senate include a change in the top tax bracket from 16 per cent with the federal deduction to 12 per cent without it. That may look attractive to taxpayers, yet it ends up bringing in more tax dollars than the present system.

The proposed tax change is more progressive, but opponents join Perpich's claim that it would hurt the business climate by discouraging higher income business people and their businesses from coming into the state.

Married couples filing jointly with two dependents and 16 per cent in deductions would pay less tax up to a total income of $75,000. Those above that amount would pay more tax.

In contrast, a single-filer with no dependents and with deductions amounting to 16 per cent of income would pay less tax only up to $8,000. Beyond that, the rate goes up and the single-filers would pay more.

A compromise indexing proposal would keep indexing in effect only when there is a surplus of funds. The current Minnesota indexing doesn't have a big impact on taxes now because inflation is down.

The piggy-backing proposal is appealing to some as another alternative because it makes figuring state taxes simple. However, it has yet to find widespread legislative support.

and balanced educational program for all.

Third, I don't believe that anyone comes to a board meeting as prepared as I do. I do not take my position on the school board lightly! You, the constituents of the district, deserve the best representation and I feel I have done and will continue to do my part and more. I have been extremely active in committee work having served on the continuing education committee, the vocational relicensure committee, the extra-curricular advisory committee and the computer advisory committee.

Fourth, I have tried to keep an open ear to public concerns. I have constantly either answered the posed question or have searched for the answer. Your concerns and questions, no matter how trite they may seem, are important. Sometimes an insignificant question can lead to a large concern of the district. Although I may not always agree with your individual view, I will always respect and listen to your concern.

Fifth, I am not a passive board member. I am actively involved in the meeting discussions and people know where I stand on an issue before the vote is taken. I cast no surprise votes. I have treated my role as a leader with honesty and integrity.

Finally, I have a direct concern in the future of School District 564. I have two sons who will be going to school here. The district's future is also their future! Decisions made today will affect their education.

I hope this has given you, the voters, a review of my first term and a general overview of my philosophy. I, with your support and vote on May 17, will do my best to keep the educational excellence of School District 564 high.

from a positive rather than a negative point of view. A look at the local newspaper will show you on almost a weekly basis that we have young people within our school system who are excelling in academic as well as athletic and other extra-curricular areas. This is made possible only through a well rounded educational system. This education must be provided while still remaining responsible to the people who have placed me in office.

If we, as residents of School District No. 564, are going to provide the education we want our children to have, there must be a continuing effort on the part of the citizens in the school district, teachers, administrators and board members to communicate about the desires, concerns and goals of the educational program. All of this must be done with the sole object in mind of providing the youth of Independent School District No. 564 with an education that meets their needs and the demands that society will place on them upon graduation.

Fisher Landing Travel Center Opens Friday

Fisher's Landing travel information center (TIC), located approximately 10 miles southeast of the North Dakota - Minnesota border on U.S. highway two, will resume its summer schedule of operation Friday.

Fisher's Landing serves as a center to visitors from the Northwest and Canada with primary destinations in the vacation communities along U.S. highway two in northern Minnesota.

Fisher's Landing is owned and operated by the Minnesota department of transportation and serves the motoring public as a safety rest area on a year around, 24 hour daily basis. The travel information center is opened during the primary tourist season and contains a comprehensive inventory of informational maps and brochures describing Minnesota's many tourist attractions and vacation opportunities. Information regarding highway rules, regulations, safety tips and other travel related items is also available. The center's staff of travel guides is prepared to respond to statewide information requests as well as local inquiries.

Fisher's Landing will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily (including weekends). These hours will be extended to 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. from Memorial day to Labor day.

Minnesota has six other similar centers operated year around by the state — five by the department of transportation. These include Moorhead TIC on I-94 at the Minnesota - North Dakota border; Anchor Lake TIC, just south of Eveleth on U.S. 53; Thompson Hill TIC, at the junction of U.S. 2 and I-35 south of Duluth; Albert Lea TIC on I-35 at the Minnesota-Iowa border; Dresbach TIC on I-90 at the Minnesota-Wisconsin border and Beaver Creek TIC on I-90 at the Minnesota - South Dakota border. Together these centers provide a network of information which covers the entire state. Each center is best prepared to respond to inquiries within its local area, but all units are capable of providing information regarding most any of the state's public and private attractions, locations, directions and services.

A Times subscription — The gift that keeps on giving!

The first federal legislation calling for paying states matching grants-in-aid money for vocational education and training of vocational teachers was the Smith-Hughes Act in 1917, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

MSU Course For Chemical Counselors Set

International summer school on counseling the family of the chemically dependent at Moorhead state university (MSU) will be held June 6 to 9 at Moorhead. School is designed for professional and lay people who are directly or indirectly concerned with counseling the family of the chemically dependent person.

One of the tragic aspects of chemical dependency is the affect it has on all family members. In most cases, the family member is just as ill, and suffers as much or more as the person who actually has the disease. Moorhead school recognizes this fact and aims its curriculum to meet the needs of the family.

This year's faculty includes: Dr. Art Herscovitch, Ph.D., clinical psychologist with the alcoholism foundation of Manitoba in Winnipeg; Dr. Robert ten Bensel, M.D., professor, school of public health and department of pediatrics, university of Minnesota; Dr. M. L. Gibson, Jr., M.D., medical director for the Montclair center for addictive diseases, Inc., in Denver, Colorado; Janie Jasin, Minnetonka, a leading motivational teacher and speaker. Carl Eller, director of the national institute of sports and humanities in Minneapolis, will be the keynote speaker at a banquet to be held June 8.

Registration for this year's school must be in by May 15th. Enrollment is limited to 150.

Creative Uses Of High Protein Whey Develop

Minnesota dairy industry is heavily dedicated to cheese. "Over half of all milk produced is processed into cheese products," says Vern Packard, dairy products specialist with the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

All that cheese production also produces a lot of whey. Packard says that cheese production in Minnesota creates 4.6 billion pounds of whey a year. Uses for this by-product of the cheese-making process have become increasingly creative. Whey is now used in everything from ice cream to soy sauce to pasta.

That's good, Packard believes, because "Whey contains very high quality protein — better quality than the casein in cheese."

Whey, up until very recently, has been considered a waste product — something to be dumped down the drain. "It is, in fact, a food that's not very far removed from skim milk, with one major exception, and that's that the casein is missing from whey," Packard commented.

"When you combine whey protein with plant protein like soy or wheat protein, you can build the biological value and come up with a food product that is excellent," Packard says. "These kinds of foods are finding increasing potential in Third World countries.

The problem with whey utilization has been that, although whey protein is very high quality, it is also very diluted. Whey is only 0.8 per cent protein.

So the whey must usually be concentrated to be useful. Packard believes it has been new developments in technology that have allowed increased use of whey. Processes such as ultrafiltration, reverse osmosis, electrodialysis and ion exchange all allow better use of the whey protein. "These are really quite new technologies that allow one to either fractionate components from whey — that is, separate the lactose and minerals from the whey protein — or to concentrate the whole mass," Packard says.

Minnesota ranks second in whey production and total dry whey processed, Packard says. About 50 per cent of all whey solids are processed as dry whey.

"Right now bakeries use most of the dry whey. Our own dairy industry is the second largest user of whey," he says.

Whey is a very inexpensive protein. Dry whey solids are 12 to 17 cents a pound. Whey protein concentrates — whey which has undergone further processing to remove some of the minerals and lactose — cost about 50 cents a pound.

Packard sees a future of this inexpensive protein in beverages, and he sees its potential in diet foods as a meal replacement. "I believe more and more people will recognize the value of whey as some of its uses become more broadly known," he says.

295,000 In Minnesota Ask Tax Questions

Two hundred ninety-five thousand Minnesota taxpayers had questions answered about filling out their 1982 income tax returns, according to state income tax director, Chauncey E. Peterson. This is up 15,000 from last year. Busy signals were substantially lower than any previous year, and this allowed more taxpayers to get answers without having to call back because the lines were busy.

Refunds during the tax season averaged four to five weeks, although they will increase to eight to ten weeks if you filed around April 15. If a refund was expected, it did benefit to file a return early, said Peterson.

Lack of direct taxpayer assistance, which was cut out because of budget shortfalls, was taken up by the network of volunteers around the state. These people, many of whom are retired professionals, donate their time to provide free tax help to the disabled, low income, and senior citizens. They were responsible for assisting 40,000 individuals in preparing their returns.

Peterson reminds you that if you have a rent refund, it will be mailed around August 15, and if you have a property tax refund it will be mailed in the first two weeks of October. This is due to a 1982 law change in which the dates for these refunds were changed.

Alan Jensen Dances In BSU Show

Alan Jensen, a Bemidji state university (BSU) student from Oklee, was one of 200 performers who appeared in the annual BSU production of the Funtastic dance follies April 27 to 30.

Dance extravaganza, in its 27th season, was one of the largest student productions at the university. Students from virtually all academic areas participated in the performances, which included 31 skits ranging from disco to soft shoe.

Jensen, a junior studying for a degree in computer science through the university, danced in the follies for the second time and appeared in the "Jump, Shout Boogie" and "KBSU" routine.

Steven Olson To Attend NCC

Steven J. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Olson of Thief River Falls, has been accepted for admission at Northland community college in Thief River Falls for the 1983 fall quarter classes. Olson will be graduating from Lincoln high school this spring and plans to continue his education in the field of liberal arts.

THESE SENIORS at Lincoln high school were among those receiving class personality awards last week at the annual awards banquet in the school cafeteria. Left to right they include, front row: Rona Broten, brightest smile; Kristy Peterson, leadership; Kim Battleson, prettiest eyes; Susie Waale, best actress; Mary Ness, class flirt; Karen Dillon, most gullible; Tammy Bergan, most school spirit; and Penny Jorde, wittiest and life of the party; back row, Bob Evans, brightest smile; Steve Olson, leadership; Jeff Olson, prettiest eyes; Kerry Wollin, best actor; Rob Vanyo, most gullible; Randy Naeseth, most school spirit; Jerry Kertz, wittiest; and Mike Torgerson, life of the party.

Tree Planting Book Available Through NAFD

A free guide outlining the benefits of planting trees in rural areas is now available from the National Arbor day foundation (NADF).

"The NADF will be developing a comprehensive educational program to encourage the increased planting and improved management of trees in farming areas," John Rosenow, the foundation's executive director said. "As part of this program, the foundation has published a conservation planting guide which outlines the benefits of trees for improving soil conservation and farm income."

"Trees can serve a vital role in controlling soil erosion," Rosenow said. "Shelterbelts reduce wind erosion, and trees on steep slopes and along waterways reduce water erosion. The NADF recognizes that hard-pressed farmers need economic returns from their land, and our conservation planting guide shows how trees can be income producers while conserving the soil."

Guide, which is a special issue of the foundation's "Arbor Day News," contains the following information:

—How field shelterbelts can increase crop yields while reducing soil erosion.

—How woodlands can be managed to produce income from firewood and lumber while enhancing groundwater, providing wildlife habitat, and controlling erosion.

—How erosion-prone acres can be converted to income-producing areas through walnut, fuelwood, and Christmas-tree plantations.

—The benefits of farmstead windbreaks in reducing fuel bills, increasing livestock performance, and controlling snow.

—Financial assistance available to landowners who want to plant or manage trees.

—Where to obtain professional advice for tree planting based on local soil, weather and terrain.

To obtain this free information, interested people should send their name and address to Conservation Planting Guide, National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

Seek Academic Counselor For 'U'M Athletes

University of Minnesota is recruiting an assistant director of athletics to work on academics with some 600 men and women athletes.

Creation of the position of assistant director of athletics for academic counseling is intended to strengthen the existing athlete counseling program and to broaden it, said Nils Hasselmo, vice president for administration and planning.

"We want to create the strongest possible expectation on the part of the athletes that they are going to be involved in a meaningful academic program," Hasselmo said. He said that while many athletes at the university already have those expectations and do well, "too many do not seem to get as good an education as they can and should get."

Through the new assistant director, the university wants to develop a system in which counselors are in close contact with athletes from recruitment to graduation, Hasselmo said.

Counseling program exists to serve any athlete who might benefit, he said, not only those who may have academic difficulties. It is intended to be mainly a preventive rather than remedial program, he said.

Duties of the new assistant director will include ensuring compliance with all rules governing eligibility and financial aid; monitoring and reporting on the academic performance and progress of athletes; ensuring the effective use of an athlete tutoring program and study hall; and working with the coaching staff to evaluate prospective recruits to ensure that they are placed in programs that meet their needs.

Person selected also will be responsible for determining if there is a need to establish programs to advise athletes in such areas as drug use, nutrition, sex education and dealing with professional agents and the media, Hasselmo said.

Decision to make the new assistant director responsible for academic counseling in both men's and women's intercollegiate athletics was, in part, a step toward closer association between the two departments, Hasselmo said.

Qualifications sought in an applicant include an M.A. or Ph.D. in counseling psychology, student personnel or a related field; a strong commitment to intercollegiate athletics and academic values; and experience in a Division I athletic program.

Closing date for applications is June 10. Applications may be sent to John Clark, 200 Morrill Hall, 100 Church St. S.E., Minneapolis, MN 55455.

Rather Rude Reception

We can't presume to speak for the community at large, but personally we feel a little embarrassed by the attitude displayed by city officials following the announcement last week that Bemidji Airlines had been selected by the federal CAB to provide replacement airline service here.

It seems rather rude to us to greet a new business sincerely wanting to serve the community with immediate and total rejection. And it must have severely dampened the pleasure of Bemidji Airlines personnel, after learning of their acceptance by the CAB, to hear their company was not accepted by the mayor and city council of Thief River Falls.

One can perhaps understand a tinge of disappointment when the airline which had been endorsed and supported by the city to provide replacement service was not selected. That endorsement and support had been given after some rather extensive local consideration and discussion, and we're sure the city officials felt their selection would have carried more weight with the CAB than it apparently did.

But we don't feel that being miffed at the CAB is justified, nor do we feel that snubbing the successful bidder by threatening appeal of the CAB decision is proper. We can't apologize for the officials, but we believe we can assure Bemidji Airlines that the sentiment isn't necessarily shared by the community at large. We doubt many taxpayers would voluntarily support an expensive and likely unsuccessful appeal.

It is human nature, we suppose, and certainly symptomatic of government in general, to fail to recognize when wants exceed needs. And it is more difficult to accept losing something you have than in never having had it at all. In short, we have been served beyond our needs and means, and we have been spoiled by it.

It strikes us as rather ungrateful to disdain a $241,000 federal subsidy, which is what the CAB granted to support one year of operation by Bemidji Airlines here. It is also inconsistent with our incessant demands that the federal government cut down on unnecessary spending.

Yes, it would be nice to have the service of large, fast, comfortable, safe, convenient, affordable and available aircraft whenever the mood moves us. Yes, the smaller planes to be used in local service after Republic Airlines pulls out will seem like a definite step down from the cumbersome Convairs. There seemed to be a feeling of security in larger size.

But let's be at least a little realistic and a little understanding. Air traffic which can be generated from the Thief River Falls airport is definitely limited. The airport in itself was largely provided for us by non-local money . . . lots and lots of it. Not every community can have the service of a scheduled airline — much less a line operating with large-capacity aircraft. There's nothing wrong with small town people having big hopes, ideas and dreams, but that doesn't change the small town circumstances. In the final analysis we're lucky to have scheduled air service at all and we are really being offered more than we can logically expect to fully use.

Bemidji Airlines deserves an opportunity to prove itself. It should not be pre-judged as second rate. Its management has already demonstrated a willingness to serve our community and has been thorough and aggressive in seeking the replacement carrier designation. And should some miracle happen and airline traffic blossom beyond prescribed capacities, there will be incentive for comparable changes in service. We believe in miracles but have learned not to expect them.

All of this is not to say that the city's choice, Mesaba Airlines, would have been any less an acceptable choice. Mesaba is an ambitious firm with a good record and will develop with or without service to Thief River Falls. Mesaba president Rob Swenson told us that although he would have dearly loved to serve Thief River Falls, the operations of the company will not be affected by the CAB decision.

The comments made in haste by the mayor and council will fade with time. The chamber of commerce will trot out its Ambassadors and proclaim to Bemidji Airlines that it is a part of Thief River Falls' progress. And we may amend our city's boastful slogan that "Everybody is somebody in Thief River Falls" to add, "even Bemidji Airlines"

Year Of The Raid

Following editorial is from the Baudette Region:

If nothing else, 1983 may go down in history as the "Year of the Raid" for the Minnesota Legislature.

Seldom before in this state's history have the two bodies of the state's legislative branch raided dedicated funds or shifted income from taxes that had been set aside for specific purposes to bolster the state's ailing general fund in the manner that has been done this year.

And those who will pay in the long run for this dangerous trend in the future will be the people, especially those people living in rural areas.

One such shift occurred when the legislature recently passed a compromise gas tax increase. Your gasoline taxes, in case you hadn't noticed it, went up by another three cents on May 1. That was the first of two projected jumps. The second stage takes place on January 1, 1984, when the state tax will rise another penny, for a total increase of four cents. Governor Rudy Perpich had asked for a five cent increase but settled for four.

The purpose behind that increase was admirable in the extreme. The existing level of fuel tax collections just wasn't enough to maintain the state's highways, and that highway system has been deteriorating for years. The additional tax should, at least, allow the Department of Transportation to replace some bridges that badly need replacing and resurface some roads that desperately need resurfacing, before those ailing roads and bridges pass away forever.

But here's the scary part: At the same time that the legislative bodies approved the increase in the gas tax, they also shifted tax monies that had until then been allocated to highways and bridges into the state's general fund. Most of the sales tax raised against the sale of new and used vehicles had until this year been allocated to highway maintenance and replacement. Now that money, or most of it, will go into the general fund.

Another raid attempt took place last week, and this one will come straight from the pocketbooks of the state's taxpayers. State Rep. Phyllis Kahn of Minneapolis in late April proposed transferring $100,000 from the "Chickadee Checkoff" fund to a state jobs program, with said jobs-creation program to be run through the state's general fund.

The "Chickadee Checkoff" is officially known as the Non-game Wildlife Checkoff Fund, a wildlife preservation effort that passed the legislature in 1979. Under it, taxpayers may designate a dollar or two that would go to preserve habitat for non-game wildlife. That dollar or two comes off any income tax refund or is added to any balance due. It's not a tax by the state — it's really a donation by taxpayers to the state's wildlife efforts. And it's specifically earmarked for non-game restoration projects undertaken by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

According to State Sen. Bob Lessard of International Falls, Kahn's proposal would also strip monies from the snowmobile fund, forestry funds and the small-game license surcharge for general fund purposes.

"If her (Kahn's) amendment stays on the appropriations bill it will, in effect, destroy the concept of the program and would set a precedent that could rob this fund, as well as other dedicated funds, of further monies in the future," Lessard said in a prepared news release.

Sorry Bob — the precedent was already established with the transfer of those vehicle sales taxes away from highway purposes.

There are ways to solve the state's chronic general funding problems. Spending cuts would be one. Possible general fund tax increases might be another, though that solution is far from desirable.

But to rob money from formerly dedicated funds, badly needed ones, is not the proper way to solve the fiscal crisis that the state legislature helped create in the first place. And Kahn's proposal is not simply a matter of shifting from one fund to another. It's direct robbery from the people of Minnesota.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Following a serious operation, the woman lay unconscious while her worried husband stood at the foot of her bed. A reassuring nurse told him that "age is on her side".

"I don't know about that," the husband fretted. "She's forty-five."

"Without moving or changing expression, the patient murmered firmly, "Forty-four."

To The Editor:

In response to the statements by Richard Lesher, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

It is really easy to look at the federal, state or county employee and say that he gets his living from the taxpaying public. Being a federal employee I will not argue that, but does Mr. Lesher think that we federal employees do not pay taxes? We pay taxes on income like other wage earners. As such, we are helping to pay our own wages.

We are supposed to be available to the public at all times, even outside of our duty hours. The public just expects this. When a department store closes for the day, people do not expect to go and get the store manager to open up for them. Yet, as another letter writer pointed out, the public employee is ferreted out wherever he is so the public can receive his services.

I find it very offensive to talk about the overpaid-underworked federal employee when we, as federal employees, have had our wages frozen, our health benefits reduced while raising our cost, been required to pay medicare tax of 1.8 per cent (even though a great many federal employees are already covered by social security due to having to work two jobs to make a decent living), and other reductions in benefits.

The unfunded liability of the civil service retirement system is due to the employer (the federal government) not contributing its share as we go along. Just let a private employer not pay its share of social security and see how long it gets by with it!

The misinformation about federal and other public employees is compounded every time someone like Mr. Lesher writes an article without considering all the facts. Averages are just averages. They do not accurately reflect specifics. It would be just as easy to put the top 10 company executives, such as the presidents of Exxon, General Motors, Ford Motor Company, etc. along with the 10 lowest paid employees of the same companies and state that the average wage for that company is the composite average of these figures! The average wage of these 20 people would be quite generous but the figure would be very misleading and unfair to the low paid workers!

Most federal workers are not earning the average $22,000 per year Mr. Lesher refers to. Mr. Lesher forgets that for each employee making $44,000 annually, it takes two employees making $11,000 annually to come up with an average of $22,000. This shows that there are many more federal employees that earn less than $22,000 than those that earn more than this figure. I happen to be in that majority of employees that do not make this high a salary and therefore take exception to Mr. Lesher's assumptions.

Thank you.

Ralph E. Rundell
Federal Employee!

To The Editor:

I was pleased to see that the Times found front-page news in the recent visit to the AVTI by Amanda Smith and in her lectures and discussions concerning sex equity. My mother, a second-year accounting student at the AVTI, told me some of the things Smith had to say, and was very impressed by her.

I am wondering, as summer draws near, whether the Times has now had its consciousness raised sufficiently that the editors will take a second look at the demeaning and (I feel) tasteless practice of photographing Miss Thief River Falls candidates in heels and hot pants, perched like tiny dolls inside rosebuds or upon piano keys.

For true equity — and mutual trust — to be built encompassing men and women in our society, application of ideals has to begin someplace, and I think the Miss Thief River Falls photograph policy would be a dandy place to start.

Thank you.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District 1

A bill that I authored which would strengthen the enforcement of regulations concerning out-of-state truckers was approved last week by the Senate finance subcommittee on agriculture, transportation and semi-states.

The bill would double the number of field workers who are authorized to enforce truck safety standards. It also would increase the penalties for out-of-state truckers who fail to obey Minnesota's motor fuel permit law.

Currently, many out-of-state truckers do not comply with the Minnesota law requiring them to apply for motor fuel permits, nor do they pay their fair share of the gas tax revenues that are required to maintain our state road system. However, we only have eight motor transport representatives in the field to check for compliance. By contrast, North Dakota has 18 field workers, Wisconsin has 90 enforcement officers and Iowa has over 100 motor transport representatives.

My bill would add eight motor transport representatives to our state's staff, for a total of 16 field workers. Revenues from the federal gas tax would be used to pay 80 per cent of the cost of the new positions.

The motor transport representatives would check truck safety conditions, and they would be authorized to write tickets for non-compliance with state regulations. For the first time, the field workers also would be allowed to check motor fuel permits. The penalty for failure to drive with a permit would be increased from $20 or less to $200.

In recent years, as trucks have increased in size and cars have become smaller, the risk of accidents on our state roads has increased dramatically. My bill would help reduce that risk by providing for stricter enforcement of truck safety standards. It also would ensure that the out-of-state truckers who use Minnesota's roads pay their fair share of the costs of maintaining those roads in a safe condition.

Another important provision in my bill calls for the creation of a transportation regulatory board to oversee railroad and trucking operations. The three-person board would take over duties now performed by the public utilities commission and the Minnesota department of transportation in the area of truck operating authority and truck and railroad rate regulation.

My entire bill was added to the omnibus semi-states appropriations bill. It will be acted on by the full Senate finance committee before going to the Senate floor.

In other recent developments, the Senate has been moving forward on efforts to develop workers' compensation legislation that will lower insurance rates for Minnesota employers while protecting the benefits of injured workers.

The Senate employment committee approved a workers' compensation bill on April 25 that would make several major changes in the current system. The bill calls for the creation of a $3 million competitive state fund to offer all employers, particularly small businesses, an alternative to high cost private insurance.

The bill also provides for restructuring of the way workers' compensation benefits are awarded in order to encourage earlier returns to work by employees as well as a fairer distribution of benefits to injured workers most in need. Another important element of the bill would bring medical costs under tighter control by setting up a system to monitor health care providers who treat injured workers.

Discussions are continuing between labor and business representatives and state officials on the workers' compensation issue. I am hopeful that we will pass legislation this session that all sides can support.

I would like to hear from you about issues of concern. Please write to me at my office (306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155), or phone (612) 296-8660.

NCC Baseball Team Has Big Week

With a flair for the dramatics, this could be the most important week in the history of Northland community college baseball program.

Enjoying their most successful season ever, the Northmen this week will play host to the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region 13 semifinals and finals, while also trying to win a Minnesota Community College Conference Northwest Divsion pennant that would bring the MCCC state tournament to Thief River Falls later this month.

Region 13 games are scheduled to be played on the Northland diamond Friday. A pair of first-round games are being played elsewhere today (Monday), with MCCC Northeast Division representative Anoka-Ramsey playing North Dakota state champion Lake Region in Devils Lake, N.D., while MCCC Southwest Division representative North Hennepin plays at the site of Wisconsin's Madison Area Tech.

In Friday's Region 13 semifinals, the North Hennepin vs. Madison Area Tech winner will play the Anoka-Ramsey vs. Lake Region winner at 10 a.m., while MCCC Southeast Division representative Normandale plays host Northland at 1 p.m.

Championship game is scheduled for 4 p.m. The winner will move onto the NJCAA district competition, which in turn, leads to the national tournament May 28 through June 3 at Grand Junction, Colo.

Meanwhile, the Northwest Division title will be on the line Wednesday when Northland hosts Fergus Falls. The Spartans, who swept the Northmen 3-2 and 5-2 at home back on April 20, are currently 6-2 in divisional play and the Northmen are 5-3. Brainerd and the University of Minnesota-Crookston are 3-5 and 2-6, respectively.

Two Fergus Falls wins Wednesday wraps up the Northwest Division pennant for the Spartans, and the division winner will be the host team for the Saturday, May 28, MCCC state tournament. A split Wednesday would maintain Fergus Falls' one-game lead over Northland going into the final regular season doubleheader of the year for both teams Saturday — when the Spartans play Brainerd and the Northmen visit UMC. A Northland sweep Wednesday would give the Northmen a one-game edge going into the finale against the rival Trojans, whom the Northmen swept 5-3 and 6-3 here on April 23.

Northland has been playing baseball for 11 years now, but until this season the Northmen have had little success in the won-loss department. Now they're assured of making their first-ever Region 13 appearance, and are legitimate contenders for a first-time state tournament spot, too.

With a very strong field to contend with and looking realistically at the playoff format down the road, Northland will take on the Region 13 challenge as an opportunity to play against good competition and not worry so much about the outcome. It's the divisional title and state tournament berth that they really want.

"We have to win Wednesday, that's the first thing," acknowledged Northland coach Chet Engelman. "That has to take precedence over the region. We'll go into those (region) games with what we have left from the Fergus Falls games."

THIEF RIVER FALLS pitcher Kerry Wollin checked the Bemidji runner as first baseman Lee Genereux awaited a possible pick-off throw during Thursday's high school baseball game played on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond. The Prowlers had a 6-2 lead, but wound up losing an 8-6 decision to the rival Lumberjacks, dropping their record to 3-3 for the year after opening the season with three straight wins. Bemidji went home with a 4-2 record.

Lumberjacks' Rally Produces 8-6 Victory Over Lincoln Club

Bemidji rallied from a 6-1 deficit to overtake Thief River Falls 8-6 Thursday in a high school baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond here.

After spotting the Prowlers five runs in the first two innings, the Lumberjacks gained a tie with a four-run fifth, then won it with a two-run sixth.

Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell was upset after the loss, but his frustration was directed at himself and not his players. Taking nothing away from a gutsy performance by starter Kerry Wollin, Cornell was second-guessing himself for leaving the pitcher in too long before bringing on Tim Bottem in relief. Wollin was touched for all eight runs and 10 hits before finally leaving the mound in the fifth.

But Cornell said his reluctance at changing pitchers stems from the fact that all of his hurlers are used elsewhere, too. Wollin, Bottem and Brian Johnston are all infielders when they're not on the mound, and Todd Ortloff was in the outfield.

"I hate bringing someone in to pitch when he hasn't had a chance to warm up on the sidelines," he explained.

Meanwhile, Bemidji coach Des Sagedahl had the luxury of having a pitcher on the bench — a good one at that — when he called on Govind Nadesan for a relief appearance in the fifth. Nadesan, the top pitcher on the Bemidji staff, was scratched from the starting line-up because of an ankle injury suffered in practice earlier in the week. He was fit enough, however, to pitch three innings of no-hit ball for the victory.

Thief River Falls got off to a 2-0 start in the first inning off starter Dave Christianson when Bottem doubled with one out to left field. Jim Hallamek reached base on an error and Johnston walked to load them. A fielder's choice play earned an RBI for Wollin and third baseman Jon Nuebeck's second error of the inning made it 2-0.

With two out in the second, Rick Spong doubled to left and scored on a hit-and-run single by Bottem. What would have been an inning-ending force out at second base on a ball hit by Hallamek went into the books as an error when Bemidji's Aaron Anderson juggled the ball, opening up the gates for two unearned Thief River Falls runs on a deep double into the left-center gap by the next batter — Johnston.

The two teams swapped third inning runs. Keith Jewell doubled to the opposite field for the Lumberjacks and scored on a two-out bouncer up the middle by Toby Batchelder. For the Prowlers, Ortloff opened with a single to left, moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Kirk Jenson and scored when a throwing error was tacked onto an infield hit by Mitch Semanko, whose check-swing tapped the ball down the third base line.

Bemidji loaded the bases with nobody out in the fourth, but got just one run out of it on a single by Gary Johnson. A pop-foul, force at the plate and strike-out got Wollin out of further trouble in the inning.

But Bemidji tied it 6-6 in a long fifth inning that featured three walks, a sacrifice, an error and two base hits. RBI's went to John Vanasse, who grounded a bases-loaded single into left field; Johnson on a fielder's choice; and a pair to Jewell, who lined a hard-hit single off Bottem's glove at shortstop.

Thief River Falls came back and put runners into scoring position in the bottom of the inning, but then helped turn a suicide squeeze into an inning-ending Bemidji double play. Singles by Ortloff and Bill Benedict started it, with Jeff Milender moving both runners into scoring position with a sacrifice bunt. But when Steve Wiskow failed to get his bat on the ball on the squeeze play, and Ortloff and Benedict were caught in run-downs.

Bemidji then won it in the sixth on consecutive inning-opening singles by Batchelder, Harry Snodgrass and Joe Edlund, plus a one-out single by Johnson for his third RBI of the game.

Both teams came into the game at 3-2. Thief River Falls will try to snap a three-game losing streak today (Monday) with a 4:30 p.m. game against Tri-County of Karlstad on the fairgrounds diamond. It'll be a busy week for the Prowlers, who will also host Crookston and Roseau in 4:30 games Tuesday and Thursday before participating in the four-team Moorhead invitational tournament Saturday beginning at 12 noon.

EGF Tennis Meet Title Is Won By Green Wave

East Grand Forks and Crookston produced the winners, with the Green Wave out-scoring the Pirates 11-10 to win their own quadrangular high school tennis tournament Thursday. Thief River Falls edged Bemidji 5-4 for third place.

Individual titles went to East Grand Forks' Phil Burke and Del Nelson in first and second singles, plus Todd Tollefson and Todd Martin at second doubles.

Crookston winners included Jeff Claassen at number three singles, plus Brent Melsa and Will Schnabel at first doubles.

Thief River Falls wasn't that far away from winning a few more points, said coach Whitey Olson. "I thought we had a legitimate chance of getting eight points, but it was just one of those days for our kids," he explained.

Olson was happy with the play of seniors Bob Vanyo and Thane Mundell at No. 2 doubles where they lost the title in a 10-9 defeat at the hands of Tollefson and Martin on a 7-4 tie-breaker.

Senior Chad Broadwell also played well at No. 2 singles, said Olson, even though he could muster just one point out of it.

Thief River Falls will have three home appearances this week — a dual vs. East Grand Forks today (Monday) at 3:15 p.m.; a triangular vs. Bemidji and Waubun Tuesday at 2 p.m.; and the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational Friday at 10 a.m. featuring the Prowlers, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Grand Rapids.

That will end the 1983 regular season schedule for the Prowlers.

Doubleheader Won By Northwomen

Northland community college softball team, 1-7 coming into the games, came up with a doubleheader sweep over Rainy River Friday at International Falls, 4-2 and 15-8.

It was a pitcher's duel in the opener between Northland's Marlys Huot and Rainy River's Lynn Morriseau. Huot finished with a four-hitter, striking out eight and walking five.

Northland broke up a scoreless contest in the fourth inning on back-to-back two-out singles by Kim Dehaan and Jackie Bergeron. Dehaan's single scored Mary Kuznia, who had opened the inning with a base hit, and an error tacked on to Bergeron's hit allowed the second run of the inning to cross the plate.

The Northwomen added single runs in the sixth — an RBI single by Kim Phillips — and seventh — an RBI single by Lori Bulzomi.

Rainy River scored on errors in the fifth and sixth innings.

"It was a pretty good game," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson, whose team finished with eight hits. "It was a good pitching duel, and there were some good defensive plays."

There was a lot more offense in the second game as Northland built a 14-0 lead through 2½ innings en route to the 15-8 triumph.

Lori Bulzomi went 4-for-5 with four RBI's in the 12-hit Northland attack.

There was plenty of action as the teams combined for 23 runs, 19 hits and 15 errors. Six of the eight Northland errors occured in the third and fourth innings as Rainy River struck for six runs.

"We were in control early, but they did a good job of shutting us down in the last four innings," explained Jacobson.

BEMIDJI PITCHER Doug Garrigan went to first base with a pick-off attempt Thursday trying to get Thief River Falls runner Todd Ortloff leaning the wrong way in the fifth inning of the high school baseball game played here. Bemidji first baseman John Vanasse put the tag on the runner, but not before he reached the base with his right hand. The Lumberjacks rallied from a 6-2 deficit to post a come-from-behind 8-6 victory over the Prowlers. Thief River Falls hosts Tri-County today (Monday), Crookston Tuesday and Roseau Thursday in a three-game homestand on the fairgrounds diamond.

Northmen Sweep Cardinals 9-7, 8-3

A pair of big innings — a six-run first inning in the opener and a seven-run fifth inning in the nightcap — carried host Northland to a community college baseball doubleheader sweep over Hibbing Saturday.

Northland took the first game 9-7 and added an 8-3 decision in the second contest.

NCC ... 9
Hibbing ... 7

Northland made hard work out of what started out to be an easy first-game victory. The Northmen jumped out to a 6-0 first inning lead and had a 9-0 cushion through three innings, but had to hang on at the end for a 9-7 victory.

Hibbing bunched seven of its eight hits into the fifth and sixth innings for the Cardinals' seven runs, then nearly gained a seventh inning tie when Stan Paczynski drilled a ball that centerfielder Todd Bergland caught at the fence for the final out of the game.

Northland wasted no time whatsoever in jumping on Hibbing pitcher Jay Anderson as Scott McKeever and Kevin Sanders both hit first pitches for a double and single, respectively, in the first inning. McKeever scored on a throwing error on Sanders' steal of second, a play that sent Sanders to third. When Bergland walked, the same situation — an error on the stolen base at second — allowed Sanders to score. Bob Rockwood came up with a one-out RBI single, stole second and scored on a single by Jeff Cwikla. Greg Harder walked and Keith Huerd was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Mark Lundin hit a double deep into the right-center field gap that scored two runs and sent Hibbing centerfielder Terry Garrity tumbling over the waist-high barrier as the ball caromed back toward the infield.

It looked like the Northmen were well on their way to an easy 10-run rule conquest when two more runs crossed the plate in the third as Cwikla opened with a single to right and Harder walked. A wild pitch moved both runners up and they scored a single by Huerd and a sacrifice by Lundin, respectively, making it 8-0.

A lead-off single by Bergland in the fourth, a stolen base and a two-out single to left by Cwikla had Northland sitting comfortably on a 9-0 bulge.

But after three perfect innings and one-hit pitching over four innings, Huerd was touched for three hits and three runs in the fifth, the big blow being a two-run double by Don Juntunen, the No. 9 hitter in the Hibbing batting order.

There were two outs in the Hibbing sixth when the Cardinals erupted for four runs to make it a suddenly tight two-run ball game. Four of the runs were unearned when rightfielder Sanders dropped a fly ball in right field. Two runs scored on that play, then Juntunen and Glen Meci followed with RBI singles.

A walk in the seventh preceded Paczynski's at-bat, putting the tying run at the plate and forcing the Northmen to hold their breath as Bergland back-peddled to pull in the final out.

What was a tightly played 1-1 duel for 4½ innings suddenly evaporated into a Northland rout as the Northmen erupted for seven runs in the fifth for an 8-3 second game triumph.

Northland had scored in the second inning when Bob Rockwood led off with a single to right and went all the way to third on an errant pick-off throw. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Ladd Bjugson.

Hibbing tied it 1-1 in the third as Don Juntunen drew a one-out walk, went to third on a single by Joe Zezel and scored on a double steal.

But Northland broke it open in the fifth with four hits, two walks, two errors and two stolen bases producing the seven runs.

Kevin Sanders had an RBI single to start it. Bjugson added a two-run single to right and Jeff Cwikla belted a two-run double to center, a play that actually produced three runs as he took third on a throw to the plate and scored when the relay from catcher Terry Peterson went down the left field line. McKeever also scored during the inning on a successful double steal.

PLATE UMPIRE Tom Goddard made the safe sign as Northland runner Ladd Bjugson completed his slide past Hibbing catcher Terry Peterson in the fifth inning of the Saturday community college baseball doubleheader nightcap played in Thief River Falls. Bjugson scored from first base on a two-out double to deep center by Jeff Cwikla. It was a big seven-run inning for the Northmen to break open a 1-1 game and lead to an 8-3 victory. Northland took the first game 9-7 for a doubleheader sweep.

Northwomen Host UMC Today . . .

Mesabi, Crookston Top Northland Softball Team

Mesabi and the University of Minnesota-Crookston handed the Northland community college softball team losses Saturday in an invitational tournament at Hibbing.

Northland, 3-9 for the year, will close out its 1983 home schedule today (Monday) with a 3 p.m. doubleheader against UMC. The season ends with a 3 p.m. doubleheader at Fergus Falls Wednesday and a 9 a.m. invitational tournament at Anoka-Ramsey Saturday.

Mesabi broke up a 7-7 tie with three-run outbursts in the sixth and seventh innings for the 13-8 first-round decision.

"We got in trouble with too many walks," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson. The winners combined 10 base hits with eight walks and five Northland errors, scoring five times off combination wild pitches and passed balls.

Northland scored three times in the first inning on just one base hit as three Mesabi errors and an RBI sacrifice fly by Marlys Huot plated the runs. Huot struck out five in a losing effort on the mound, but was touched for 14 hits. Mesabi pitcher Vickie Deverlandt also had trouble in the strong wind, issuing seven walks to go along with six hits and seven Mesabi errors.

UMC pitcher Deb Gildersleeves limited Northland to just one base hit as the Trojans beat the Northwomen 11-5 in the tournament's consolation round.

Most of Northland's offense came on 13 walks, but UMC turned three double plays to prevent further damage. The Trojans collected 10 hits and had a six-run fourth inning to expand a 5-4 lead.

Marlys Huot, pitching in her fourth game in two days, turned in a gutsy performance, but wasn't terrible strong, admitted Jacobson. She walked five and passed balls scored four UMC runs.

"We had the ability to win both games," said Jacobson, "but we run out of gas, plus an injury and illness forced us into some different line-up combinations."

LHS Baseball JV Takes Two From Karlstad

Lincoln high school junior varsity baseball team improved its record to 3-2 Friday with a doubleheader sweep over Tri-County at Karlstad.

Thief River Falls won the opener 10-2 as winning pitcher Ryan Drees also led the offense with a 2-for-3 plate performance.

It was a 10-7 Thief River Falls win in the nightcap as Tim Nyland picked up the win and Jeff Anderson went 3-for-4 at the plate.

Thief River Falls will host Crookston Tuesday and Roseau Thursday in 4:30 p.m. games.

DNR hotline

1. Why is the level of Blackduck Lake allowed to remain so low? Last year we didn't have enough water to dock our boats and this year I understand Hines Township is already letting the water out. Why won't the DNR stop them? Mrs. Sam Riesen, Blackduck.

When the level of Blackduck Lake is at or above the Ordinary High Water elevation of 1346 feet (1.75 feet on the gage at the outlet dam), erosion of shoreline and roadways become a problem. When the lake level is at 1344 feet, shallow water and decaying vegetation become a problem.

To help avoid high water property damage, the Blackduck Lake dam is opened when the lake level reaches 1345.4 feet. To help prevent excessive lake drainage, the dam is closed when the level is at 1344.7 feet.

Ownership of the Blackduck Lake dam was transferred from the DNR to Hines Township in 1978 by special legislation. It is now the township's responsibility to open and close the dam within the above limits in accordance with an operating plan. Gerald L. Paul, Regional Hydrologist.

2. Is it legal for me to spear suckers with a crossbow? Gary MacRunnel, Starbuck; I am 73 and have arthritis in my shoulders. I would like to continue to bow hunt deer, but I can no longer pull a bow to the legal strength. Can I get a special crossbow permit? I understand Wisconsin does this. Marvin Mehrkens, Thief River Falls.

It is illegal to use a crossbow to hunt or fish. Paraplegics and quadraplegics may get a special crossbow permit from the commissioner but these are not issued to anyone who is physically able to hunt with a bow and arrow, shotgun, rifle or pistol. Butch Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

4. Got a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write DNR "Hotline", Region I, 2115 Birchmont, Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone: 218-755-3976.

Fishing Contest Sponsored By St. Paul Paper

Saturday, May 14, marks the opening of the 31st annual St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch fishing contest. Once again the focus is on family fishing fun in the heart of one of the world's finest fishing areas, with $27,000 worth of merchandise prizes to add to the enjoyment of the catch, according to contest officials.

During the 17 weekly contests which continue through Sunday, September 11, the newspapers will award over 200 merchandise prizes. Every fish entered will be eligible at the close of the contest for the super sweepstakes drawing, which will award the biggest single prize of all — a complete fishing package consisting of a boat, 25-h.p. outboard motor and a trailer. This prize package will provide years of fishing enjoyment. Also, every week, two drawings will be made from all entries received during that particular week, one of which will be only for kids 15-years-old or younger. Winners will each be awarded the sportsman prize, a tackle box plus a Fish 'N' Hat and various fishing merchandise.

In addition, there will be one other drawing in September for the angler's award which is an original painting entitled "It's Feeding Time" — Walleyes, by wildlife artist Floyd Schrodt.

Six grand prizes will be awarded by drawing to a person in each of the classifications — muskie, northern, walleye, crappie, sunfish and bass.

All weekly prize packages include a Shakespeare Sigma line, Orbex Bar Buoy and Boatbuff, DataSport Fish & Game Forecaster, Dan Gapen's Fishing World tackle, Minnesota Lakemaps gift certificate and Water Gremlin sinker selection. In addition, first prize packages include a Roger Preuss Wildlife of America collector print, one-year subscription to Outdoor Outlines, Rapala Fish 'n' Fillet knife and "How to Clean a Mess of Fish" book from Normark, and a Shakespeare Omni spinning reel; second prize packages include a Lunker Ledger.

Over 1,500 resorts, bait shops, boat landings and sport shops will receive official entry entry blanks supplied by the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch which will be made available to anyone who asks for one. Entry blanks — which must be used — list all the rules on the back of each blank. Official announcement of the prize winners is made each week on the sports pages of the St. Paul Sunday Pioneer Press.

To be eligible, each fish entered must be legally caught in Minnesota, its boundary waters or any of the 24 western Wisconsin counties listed on the back of each entry blank. Individuals may enter as often as they wish, but only one entry per fish. No more than one member of an immediate family will be eligible for any first or second prize. Additional winning-size fish will win honorable mention awards and maintain their chance at the grand prizes and the super sweepstakes prize package.

Winners of the grand prizes, the super sweepstakes prize package and the angler's award will be published on September 25 in the St. Paul Sunday Pioneer Press.

HIBBING SHORTSTOP Glen Mecl was still waiting for the ball to arrive as Northland runner Scott McKeever completed his slide into second for a first inning stolen base in the first game of Saturday's community college baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls. The Northmen collected five base hits and three stolen bases during a six-run first inning that eventually produced a 9-7 victory. Northland added an 8-3 second game win for a sweep.

Northland, Hibbing Split Sunday Baseball Twinbill

Northland and Hibbing players had a chance to become well-acquainted over the weekend during a four-game community college baseball series played in Thief River Falls. The Cardinals' stay was extended even longer Sunday when both games required extra innings to complete.

Hibbing won the opener 10-6 in nine innings and Northland took the nightcap 3-2 in eight innings.

On Saturday, Northland swept Hibbing 9-7 and 8-3. The results left the Northmen with a 12-4 season record while the Cardinals fell to 5-13.

Hibbing scored four times in the top of the ninth inning to finally put an end to a three-hour first-game marathon Sunday.

There were two out when the scoring started in the ninth on consecutive RBI-producing hits by Joe Zezel, Pat Roach and Kevin Knoop.

Northland freshman righthander Bob Rockwood of Fargo, who took the loss with a one-inning relief job in the first game, came back to pitch a four-hitter in the eight-inning second game for the victory in the 3-2 Northland triumph.

After spotting Hibbing a one-run edge in the top of the fourth, Northland scored twice in the bottom of the inning when Rockwood, who had reached base on an error, scored on a long double over the leftfielder's head by Greg Harder. With two out, Brent Walton's single scored Harder.

Hibbing tied it 2-2 in the sixth on a suicide squeeze bunt by Todd Buchwitz and loaded the bases in the seventh before Rockwood got out of the jam with a full-count strike-out on Hibbing's Eric Hakala.

Northland won it in the eighth after the first two batters had been retired as Joe Ramiller walked and Walton was given first base on an interference call against the catcher. Mark Lundin then came through with a game-ending RBI single to right.

Northland coach Chet Engelman said he was very satisfied with the three wins in four tries against a Hibbing squad that was much better than its record would indicate.

"It was a good series for us. Hibbing has a nice ball club. We made some mental mistakes, but the kids hustled," he said.

Chippewa National Forest Has Campgrounds Ready For Visitors

Most of the Chippewa national forest's 25 campgrounds are ready for the opening of fishing season May 14, and won't close until after Labor Day weekend. Six campgrounds are open year-round.

A new fee schedule for 1983 sets daily fees at most of the campgrounds at $5 to $7. This is an increase of a dollar or two over last year's fees, reflecting a nationwide effort to make national forest campgrounds less competitive with commercial operations and to pay their way. Fees are based on the amount and quality of services at each camping area. At many campgrounds, an additional $2 will be charged for lakeshore and other premium units this year. These sites receive heavy use, requiring more maintenance. The additional fee helps to distribute use more evenly, and those who do not want to pay a higher price can choose sites not on the lakeshore.

Two congressionally authorized passes provide a 50 per cent discount on fees at national forest campgrounds. Golden Age Passports are available at no cost to persons over 62 years of age, as are Golden Access Passports for blind and permanently disabled persons. These passports cannot be obtained by mail because applicants must show proof of their age or physical condition; but they are available at the forest supervisor's and ranger district offices.

Listed below are the Chippewa national forest offices where more detailed information on campgrounds can be obtained. The campgrounds on each ranger district are listed, with the dates that they will be open. The figures in parentheses show the number of family sites in each campground and the daily campsite fee. Where two fees are listed, the higher one is for lakeshore units:

Forest supervisor's office, Cass Lake, MN 56633.

Blackduck Ranger district, Blackduck, MN 56630. Noma Lake — year-long (14) ($5); Webster Lake — year-long, (24) ($5).

Cass Lake ranger district, Cass Lake, MN 56633. Norway Beach Recreation Complex: Norway Beach Loop — May 27 - Oct. 12, (55) ($6); Wanaki Loop — May 13 - Sept. 12, (46) ($6-$8); Chippewa Loop — May 27 - Sept. 12, (19) ($6); South Pike Bay — year-long, (21) ($4-$6); Knutson Dam — year-long, (14) ($5); Winnie — year-long, (42) ($5); Ojibway — May 27 - Sept. 7, (40) ($5-$7); Nushka Group Campground — May 1 - Oct. 8, ($25 for groups of 50 or less); Star Island — May 15 - Oct. 15, (3) (no charge); Richard's Townsite — year-long, (7) (no charge).

Deer River ranger district, Deer River, MN 56636. Plug Hat Point — May 12 - Sept. 15, (13) ($4); Mosomo Point — May 12 - Oct. 15, (24) ($5-$7); Williams Narrows — May 12 - Oct. 15, (17) ($6-$7); East Seelye Bay — May 12 - Oct. 15, (13) ($5-$7); West Seelye Bay — May 9 - Sept. 15, (22) ($4); Six Mile Lake — May 12 - Sept. 15, (11) ($4); Tamarack Point — May 9 - Oct. 15, (35) ($5-$7); Deer Lake — May 12 - Oct. 1, (48) ($5-$7); O-Ne-Gum-E — May 9 - Oct. 15, (50) ($5-$7); Middle Pigeon — May 12 - Sept. 15, (3) (no charge).

Marcell Ranger District, Marcell, MN 56657. Clubhouse Lake — May 13 - Nov. 15, (51) ($4-$6); North Star — May 25 - Sept. 10, (43) ($5-$7).

Walker ranger district, Walker, MN 56484. Mabel Lake — May 13 - Sept. 12, (21) ($4-$6); Stony Point — May 13 - Sept. 12, (44) ($6); Shingobee Group Camp — year-long, (one group, 75 people maximum) (no charge).

Fees collected help pay for operation and maintenance of these campgrounds. Twenty-five per cent of the fee, returned to the state and distributed to those counties in which campgrounds are located, is designated for support of local school and road programs.

Bobcat Furs Are Seized By FWS Officials

A routine inspection of a wildlife export by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Chicago's O'Hare Airport recently led to the seizure of 480 bobcat pelts valued at $144,000.

Wildlife inspectors discovered that two bales consigned, invoiced, marked and declared as "grey fox" actually contained untagged bobcat pelts. The bales of fur were consigned to foreign commerce by Cambridge Hide and Fur Centre, Inc., of Cambridge, Wisconsin.

Bobcats are an Appendix II species protected by the endangered species convention to which the United States is a signatory country. The convention places restrictions on the international trade of wildlife listed in the Appendices. At the time of seizure, export of bobcat pelts from the United States was prohibited by law, regulation and federal court injunction. Also, at the time of seizure, the bobcat pelts forfeited were untagged, an additional requirement by federal law and regulation.

An investigation by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agents revealed that Cambridge Hide and Fur Centre, Inc., in their physical inventory and records, had no grey fox pelts which could have been exported, but did have approximately 700 bobcat pelts missing from their inventory.

Chippewa Will Observe 75th Forest Season

This year — 1983 — marks the 75th anniversary of the Chippewa national forest and the 50th anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC).

Situated near the headwaters of the Mississippi in north-central Minnesota, the Chippewa has a unique history. On May 23, 1908, it became one of the first national forests to be created by an Act of Congress.

Establishment of the Chippewa was the result of a compromise satisfying the interests of park advocates, lumbermen and settlers. In the beginning, because 75 per cent of the land was mostly burned over and void of young growth, work was primarily custodial. The task of renewal and protection was assigned to the federal Forest Service. As the resources recovered, the mission of the Forest Service evolved from one of protection to that of management.

Forest was first identified as the Minnesota national forest. Referred to as the Chippewa national forest from the start, it wasn't until 1928 that this became the official name, by executive order.

As the country went through the great depression, President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) in 1933. The CCC gave impetus to forest resource management as we know it today. Thousands of young men in 22 different camps worked at tree planting, firefighting, timber stand improvement, road and fire trail construction, lookout tower construction, wildlife habitat improvement and the development of recreational facilities.

Being harvested today to meet the nation's continuous need for wood products are some of the pine plantations planted by these Corpsmen. Near Blackduck, Rabideau CCC camp has been preserved. Placed on the National Register of Historic Places, it is one of only a few remaining CCC camps in the nation.

To help celebrate these anniversaries, the following activities are planned for the summer and fall months:

+Dedication of the Chippewa campground, a new campground in the Norway Beach area of the Cass Lake Ranger district.

+Interpretive programs emphasizing history at the Norway Beach campground complex on the Cass Lake Ranger district throughout the summer, including a Mississippi river canoe tour in August.

+CCC reunion at Camp Rabideau on the Blackduck Ranger district on the first weekend in August, sponsored by CCC Company 708 alumni.

+Open house at the Chippewa national forest supervisor's office, a three-story log building constructed in part by CCC labor, now on the National Register of Historic Places, is scheduled for Cass Lake in late summer.

+Walker North Country marathon race will traverse the Walker Ranger district and is scheduled for October 8.

Public is invited to attend all of the planned events. Details on dates and times will be forthcoming.

We hope you will visit the Chippewa National Forest to see the results of 75 years of administration, and to help celebrate its anniversary, invite forest officials.

GTA, NPGG Members To Vote In May

Members of the Grain Terminal association (GTA), St. Paul-based grain marketing and processing cooperative, and North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc. (NPGG), of Portland, OR, will hold special meetings of members later in May to vote on resolutions which will lead to an exchange of equity.

Farmer-chairmen of the two organizations recently outlined the proposals their members will be asked to vote upon.

GTA members are being asked to adopt a resolution to amend GTA's articles of incorporation and bylaws. If approved, GTA's name would be changed to Harvest States cooperatives, said Donald F. Giffey, chairman of the GTA board of directors.

North Pacific members will vote on exchanging their equity in NPGG for equity of Harvest States cooperatives, said Ronald E. Watkins of Ritzville, WA, president of the North Pacific board. Approval would result in NPGG members becoming members of Harvest States cooperatives, Watkins said.

Balloting will be completed by GTA members May 27. North Pacific members will vote the preceding day. Both must give their approval for the transaction to become effective.

North Pacific and GTA are numbered among the nation's major regional grain marketing cooperatives. NPGG serves farmers in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah. GTA operates in 16 states, primarily in the Upper Midwest.

MN Commerce, Industry Group Urges Reform

Minnesota association of commerce and industry recently analyzed survey findings and concluded that legislation is needed in Minnesota to reform the state's job and business climate.

First, the small business development center at St. Thomas college in St. Paul released a study showing that 407 companies expanded or relocated beyond the state of Minnesota between 1967 and 1982 because of high taxes and high workers' compensation costs. As a result, over 87,000 manufacturing jobs were directly lost and about 90,000 other jobs were lost in industries which supply manufacturers with parts and services they require.

Next, on the same day the St. Thomas study was announced, came news that Minnesota had lost in its effort to attract a major new high technology company which hoped to create the next generation of computers because of high taxes, high housing costs, and lack of a high-quality computer and electrical engineering graduate school. The result is perhaps a significant setback in Governor Perpich's plan to place Minnesota's economic future in the hands of high technology development.

Then, barely two weeks later, St. Cloud state university released the results of its survey of 1,000 Minnesota businesses. That study showed that 87 per cent of those decision makers view our tax structure as below average or poor; 76 per cent felt the same way about the overall business-jobs climate in Minnesota, while 53 per cent believe businesses are damaged by too much state regulation.

"In all three cases, however, Minnesota's quality of life and our location with respect to markets were sighted as pluses . . . but simply not enough to make up for the difficulties," Win Borden, president of the Minnesota association of commerce and industry, reported.

"Moreover, all three cases show us that the factors which are most troubling and destructive to business in Minnesota are also factors which we have the power to change for the better," Borden continued.

"The fact is that legislators still have the opportunity during this current session to substantially reduce workers' compensation and unemployment compensation costs for business," Borden said, "Legislators still have the opportunity to pass a fair and workable superfund bill that will clean up hazardous waste sites without imposing onerous liability standards on businesses."

Borden concluded, "And legislators still have the opportunity to pass a tax bill which maintains tax indexing and federal deductibility."

Stumpf Pleased By 24-Hour Border Service

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has lauded the U.S. customs service for its recent decision to continue operating the Baudette and Warroad border crossing stations on a 24-hour-a-day basis.

"The customs service's decision is an example of the cooperative spirit that has characterized our country's relationship with Canada for many years," Stumpf said. "I am hopeful that the same spirit will help us work out differences over hunting and fishing regulations that have been proposed by the Ontario government."

The customs service and the immigration and naturalization service (INS), which jointly run the border crossing stations, announced earlier this year that they were considering reducing the hours of operation as a cost-cutting measure. The INS eliminated one inspector from each station, and the customs service said that it couldn't pick up the slack.

"Curtailing the border stations' hours would have created a great hardship for residents of both Canada and the United States," Stumpf said. "It would have particularly affected the many residents who cross the border in order to get to jobs in the neighboring country.

"Businesses also would have been hurt by limitations in movement across the border," Stumpf said. "Medical care, fire-fighting services and recreational activities that involve communities on either side of the border would have been disrupted. In addition, the change would have created problems for tourists and truck and train traffic.

Stumpf noted that Minnesota officials are now meeting with representatives of the Ontario government to try to work out a compromise on hunting and fishing regulations. As originally proposed, the regulations would have cut deeply into the business of Minnesota resorts because of restrictions on day travel into Canada by hunters and fishermen.

"By accommodating the concerns of the Canadians about the border crossing stations' hours, we have shown our willingness to be flexible and cooperative," Stumpf said. "I am hopeful that the Canadians will respond in kind by modifying the proposed regulations."

Langseth To Run For 7th District Seat

State Senator Keith Langseth, a farmer from Glyndon, is the first DFL member to announce his candidacy for the 7th Congressional district seat currently held by Republican Arlan Stangeland.

In a letter to 7th District delegates, alternates and party regulars, Langseth cited his 1974 defeat of Stangeland for Stangeland's Minnesota House seat.

"The fact that I defeated Stangeland before makes me unique among the candidates seeking the DFL endorsement," Langseth said.

Langseth said that as the DFL candidate, he would be able to take support away from Stangeland in his home base in the west central portion of the district.

In the letter, Langseth also mentions his 25 years as a dairy and grain farmer and his experience as a state legislator. "My family, farming and legislative experiences have prepared me to be an effective representative for the 7th District," he wrote.

After defeating Stangeland in 1974, Langseth served in the House of Representatives until 1978. He was elected to the Senate in 1980 and was re-elected in 1982.

Rohde Is Among Candidates For Education Commissioner

Fred Rohde, executive director of the Northwest Educational Cooperative Service unit (NWECSU) in Thief River Falls, is listed among eight finalists being considered for the position of Minnesota commissioner of education.

There were 17 original applicants for the position which is being vacated by the resignation of John Feda. Present law provides that the commissioner of education is appointed by the nine-member state board of education with approval by the governor and confirmation by the state senate.

However, the legislature is now considering a bill which would give the governor authority to appoint the commissioner. If that bill is approved — and it will likely be acted upon before the legislature is scheduled to adjourn May 23 — the state board of education selection would be cut short. The state board is not expected to vote on a commissioner until June 2.

Gov. Perpich's reported favorite candidate is Ruth Randall, superintendent of schools at Rosemount. Others among the eight finalists are A. Dean Hendrickson, professor of education at the University of Minnesota-Duluth; William Nachitilo, St. Louis county superintendent of schools; Allan Odden, director of policy, analysis and research for the Education Commission of the States in Denver, CO; Mary Thornton Phillips, assistant commissioner for vocational and technical education for the Minnesota department of education; and William A. Volk, Washington Crossing, PA.

STREET ROD BUILDERS create their automotive gems with countless hours of work, bartering for parts and service, buying or hiring what they can't build or perform for themselves. This sequence of photos shows the 1937 Chevrolet standard coupe which Bryan Steiger began working with in November of 1981, had running to drive to the street rod nationals in Minneapolis in July of 1982 and exhibited in Grand Forks April 16-17. The bottom photo is from the Grand Forks show. Steiger said he put 1,000 to 1,500 hours of his own time into the project, plus receiving help from friends and hiring some of the work done. The completed car has automatic transmission, a 1978 Chevrolet 350 engine, power steering, power brakes, tilt and telescoping steering, AM-FM radio, digital clock and 1975 Mustang front end suspension. The car will be among approximately 100 on display at the sports arena in Thief River Falls May 21 and 22 for the fourth annual North Country auto showtime.

Project Review Committee Hears Reports

Local project review committee on the candidate hazardous waste disposal site in Marshall county met in Newfolden last week, continuing its study of the hazardous waste issues, according to committee member Marcella Gonsorowski of rural Newfolden.

Lawrence Sunsdahl of Stephen, who has been appointed a temporary member of the Minnesota waste management board, reported on the board's April meeting and the proposed Battelle report. Battelle Memorial Institute would provide data to the waste management board for development of a uniform costing format for hazardous waste disposal.

Sunsdahl said that the institute did not propose to develop cost estimates based upon equal level of risk. Crystalline bedrock disposal, which has been discussed lately, would have a higher initial cost. It is anticipated that the bedrock concept will be included in the designated study area by July of this year; but Sunsdahl said there appeared to be reservations among board members as to whether temporary members should be permitted to vote on that issue.

David Cera, a planner for the waste management board, was introduced by Jerry Johnson, WMB representative for the Marshall county site. He compared waste regulations in Minnesota with those nationally, noting that waste oil, for instance, is not considered a hazardous waste at the federal level but is considered hazardous in Minnesota.

Mitigation and compensation overview was conducted to identify impacts which could result if a hazardous waste disposal site were developed in Marshall county. Projected as risks are water contamination, fire, explosion, spills and physical, economic and social impacts in the area.

Next meeting of the committee will be conducted May 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Newfolden community center and is open to the public.

Viking 4H Wins Marshall Co. Share-The-Fun

Approximately 400 people viewed the 1983 Marshall county 4-H share-the-fun festival recently at the Warren high school auditorium. Nineteen acts were shared with family and friends.

Champion act of the festival was a selection of musical numbers performed by "Country Cousins", members of the Viking Volcanoes 4-H club. Members included Jeff and Joel Erickson, Jayne Erickson, Julie Gustafson, Wendy Shern, Ken Krohn and Denise Olson. The group will represent Marshall county at the state fair.

Reserve champion act was dramatic and entitled "Six Minutes." Members of the Ringbo Bobcats 4-H club included in the act were Maria Erickson, Charlene Fillmore, Troy Myhrer, Ronnie and Tami Inman, Jeremy and Ericka Lund, Sharon Rostvet, Nancy Newland and Robert Swenson.

Share-the-fun, as the name indicates, is a way for 4-H members to share their fun with others through the element of performing acts. Acts were entered in one of three categories: musical, dramatic and stunt or dance routines.

Other top acts were: New Maine 4-H — first in dance, "Fighting Chance"; McCrea 4-H — second in dance, "Memory Lane"; Comstock 4-H — second in musical, "Old McDonald's Farm"; and McCrea 4-H — second in dramatic.

"Country Cousins," New Maine dance routine, "Six Minutes" and "Old McDonald's Farm" will perform during 4-H night at Marshall county's fair on July 15.

Council Considers Lease-Sale Pact

Thief River Falls city council heard reports on negotiations for the lease-sale of the municipal service building; possible subsidy of Fred's cab service; status of the replacement air carrier, Carnegie Library building, real estate tax adjustments, and highway project funding among other business at their regular meeting held last night in city auditorium.

Alderman James Womack reported that the finance committee had been negotiating with Jeff Hackett and Gary Flynn of Northern Outerwear for the lease and sale of the building presently being used by the utilities and parks and recreation departments. Those departments will be moving into the former Toreq building, as soon as preparations are completed.

Womack noted that although some negotiation was still going on, the committee had a letter of intent from Northern Outerwear, and had settled on a final figure of $112,000 for the building, which was purchased by the city 10 years ago for $110,000. Agreement would allow the manufacturing firm to lease the building at $1,000 a month for one year, with an additional $8,000 to be paid at the end of that year. That money would be applied as a down payment at that time, and the company would be issued a contract for deed on the remainder at 10 per cent interest for 15 years.

Presently employing 22 workers, the firm is considering expansion in the new facilities, with possible addition of a retail outlet and metal fabrication shop. Employment was projected to increase to possibly 50 workers. Flynn requested that further negotiations continue regarding possible prepayment on the contract. Council commended the committee, and passed a motion to have negotiations continue until a complete contract had been defined.

Aldermen Don Goodrich and Milan Borsheim reported on studies made by the transportation committee in an effort to prevent the loss of taxi service in Thief River Falls. Art Cloutier, owner of Fred's Cab Service, had previously requested council to consider some sort of assistance to his financially troubled company. Cloutier noted that competition from the Tri-Valley bus program which is subsidized by the state, county and city had cut his business substantially. He emphasized that his business currently offered the advantages of 24 hour service with no route restrictions or waiting.

Recommendation of the committee included approval of a fare increase for Fred's Cab from $2.50 to $3, and provision to subsidize use of the cab service by senior citizens. Suggestion on the subsidy was that the city sell coupons to senior citizens for $1.50, and redeem the coupons collected by Fred's Cab for $2.50; in effect, subsidizing senior citizens $1 for each time they used the cab. Trial of this program was suggested for three months. In addition

At the waistline was a wide, satin-trimmed sash tied into a bow in back. Her headpiece was a silk bridal wreath of ecru and pale peach roses and babies' breath complemented in back by a cascade of coordinating satin ribbons. She carried a nosegay of silk flowers featuring ecru and peach roses, alstroemeria lilies, babies' breath and lace.

Attending the bride were Karen Gray, Nacogdoches, as maid of honor, Donna Goulet, Minneapolis, and Faye McClanahan, Austin, Tex. Their attire included floor-length peach satin skirts and ecru, lace-trimmed blouses with peach satin ribbons at the waistline. They wore silk flowers in their hair and carried small, silk nosegays of ecru and peach roses, babies' breath and lace.

David Clark, Center, Tex., was best man. Groomsmen were Michael Bregier, Nacogdoches, and Bill Swanger, St. Antonio, Tex. They wore brown tuxedos, ecru shirts with wing-tipped collars, and wide ascots. The groom wore an ecru tuxedo, matching the color of the bride's gown.

Out-of-town guests were from Thief River Falls and Minneapolis; Colorado Springs and Denver, Colo., and Austin, San Antonio, Lufkin, Center, Palestine and Houston, Tex.

Following the ceremony, a reception at the Watkins House, another renovated building at Millard's Crossing, was hosted by the bride's father and the groom's brothers-in-law and sisters: Mr. and Mrs. Mike McClain and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith.

The preceding evening, a rehearsal dinner, also at the Watkins House, was hosted by the groom's parents. It featured a southern style dinner catered by Annie's Kitchen.

Ihne Named By Easton To Provost Office

served as an English instructor at Casper college, the University of Wyoming, Muscatine community college, and in public schools.

Her bachelor's degree is from Western college for women, her master's degree from the University of Wyoming, and she has done additional work at Oxford university, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Iowa.

During her two years in Thief River Falls, Ihne has become a member of the Thief River golf club and the Thief River Falls curling club, local chapter of the American Association of University women and the Business and Professional Woman's club. She has also served on the community education committee of the local school district.

Ihne has been heavily involved in development of off-campus courses for adults at Stephen, Middle River and Roseau, primarily in computers, with the Roseau program now having 80 enrolled and plans made to begin attendance courses at Roseau this fall.

Her effort has provided help for students with initial learning difficulties at the college and led to adding of a foreign language (Spanish) to the curriculum this fall.

"My biggest regret is in leaving the faculty and staff at Northland," Ihne told the Times, "because I have found them to be the most professional and cooperative people I have ever worked with in my life. And I thoroughly enjoyed Thief River Falls as a community. I really believe people who have lived here all their lives don't realize what a great community they have as much as those of us who move here from somewhere else."

Brainerd vice provost Dale Nathan has served the college as dean of students for 12 years, and as a staff member since 1963. His roles at Brainerd have been as a faculty member, evening school coordinator, assistant to the dean and assistant to the president. Previous experience included public school work at various North Dakota communities. He is a bachelor's degree graduate of Minot state, and his master's degree is from the University of North Dakota.

Dan True, the new provost at Fergus Falls, started at the college in 1969, orginally as a faculty member in the business department. He was appointed director of occupational programs and community services in 1971. Before coming to Fergus Falls, he served on the faculty at Wayne state college in Nebraska, and in the community school in Coleridge, NB. True has a master's degree from Wayne state and additional graduate work at the University of Nebraska.

Vice provost Harold Collins, a master's degree graduate of Idaho state university, came to Fergus Falls as a counselor in 1962, and became director of student affairs in 1964. He formerly was director of admissions and head football coach at Bethany college in Lindsborg, KA, and a graduate assistant at Idaho state. A bachelor's degree graduate of Bethany, Collins has also attended Moorhead state university.

Four-day tour of several innovative North Dakota and Manitoba beef cattle operations is being planned by the Minnesota agricultural extension service and the state cattleman's association.

Scheduled July 19 to 22, the bus tour features stops at one of the largest purebred Simmental ranches in North America and a 5,000-head capacity custom feedlot providing minimal weather protection. The group will also stop at a purebred Angus operation, which, according to one Canadian agricultural official, has the finest performance-selected herd in Canada.

Canada's new meat grading system will be examined at a packing house tour; livestock research projects will be viewed at Canada's livestock research center in Brandon. In addition, stops at two North Dakota ranches are planned. The group will be accompanied by two University of Minnesota beef cattle extension specialists, who will provide information about the sites along the way.

Beef cattle study tour costs $249 per participant, which includes transportation, lodging and several meals. For registration details, write the Office of Special Programs, 405 Coffey Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108, phone (612) 373-0725.

Jobs Program Trains More At Less Cost

Every dollar spent by the greater Minnesota job training programs is buying more job training service this year than it would have a year ago, a report shows.

Compared to the same period a year ago, the report indicates that for the five-month period ending February 28 enrollment in job training programs was up 13 per cent, to 4,963.

However, expenditures increased only 1.5 per cent, to $3,631,802. The number of trainees who found jobs in private industry was up nine per cent, to 855, and per person cost for training was down 10 per cent to $732.

Rick Hokanson, greater Minnesota job training programs director, said he attributes some of the increased efficiency to greater emphasis on on-the-job training in which employers share the cost of training a new employee.

Hokanson said the report shows the number of on-the-job trainees increased 37 per cent, to 1,081, while the expenditures for on-the-job training went up only 16 per cent, to $845,971.

"The increased use of on-the-job training also contributed to our higher placement rate," Hokanson said. "An employer is much more likely to hire a person he has trained himself."

However, new techniques developed by the programs' experienced professionals improved performance and helped hold down costs, Hokanson said.

Particularly effective, he said, was a new program called "Job Search." In this program, groups of job seekers work together with staff to provide each other with support and encouragement as they learn and use job-finding techniques.

Hokanson said 538 persons joined Job Search groups during the period covered by the report, an increase of 125 per cent when compared with the same period last year.

Hokanson noted that program emphasis is continually being adjusted to meet changing conditions. "As our economy rebounds, jobs will become more plentiful but in some cases people will need new skills in order to qualify," Hokanson said. "We are going to offer them the retraining they will need to get back to work."

Greater Minnesota job training programs provide employment and training services to 51 Minnesota counties in the southern, central and northwestern portions of the state.

Rux also recognized Jaycees of the month for the past five months, presenting certificates to Ken Yutrzenka for December, Kjell Melvie and Bruce Restad of January, Dave Cariveau for February, Gary Rux for March, and himself for the month of April. Al drew a good laugh as he attempted a congratulatory handshake with himself.

MN Observes Transportation Week In May

Transportation's contributions to Minnesota's economic growth and development will be the focus of the state's observation of national transportation week, May 15 to 22, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) and the Minnesota national transportation week committee announced.

In proclaiming the week's observation in Minnesota, Governor Rudy Perpich said the economic well-being of the state now depends on a viable transportation system just as it did in the past when Red River ox carts opened trade to the West and steamboats brought new settlers up the Mississippi river. He also urged Minnesotans to reflect on the contribution transportation makes in their everyday lives.

Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun said the week's emphasis on transportation's providing lifelines for Minnesota is appropriate because improved facilities such as highways, railways, waterways and airports enable continued growth of the state's economy and increased job opportunties for Minnesotans.

"For example," Braun said, "each million dollars spent for road improvements means about 42 private sector jobs and results in more efficient movement of agricultural and industrial products in the state.

"An improved transportation system spurs economic growth by enlarging the area that industry and consumers may draw upon for employees, resources and services and expands the area in which a business may distribute its products economically," he added.

Tax Freedom Day Delayed In Minnesota

Minnesota taxpayers will celebrate tax freedom day today (Wednesday) — nine days later than the typical taxpayer nationwide, according to the Minnesota taxpayers association.

Tax freedom day is the day when the typical worker would owe no more taxes if, from January 1, every dollar of income earned was used to pay federal, state and local taxes. After this date, the workers are free to spend the remaining income as they choose.

U.S. tax freedom day calculations are made by economists of Tax Foundation Inc., a nationally recognized research organization. The foundation reports that with the exception of the last two years, the trend has been relentless — more and more time on the job just to keep the tax collector away. The good news for the average U.S. worker is that tax freedom day falls one day earlier in 1983 than the revised date in 1982. In addition, the 1982 date was four days earlier than the date in 1981.

Foundation attributes the respite for taxpayers to the impacts of the economic recovery tax act, which was enacted by Congress in 1981. On the minus side however, the foundation points to the impacts of the tax equity and fiscal responsibility act of 1982 which imposed $98 billion in revenue hikes. This enactment prevented tax freedom day from being even earlier in 1983.

In past years, tax freedom day was acknowledged quite a bit earlier: In 1930 the date shared the calendar with Valentine's day; in 1960, tax freedom day fell on April 18; and in 1970, the date was April 28. Since 1976, U.S. average workers have been celebrating around the first week in May. In Minnesota, the average worker has historically labored on the job a bit longer.

According to Don Paterick, executive director of the Minnesota taxpayers association, "Taxpayers here will have to stay on the job until May 11, or nine more days than the average U.S. worker, due to a higher than average state and local tax burden." MTA estimates show that the burden is an estimated 20 per cent higher in Minnesota. Major recent tax increases effective in 1983 include a "temporary" 10 per cent income tax surtax, and an increase in the sales tax rate to six per cent.

"Based on the tax bills in both the House and the Senate, and the Governor's recommendation, it looks like Minnesotans will be saddled with the 10 per cent surtax at least until 1985, and the sales tax rate is likely to remain six per cent permanently," Paterick said. "In addition, the Senate bill would eliminate indexing which has compensated taxpayers for increase in taxes which are due only to inflation."

Another way to view the tax freedom day concept is from the average worker's eight hour day viewpoint. According to MTA calculations, in Minnesota, taxpayers are working for the federal government for one hour and 44 minutes, and for state and local governments for another hour and seven minutes.

"Average wage earners don't start working for themselves until lunch time. The same amount of work time is spent earning money to pay taxes as is spent working to pay for the three basic necessities of life — food, clothing and shelter. Only 20 minutes are spent working to enjoy the fruits of labor," Paterick concluded.

Eight hour work day breaks down as follows: federal taxes, 1 hour 44 minutes; state and local taxes, 1 hour 7 minutes; housing, 1 hour 34 minutes; food and beverage, 1 hour 7 minutes; transportation, 43 minutes; medical 35 minutes; clothing, 22 minutes, recreation, 21 minutes; and all other, 27 minutes.

When making milk drinks, it is suggested to use whole milk, which contains 3.25 per cent milkfat as compared to one per cent or two per cent in lowfat milks. The higher milkfat content adds a noticeably richer, more full-bodied flavor.

Advise Call On Handicapped Summer School

Parents of handicapped children who are concerned about summer school programs for their youngsters can call PACER center, a statewide parents' coalition, to learn what aid may be forthcoming from the state to help districts run those programs.

PACER can be contacted at (612) 827-2966 and parents from outside the metro area may call collect. The organization is an information center about educational issues for the parents of Minnesota's 78,000 disabled students.

Because experience shows that for some handicapped children, absence from school during the summer months may cause such serious regression that they will need to take months of their next school year trying to regain their lost skills, certain parents may wish to have provisions for a summer school program written into their child's individualized educational program (IEP), said PACER co-director Paula Goldberg.

However, she pointed out, in many districts whether or not to run a summer program at all — and, if so, what kind — is still undecided.

For one thing, she explained, the Minnesota legislature has not yet resolved whether to extend state funding to summer classes for all handicapped youngsters or only for those with the most serious disabilities.

Second complicating factor is that districts must also provide a share of the funding from local sources, causing some to decide against running summer classes. Hence, the existence of programs will vary from one district to another, she said.

Concerned parents may begin now, according to Goldberg, to find out exactly what might be available for their child. She suggested calling PACER to learn about state funding that will be available to districts, followed by a call to parents' own school districts to obtain details of their pending summer school pans.

Energy Audit Funds Open, Stumpf Says

Senator LeRoy Stumpf has issued a reminder to all District 1 schools and hospitals that applications for the current cycle of the institutional building grants program administered by the department of energy, planning and development are due Friday, May 13.

"This cycle provides matching grant money of $3.5 million to do energy audits and make energy improvements. Schools and hospitals can receive 50 per cent funding to pay for maxi-audits (detailed engineering audits) and to help cover the cost of energy-saving building improvements," Sen. Stumpf stated.

"I encourage all institutions to look into these grants," he said, "because after actually doing the energy-saving measures recommended in the maxi-audit, schools and hospitals could realistically expect up to 30 per cent savings in energy costs."

Roughly $3 million of the fund will be for energy-saving improvements of buildings. Examples of these improvements are installing new boilers, additional insulation and more efficient lighting.

Institutional officials not aware of this grants program, or those having questions, should contact: Institutional Programs, Energy Division, 980 American Center Building, 150 E. Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55101 or call (612) 297-2103.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am very concerned and upset over the problem of head lice which is currently circulating within our community. I would like to share with you the effects of having head lice in our home. We have had three outbreaks of head lice within a period of two months. I feel this is outrageous and unnecessary.

My children and I have experienced a great deal of trauma. We have felt helpless, isolated, dirty and labeled.

It was especially difficult for me to attend work. I could not find someone who wanted to take care of my children and risk having head lice spread into their home. I not only suffered pay loss, but incurred the extra expenses of purchasing special shampoos, sprays and extra laundry costs. This is only a minute description of what we actually experienced in our battle to control the problem of head lice.

I strongly feel that my children and myself should not have to fight this battle alone. The problem of head lice in our schools is a community issue and problem. I believe that the responsibility of removing head lice lies within our community.

The schools, public health system and family units could form a network to work on eliminating head lice from Thief River Falls. Once again, head lice is a public health issue and concern and we must deal with it effectively.

The head louse can not distinguish the poor person from the rich, the clean person from the slovenly; it does not care about the color of your skin or where you may go to church. It could very easily appear in your home unannounced and uninvited. Are you prepared for it?

I consider myself a responsible person, parent and resident of this community, and I have personally contacted several persons and expressed my feelings regarding this issue. Within the school system I have spoken with instructors, school social workers, a principal, special education director, school superintendent and school board members. Their response was it was too costly and ineffective to provide individual head-checks to all the students. They supported the idea of further education regarding the head lice issue.

I have also discussed this issue with the public health department on the local and state level. They said the local public health and the school systems were doing everything within the state guidelines to control head lice. It is my feeling that this is not sufficient because persons like myself and my children are still recontacting head lice through the school system. There were eight reported cases within one classroom. Three other classrooms reported several cases of head lice.

There was a head lice screening carried out in two of the classrooms by the public health department. My feelings are that this is not enough to control the problem of recontacting head lice. The entire school should be screened for head lice and with the parents carrying out their responsibility at home.

I have nowhere else to turn but to appeal to the citizens of this community. I have suggested we establish a head lice clinic, for purposes of educating parents, school personnel and other interested persons.

I am scheduled to meet with the school board at their meeting on June 13. I would welcome ideas, suggestions and support from anyone willing to stand up on this issue. I hope to see those citizens who care about head lice in their community attend on June 13. We can remove head lice from our community.

Draft Detector Simple Way To Check Losses

A draft detector is a simple devise that can save a homeowner up to several hundred dollars. It looks like a little flag on a stick. To make it, tape a six by eight inch piece of transparent kitchen wrap onto a stick or drinking straw.

With scissors, snip the wrap into three-fourths inch wide strips starting at the narrow edge of the flag and cutting toward the stick or straw. When finished, the detector will flutter when near the least breeze or draft.

On a windy day, close the house and check each window and door edge with the detector. Even the least flutter means air leaks. Keep a record of which windows and doors leak. Next, hold your detector about one inch from the floor and follow the baseboards on the outside walls. Be sure to check inside cabinets and closets. Again, keep a record of leaks.

Check all electric switches and outlets on outside walls. If you have a fireplace, first check the opening and then lift the detector inside and as close to the damper or smoke ledge as possible.

Bring your list of leaks to a home store that sells a variety of tools, caulking, sealing and weatherstripping products. Ask for help and read the instructions on the packages to be sure that the product fits your specific need. These hints may help:

+ Silicone and butyl base caulking generally last longer and are less likely to crack or shrink than water or oil base caulking.

+ All weatherstripping is subject to weather and mechanical damage and must be replaced periodically.

+ You can buy already cut gaskets to make switches and outlets draft free.

+ Large leaks along baseboards and around holes where pipes go through walls can be filled with a self-foaming substance available in pressurized cans.

+Small cracks can be filled with ready-formed strips of caulking that can be pressed into place with a table knife or fingers.

+ If your fireplace leaks seriously, you may wish to invest in tight fitting glass doors. If you don't use it, you may wish to close the front with a tightly fitting plywood or wallboard panel.

One you have closed up all the cracks, get out your draft detector and recheck them. Finally, don't be overly worried about a "tight" house. No matter what you do, your house will probably leak enough air to give you several complete changes each day.

Dr. Lois Lund Added To Power Company Board

Lois A. Lund, Ph.D., dean of the college of human ecology at Michigan state university and formerly of Thief River Falls, was elected to the board of directors of Consumers Power company in Jackson, MI. Her service on the board will become effective June 1. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lund.

Dr. Lund has served as dean of the college of human ecology since joining MSU in 1973. She is also a professor in the department of food science and human nutrition at MSU. Prior to joining MSU, Dr. Lund served as associate dean of the college of agriculture and home economics at Ohio State university and as director of the university's school of home economics. In addition, she chaired the department of home economics, Ohio cooperative extension service and Ohio agricultural research and development center.

Dr. Lund has published numerous papers on nutrition, family economics and family life and was the recipient of the University of Minnesota alumni association's outstanding achievement award in 1977. She received her graduate and undergraduate education at the University of Minnesota, receiving her doctorate in 1966 in home economics with emphasis in consumption economics.

Dr. Lund is a member of the adult and family services advisory committee of the Michigan department of social services and has served in various capacities on committees for the U.S. department of agriculture, the American home economics association, and the national association of state universities and land grant colleges. While at Ohio state, she was coordinator of home economics international programs for the US agency of international development in India and Brazil.

Flash Flood Awareness Week Observed

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed flash flood awareness week in Minnesota May 22 to 28. This is the second year the state has called attention to the problems associated with flash floods.

During the week the state departments of public safety emergency services division and natural resources water division, and the Minnesota national weather service office will be focusing attention on the causes of flash floods and their inherent hazards. Cooperating in the information campaign will be the association of county planning and zoning administrators, U.S. corps of engineers and the federal emergency management agency (FEMA).

In conjunction with FEMA, the national oceanic and atmospheric administration (NOAA) national weather service and the American red cross are helping organizations heighten public awareness of flash flood hazards. They are providing resource packets for use by local organizations in public awareness campaigns to dispel the myths about flash floods and to emphasize the correct actions people should take to protect themselves.

Many flash flood deaths happen because warnings are not heeded. The typical flash flood results from continous rain over a particular area caused by a stalled weather pattern. In Minnesota the potential flash flood season extends through mid-September.

People often ignore flash flood warnings because they cannot actually see the flood waters. They look outside, see no immediate danger, and do not feel threatened. The danger may be developing upstream, out of sight. It is vital that residents know what the warning signals are and heed them if they are activated.

If minor flooding has damaged your property in the past, evacuation may be the safest action in cases of severe or record crest warnings.

To be prepared for evacuation, get familiar with a flood-free evacuation route. If you are driving when a flash flood watch is issued, it is vital that you stay tuned to local weather information. Stay clear of low-lying roads that might be inundated. If a flash flood warning is issued, go immediately to the nearest high ground.

USDA Initiates Plant A Tree Forest Program

United States department of agriculture (USDA) forest service is introducing a "Plant a Tree" program through which, as a personal step toward improving the environment, individuals or groups may contribute funds for planting trees in national forests.

Gifts may be made in the name of the donor or in honor of someone else. A minimum donation of $10 is requested, although smaller amounts may be acceptable.

Donors, or those designated by donors, will receive certificates acknowledging these gifts. The certificates will serve as receipts, and all contributions to the program are tax-deductible.

During the planting season following receipt of a donation, appropriate species will be planted in locations where the need is greatest. Here they'll become part of plantations managed for multiple use purposes, and may be harvested when mature. Gift trees will not be individually identified. However, if a large area is planted under a separate collection agreement with an organization, arrangements can be made to name a plantation. Forest service policy specifies that plantations will not be named for living persons.

Donations can be made at any forest service office, including the forest supervisors' and district offices of Minnesota's Chippewa and Superior National Forests, at the following addresses: Forest Supervisor, Chippewa National Forest Route 1, Box 25, Cass Lake, MN 56633, phone (218) 335-2226 or Forest Supervisor, Superior National Forest, P.O. Box 338 - Federal Bldg., Duluth, MN 55801, phone (218) 727-6692. District offices of the Chippewa national forest are located in: Blackduck, 56630 Cass Lake, 56633 Deer River, 56636 Marcell, 56657 and Walker, 56484. District offices of the Superior national forest are located in: Aurora, 55705 Gunflint, 55604 Isabella, 55607 Ely, 55731 Cook, 55723 Tofte, 55615 and Virginia, 55792.

Maki is a student at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute and the convention is sponsored by the office education association. Participants were judged on accuracy and speed. Maki is the first student from the Thief River Falls AVTI to place in the annual event.

Three Teaching Provisions Are Suspended

Legislative commission to review administrative rules (LCRAR) voted unanimously May 3 to suspend several board of teaching rules which grant provisional licenses to teach in the areas of educable retarded, physically handicapped, and special learning disabilities (emotionally disturbed and learning disabled).

LCRAR is a bi-partisan commission of the Minnesota legislature made up of five state representatives and five state senators appointed to review rules adopted by state agencies.

Suspension is effective June 1. After that date, the board of teaching will no longer be able to issue provisional licenses in these fields. Persons currently holding provisional licenses are not affected by this action.

Suspension action comes after several hearings by the LCRAR, and the House and Senate education committees on the use of provisional licenses by more senior teachers facing layoffs to "bump" fully licensed, but less senior, teachers. Both the LCRAR and the education committees felt that this situation was contrary to the intent of the rule, and to laws pertaining to the education of handicapped children.

During the LCRAR's final deliberations, some members also expressed the view that no provisional licenses of any kind should be issued, regardless of the "bumping" problem.

Provisional licenses were created in response to teacher shortages in certain special education areas. The rules provide that about half the requirements for full licensure be completed in order to obtain the provisional. Full licensure requirements must ordinarily be completed within two years.

By law, the LCRAR must introduce legislation in the 1984 regular session to ratify the suspension. If the legislature fails to adopt the legislation, the rules again become effective the day after adjournment.

Sparby Hosts Taiwan Speaker Of Assembly

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls hosted the speaker of the Taiwan provincial assembly, Hon. George Yu-Jen Kao, during part of his study tour of Minnesota and its government last week.

On Monday, May 2, Kao attended a meeting of the House governmental operations committee on which Sparby serves. Sparby explained the work of the committee and hosted the Taiwanese visitor at a lunch in the Capitol that included Representative Steve Wenzel, chairman of the House agriculture committee.

Sparby and Kao also met with Governor Rudy Perpich and discussed trade between Taiwan and Minnesota with him.

Kao was in the Twin Cities as an Eisenhower fellow. As newly elected speaker of the Taiwan Assembly, he came to the U.S. to study our form of government, meet government leaders and discuss export-import questions and the exchange of products.

Sparby was chosen to escort Kao because of his acquaintance with agricultural issues, his long-time interest in the Minnesota Wheat Growers association, and his role as a member of the national council of state legislatures agriculture, food policy and nutrition committee.

Sparby visited Taiwan in 1979 and is also acquainted with agriculture and agricultural issues in that country of 18,000,000 people.

Sparby said, "I was very pleased to meet with Speaker Kao and have the chance to discuss with him and Governor Perpich the future possibilities of increased trade with Taiwan."

Stangeland Votes For Nuclear Freeze

"I voted for the nuclear freeze resolution because it was amended to require reductions to significantly lower and verifiably equal levels of the nuclear arsenals of both America and the USSR," Congressman Arlan Stangeland said. The resolution was approved by the House on a bi-partisan vote of 278-149.

"A freeze must not be an end in itself," Congressman Stangeland said. "We must work for the reduction, and hopefully the elimination, of all the nuclear weapons in the world.

"That is why I was glad that the resolution included an important compromise that required a time limit on how long a freeze would remain in effect without arms reductions," he said.

The nuclear freeze resolution includes an amendment by Rep. Elliott Levitas (D-Ga), which requires that arms reductions must be achieved "within a reasonable, specified period of time, as determined by the negotiators."

Rep. Stangeland pointed out that America must have two goals. "We must protect our liberty while decreasing the threat of nuclear war," he said. "But we cannot do it alone — the Soviets must cooperate. I hope this compromise will help our President to work out some reasonable agreement with the Soviets," he said.

Retirement Age Will Gradually Increase To 67

Among the recent changes in the social security law is a provision to raise the retirement age in the future, according to William Phalen, district manager at Grand Forks. People reaching retirement age now will not be affected by this change.

Year 2000 is the point at which the gradual rise in the retirement age will begin to take effect. People born in 1938 and later will experience the very gradual change. The age 67 retirement age will not be fully effective until the year 2027.

Phalen said that even when the higher retirement age is in place it will still be possible for workers to get reduced retirement benefits at age 62. However, the rate will be 70 per cent of the age 67 benefit compared to the present 80 per cent of the age 65 benefit. The age for medicare eligibility will continue to be 65.

Another feature of the new law will be the taxing of benefits in some cases. Beginning in 1984 people in the higher income brackets who get social security checks will have to include some of those benefits in their taxable income. Generally this provision will apply to single individuals with income of $25,000 and to couples with $32,000 or more.

Anyone wanting more detailed information about the changes may contact the Grand Forks office at 701-772-5517.

BBB Resolves 28 Challenges In Past Month

Advertising review division of the Better Business Bureau (BBB) of Minnesota resolved 28 formal local advertising challenges during the past month.

Majority of the cases challenged (22) were the result of the BBB's own monitoring efforts, six cases were initiated by consumers and one was brought to the BBB's attention by a competitor.

In nine cases the BBB found the advertisers had a basis for their claims. In the remaining cases the advertisers either agreed to revise their claims to meet the guidelines established by the BBB code of advertising or agreed to discontinue the claim.

The 28 challenges resolved by the Bureau during the past month involved the following: pricing claims - 12 cases; false or misleading claims, two cases; insufficient quantity of merchandise and non-disclosure of facts, five cases; underselling or puffery claims, two cases; automotive dealer prep and freight claims, three cases; energy savings claims, three cases; and warranties-guarantees, one case.

Council Hears Reports At Meet Tuesday

recommendation was made that the city study the possibility of providing space for Fred's Cab Service on a rent free or reduced rent basis in one of the municipal buildings.

Some concern was expressed by council members over methods of verifying proper use of the coupons, and the matter was returned to the committee with approval of the concept, but a request to come up with firmer proposals on handling of the coupons and potential locations for stationing the cab service.

Considerable time was spent discussing the civil aeronautics board (CAB) decision to appoint Bemidji Airlines to provide replacement air service to Thief River Falls regional airport, in the wake of Republic Airlines' decision to discontinue service.

Although the city was informed of the decision by telephone, City Attorney Bob Wurst noted that the city couldn't do anything definite about filing an appeal of the decision until they receive a copy of the official CAB order. Referring to efforts by the Minnesota department of transportation to help the city maintain its designated essential-air-service, Wurst commented, "even the people supporting us there aren't holding out much hope for a successful appeal."

Mayor Bob Carlson, who has been publically critical of the CAB decision and the size of planes offered by Bemidji Airlines, took offense at an editorial in Monday's Times which was critical of the reception given the new airline. Carlson referred to the editor as "irresponsible" for not having consulted with city officials or the committee to get more information on their reasons for protesting the choice.

Alderman Don Goodrich commented that the city's argument was not with Bemidji Airlines but with the CAB, noting that they had not complied with their own requirements in making the selection. Comment was made that emphasis had apparently been placed on the subsidies requested by the airlines and on declining departures from the airport, rather than on the essential air service requirements of the city. Note was also made of the "great asset" which proper air service could be in attracting and holding new business and industry in the city.

Consideration of nomination of the Carnegie Library to the national register of historic places by the Minnesota historical society was discussed. Noting that the county was still considering the possibility of renting the building, a motion was passed to ask the state to remove the building from consideration. Alderman Bill Penning suggested that the historical society review the power plant building and the Soo Line depot buildings as being more suitable for consideration as historic sites.

Discussion of the upcoming board of review scheduled to start at 10 a.m. Thursday, May 26, prompted a request by Mayor Carlson that the entire council be present at 3 p.m. Carlson noted that Min-Star Inc., which owns the Arctic Enterprises property, has threatened to not pay 1983 property taxes totaling approximately $105,000, unless they get considerations toward a reduced assessment. Properties which have a combined estimated market value of $2,308,900 and an assessed value of $991,327 have been recently reduced in asking price from $5,500,000 to $2,500,000 by the real estate firm handling them.

Report by Dave Kildahl, engineer, dealt with the use of federal aid to urban cities money to fund the city's share of the Highway 59 frontage road project. Kildahl noted that the city had $169,000 in the fund at present, and recommended that it be used to fund the frontage road project to avoid losing the money. City is committed to spend $140,000 on the project this year, and another like amount next year. He noted that state-aid funds could be used in addition to EAU money to fund the First Street bridge project. . . Council moved to request the change in funding from the department of transportation.

In other business the council:

— Approved the removal of Kinney Avenue from Third to Sixth Streets from state-aid street designation. They also approved designating Greenwood Street from Barzen Avenue to Highway 32, as a state aid street.

— Approved the appointment of an advisory committee to administrate the city's $407,000 revolving loan fund. Money will be used to help finance new industry in the city, being loaned out again as loans are paid back. Appointed to the committee were Paul Ihle, Bill Hogan, Ron Winter, James Womack, Dave Strong and the city clerk. City finance officer would serve as an ex-officio member.

— Accepted the resignation of fireman Charles Marvin, and approved the recommendation of Fire Chief Duane Noel to appoint Jerry Stenseth as volunteer fireman, effective May 1.

— Approved a request from the historical society for $2200 in revenue sharing funds. Marv Enerson, representing the society, noted that the Pioneer Village was changing hours of operation to 2 to 7 p.m., six days a week, and would be closed Saturdays.

— Granted a request for free use of Floyd B. Olson Park on June 14, for Dairy Day.

— Granted a request to have beer in Oakland Park on June 17, for the county employees picnic, with Alderman Ken Murphy and Don Goodrich voting against the permit.

— Authorized change in classification of street department employee Donovan Erlandson from light equipment operator to heavy equipment operator.

— Asked the engineer's office to take an inventory of condition of curbs and gutters in the city.

— Discussed the possibility of the county bonding for construction of a senior citizens center.

— Adjourned until next Tuesday, at 8 p.m. to consider awarding of bonds and licensing of the Family Bowl to sell intoxicating liquor.

TO THE VOTERS OF INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 564

Our Educational system as we know it today is under constant pressure because of our fast changing world. Never before in the history of our country have we had such a challenge. By starting now and going back to the so called basics and stricter discipline, can we better educate our children. Everyone should have a helping hand in this and show an interest in our everyday concerns. Let's all sit down together and work at this side by side. From the board, to the administration, to the parents, our interests should all be the same. Our computer program is making big strides and we are proud of it and our students who are doing so well. Our curriculum must be maintained and in some areas improved. We need to maintain more foreign languages. Yes, Latin if necessary. Also, we should upgrade our science department with better equipment and in many cases better conditions for teaching. Most of all, ask your legislator to govern better so the funds are available for education. This is a must for the survival of our country.

These are my thoughts and my beliefs concerning school District No. 564. I respectfully request your vote for your Board of Education on May 17th.

Do your duty as a citizen and vote for the candidates of your choice.

Thank You!
Sincerely yours,
Myrle L. Carlson

USDA Closes Three Regional Info. Offices

Three regional information offices responsible for providing information services for the U.S. department of agriculture's agricultural marketing service will close June 4.

Involved are the western regional office at San Francisco, the northern regional office at Chicago and the southern regional office at Atlanta.

Two other offices, at New York City and Dallas, were closed in 1982.

"Agency reorganization and budget reductions are the prime reasons for the closings," said Donald R. Hayes, acting director, AMS information division in Washington, DC.

Many of the functions of the regional offices will be transferred to the Washington AMS offices, Hayes said.

AMS programs include marketing agreements and orders, seed law enforcement and other regulatory activities, commodity standardization and grading, market news and marketing research. About 75 per cent of the AMS budget comes from user fees paid by industries AMS services, Hayes said.

Information division in Washington is located at room 3529-S, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250 — telephone (202) 447-8999.

Prowlers Favor Football Plan

Lincoln high school football coach John Schmitz said he was satisfied with the Prowlers' placement in the newly-revised Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) football playoff format, scheduled to be implemented for the 1984 season.

Under the plan adopted recently by the MSHSL board of directors, Thief River Falls will be a Class A football school grouped in Section 8, along with former Northwest Conference rivals Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston, Mid-State Conference members Staples, Wadena, Park Rapids and Detroit Lakes, and Heart-O-Lakes Conference member Perham.

Under that set-up, a sectional committee will decide to either go with an eight-team or four-team Section 8 playoff that would qualify its winner for the MSHSL Class A state playoffs. An eight-team playoff would necessitate teams to drop from nine to eight-game regular season schedules. A four-team playoff would leave the regular season at nine game. It's expected Section 8 would play an eight-team playoff, excluding just one team from post-season play.

"We're happy with it," said Schmitz about the playoff plan. "It puts us football-wise in a good class."

Schmitz said with the exception of Perham, the arrangement is about the way Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston would have liked to set up a conference following the demise of the old Northwest Conference that also included Bemidji.

Bemidji will be a Class AA football school, playing in Section 7, along with Moorhead, Duluth Central, Duluth East, Duluth Denfeld-Morgan Park, Grand Rapids and Hibbing.

Thief River Falls will be in an abviously more favorable position under the adopted plan than the Prowlers would have been if an earlier format would have passed. That called for the Prowlers to be in Class AA along with Moorhead, Bemidji, Willmar, Fergus Falls, Brainerd, Alexandria, Little Falls, St. Cloud Tech, St. Cloud Apollo, Detroit Lakes and Cold Spring-Rocori.

But even when that idea was being voted on, Schmitz didn't protest. Instead of arguing the Prowlers' seemingly unfair positioning, the coaching staff was ready to accept the challenge, he said.

The 1983 season will still be using the old playoff format that qualifies conference champions and a few independents in the five classes of play. That means Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston will remain Class A independents, while Bemidji, Moorhead and Fergus Falls play as Class AA independents. East Grand Forks reached the Class A finals under that format a year ago.

Region 8AA Retains Two Divisions

Region 8AA, which lost Crookston, East Grand Forks, Wadena and Albany to Class A status for the 1983-84 school year, will continue to operate under a two-division format, with six teams in the North Half and eight in the South.

North Half will include Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Fergus Falls and Moorhead. South Half will include St. Cloud Tech, St. Cloud Apollo, Alexandria, Little Falls, Brainerd, Sauk Rapids, Cold Spring-Rocori and Melrose.

Crookston, East Grand Forks and Wadena — all North Half Region 8AA members this year — along with Albany, were dropped into Class A by the Minnesota State High School League under a new format that sets an enrollment of 500 students as the cut-off for the two-class system. The old format called for the state's largest 128 teams, regardless of enrollment figures, to be Class AA schools.

Discussion of shifting one South Half team into the North for an even 7-7 Region 8AA split next year met with no approval at a recent Region 8AA athletic director's meeting in Detroit Lakes. Some changes may have to be made for 1984-85, however, since Park Rapids, with a current enrollment figure of 507 is expected to drop below the 500 mark and will be eligible for Class A status.

Miscellaneous

+ It was reported here that a possibility existed that Bemidji's Bryan Hickerson and Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo might be opposing pitchers Sunday when Minnesota hosted Wisconsin in a Big Ten baseball doubleheader. Well they both pitched that day, but were starters in different games. Sabo was the losing pitcher in a 5-4 first game win by the Gophers and Hickerson was the winning pictcher in a 4-2 second game sweep by Minnesota. Two wins clinched a berth in the Big Ten baseball playoffs for the West Division-leading Gophers.

Northland Hosts Region 13 Games Thursday

Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin will be represented Friday in the 1983 National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region 13 baseball tournament to be played in Thief River Falls.

Pairings in the semifinals will feature Lake Region of Devils Lake, N.D. playing Madison Tech of Wisconsin at 10 a.m., with Normandale of Bloomington facing host Northland at 1 p.m.

Winners will meet in the championship game at 4 that afternoon. All three games will be played on the Northland community college diamond.

Region 13 champion will move on to one of eight district tournaments across the country that will determine the field for the 1983 NJCAA national baseball tournament, scheduled to be played May 28-June 3 at Grand Junction, Colo.

A pair of opening round Region 13 games were played elsewhere Monday when Lake Region beat Anoka-Ramsey of Coon Rapids 5-1 and Madison Tech rallied from an 8-0 deficit to stun North Hennepin of Brooklyn Center 15-10. In both cases, the home team was the winner.

Northland coach Chet Engelman said the Northmen are looking forward to the opportunity to appear in their first-ever tournament in the 11-year history of the baseball program at the school. The Northmen are 12-4 for the year, enjoying their finest season ever. They'll have their hands full against Normandale, however. Based upon reputation, the Lions are the pre-tournament favorites.

"We know Normandale will be tough. They're loaded," warned Engelman. "They have lots of pitchers and they evidently hit the ball well."

Normandale will be here as the mid-season leader in the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Southeast Division. Northland is the host team as the MCCC mid-season Northwest Division leader. Lake Region is the North Dakota state champion. Madison Tech is the surprise fourth tournament entry. It was expected that either Inver Hills or Golden Valley Lutheran, a pair of MCCC Southwest Division powers, would get that spot, with the Giants ahead of the Royals at the mid-season mark.

"It's going to be disappointing not to see all those All-Americans from Inver Hills and Golden Valley," jabbed Engelman.

Instead, Normandale appears to have the power. The Lions have used a number of pitchers and nearly all of them have been effective, including freshman Mike Clarkin of St.

REACHING OUT. Thief River Falls' Steve Bendickson swatted a backhand against East Grand Forks at No. 1 doubles during Monday's high school tennis match played on the Northland community college courts. Teammate Ken Kompelien provided back-up support on the shot. Bendickson and Kompelien beat East Grand Forks' Tim Driscoll and John Sanders 5-7, 6-0, 6-3, but the Green Wave still emerged with a 3-2 dual meet decision over the Prowlers in the high winds that swept through the area.

TRF Invitational Set . . .

Green Wave Trips LHS Net Team 3-2

A sweep in singles gave unbeaten East Grand Forks a 3-2 decision over Thief River Falls Monday in a wind-swept high school tennis match played here.

Thief River Falls lost to East Grand Forks 5-0 earlier this year.

"I think we made some good progress," noted Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson.

Thief River Falls winners were Steven Bendickson and Ken Kompelien at No. 1 doubles, along with Bob Vanyo and Thane Mundell at No. 2 doubles.

A scheduled Tuesday triangular involving the Prowlers, Bemidji and Waubun was canceled because of wet weather. Bemidji and Thief River Falls weren't able to work out a suitable make-up date, so the Prowlers will host Waubun in a dual meet instead on Tuesday at 3:15 p.m. to close out the 1983 regular season schedule.

Annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational will be played Friday when the Prowlers host Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Grand Rapids beginning at 10 a.m.

Softball Teams Slug It Out

Thief River Falls' version of the Bad News Bears — the Northland community college women's softball team — struck again Monday as the Northwomen dropped a mistake-filled doubleheader to the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Strong winds made for less-than-ideal playing conditions, "but I don't think we can blame the wind for all of it," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson in reference to the caliber of play that produced 70 runs, 46 base hits, 34 errors and 35 walks.

UMC won 25-20 and 13-12, taking both games with seventh inning runs.

Northland led 20-18 going into the top of the seventh inning of the opener and the teams were tied 11-1 going into the seventh inning of the nightcap.

In the first game, Northland out-hit UMC 12-10, but also collected 16 of the game's 23 errors. Northland pitching issued 10 walks, and UMC responded by walking 11 Northwomen.

UMC combined a 14-7 base hit edge with 10 Northland errors to win the second game. The Northwomen stayed close because the Trojans, although committing just one error, gave up 12 walks and hit two batters. Northland issued just two walks in this one.

"It was a long day," acknowledged Jacobson, who herself has often used the "Bad News Bears" moniker to describe the Northwomen this spring.

It was the final home appearance of the 1983 season for the 3-11 Northwomen, who were to play a 3 p.m. doubleheader at Fergus Falls today (Wednesday) and will play in a 9 a.m. invitational tournament at Anoka-Ramsey Saturday.

TRF 9-3 Winner Over Tri-County

A three-game Thief River Falls losing streak ended Monday as the Prowlers defeated Tri-County 9-3 in a windy high school baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond.

Brian Johnston and Kerry Wollin hit home runs for the winners, who lost their last three starts to North Half Region 8AA foes Fergus Falls, Moorhead and Bemidji. Three of the Prowlers' first four wins this spring were posted against Class A teams.

Thief River Falls opened with a three-run first inning as Jim Hallamek led off with a single, stole second and scored on a base hit by Todd Ortloff. Johnston then got a two-out fly ball up into the wind that sailed over the fence for a two-run homer.

It was 5-1 when Wollin belted a solo home run in the third.

Wet Weather Postpones LHS Baseball Game

For the second time this spring wet weather forced postponement of a Thief River Falls vs. Crookston high school baseball game Tuesday.

Scheduled to be played as a single game on the fairgrounds diamond, yesterday's game will instead be part of a make-up doubleheader at Crookston Thursday, May 19, beginning at 4 p.m.

That May 19 meeting is a make-up date from an earlier April 28 postponement at Crookston.

Thief River Falls, 4-3 for the year, will host Roseau Thursday at 4:30 p.m. and will participate in a four-team invitational tournament at Moorhead Saturday beginning at 12-noon.

IT WAS A tough day on pitchers Monday, including Northland's Marlys Huot, shown here delivering a first inning pitch in the doubleheader opener, during the Northland vs. University of Minnesota-Crookston softball games played in Thief River Falls. There were 70 runs scored as the Trojans swept the twinbill 25-20 and 13-12.

Lincoln Girls Dominate Field In TRF Invitational Track Meet

Lincoln high school girls stole the show Tuesday with a surprising point-producing collection of places during the soggy Thief River Falls invitational track meet.

Coach Tom Schafer was maybe more surprised than anybody as the Prowlers overwhelmed the six-team field of area Class A teams with a 203-point performance that may rank as the highest point total ever accumulating by a Lincoln girls team. Hallock was a distant second with 77 points, followed by Warren 62, Marshall County Central 59, Red Lake Falls 52 and Stephen 11.

"I was really surprised we won by the amount we did," acknowledged Schafer, who admitted he figured the Prowlers could emerge a winner, but not by that kind of a margin. "It was a good day for us," he said in a massive understatement. "I was really happy with the number of places we got."

Even Tim Olson, coach of the Lincoln boys, was impressed with the girls' performance. "They really ran well," he said in praising fashion.

For the second straight week Warren went home with a title in the boy's competition here by scoring 135 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 99, Tri-County 78, Hallock 72, Red Lake Falls 63, Marshall County Central 54 and Stephen 22. Last Tuesday the Ponies won the Quent Jones meet here in high winds. The winds died down yesterday, but it was rainy and the track was messy.

Thief River Falls' efforts in both the boys and girls meets were led by double-event winners — seniors Lon Aune and Sara Green, who matched each other with wins in the mile and two-mile races.

Aune duplicated his performance from the Quent Jones meet here by taking the mile in 4:50.08 and running the two-mile in 10:32.28. Green, who placed sixth in the two-mile and did not run in the mile last week, capped a great day with a 6:08.51 mile win and a 13:05 two-mile victory.

Both runners received post-meet praise from their coaches. Schafer was particularly impressed with Green's efforts. "She ran very aggressively," he said. "That's the way I hoped she would run this year. I hope she can keep doing it."

While Aune represented the only first-place winner for the Lincoln boys, the girls also had wins from Cindy Solem with a toss of 93-9¼ in the discus where she edged area standout Sue Olson of Marshall County Central; Sherry Sabo with a 27.29 in the 180-yard hurdles; and Georgia Howard with a 2:47.33 in the 880-yard run. The Prowlers also won the 880-yard relay with Tricia Armstrong, Sabo, Renae Berg and Hildegunn Nyland ran a 1:57.17; and the mile relay where Howard, Paula Wilkens, Stacie Kruta and Nyland ran a 4:36.

Jody Renville of Hallock (100 and 220) and Mark Carlson of Warren (shot, discus) joined Aune and Green as double-event winners, but Kendall Pederson of Tri-County won three individual events and was a member of a winnig relay team. Pederson won the 110-yard high hurdles in 16.31; the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 44.69; the triple jump with a leap of 37-11; and ran on the Rabbits' winning mile sprint medley relay team to go home with an envelope full of ribbons.

But by far the lion's share of the ribbons went to the Lincoln girls.

Thief River Falls' domination was highlighted in the mile run where five Prowlers were among the top six finishers — Green, Wilkens, Julie Finstad, Peggy Cruz and Jessica Solne. And the Prowlers took four of the top six spots in the 880 with Howard, Wilkens, Finstad and Cruz and the 440 with Nyland, Jane Rockis, Cindy Kruta and Howard. The Prowlers were 1-2-3 in the two-mile with Green, Jackie Smith and Edna Johnson; and in the 180 hurdles with Sabo, Stacie Kruta and Jackie Thune.

"I never expected that," admitted Schafer.

Both the Lincoln boys and girls will be in Bemidji for a 2 p.m. meet Thursday. The girls will also run Monday at 4 p.m. at Roseau, with the boys going to Grafton Tuesday for a 4 o'clock meet.

CELEBRATING AS she hit the string at the finishing line, Lincoln high school senior Sara Green was a double-event winner Tuesday in the Thief River Falls invitational high school track meet. Green swept the distance events with a 13:05 in the two-mile and a 6:08.51 in the mile run on the muddy Thief River Falls track to help lead the Prowlers to an overwhelming victory in the girls' portion of the meet.

Middle River-MCC Drops First Baseball Game To Bears By 5-4

High school cooperative baseball team at Middle River-Marshall County Central lost its first game in eight starts Monday when Lake of the Woods rallied from a 4-0 deficit to win 5-4 in eight innings.

"We didn't play up to our capabilities," explained Middle River-MCC coach Ron Rudd. "The kids are pretty disappointed with the loss, but I think we learned something from it."

Winning run crossed the plate in the eighth on a suicide squeeze bunt. Both teams had four hits and both sides had three errors.

Middle River-MCC jumped out to a 3-0 first inning lead when Scottie Peterson led off with a double and back-to-back walks issued to Brad Berg and Dean Hjelle loaded the bases. A throwing error scored two runs and a passed ball allowed a third run to cross the plate.

It became 4-0 in the third on an RBI single by Ted Thompson. But Lake of the Woods scored four times in the fifth to tie it.

Thompson, who replaced Hjelle on the mound in the fifth inning, was the losing pitcher. Wayne Chapman pitched all eight innings for the Bears.

Despite the loss, Rudd still figures Middle River-MCC ranks with Roseau, Lake of the Woods and Red Lake Falls as the top four teams Class A teams in the area.

A 10-0 winner over Humboldt-St. Vincent Friday in varsity play when the junior varsity lost the second half of the twinbill 6-1, Middle River-MCC had a Tuesday game against Roseau postponed by rain. The squad will host Warroad Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

UMC Wrestling Clinic Will Be Held July 12-15

A wrestling camp sponsored by the University of Minnesota - Crookston is scheduled for the UMC sports center July 12-15 for any student entering at least sixth grade by fall of 1983.

"All areas of wrestling will be covered with special emphasis on takedowns and pinning," said Dr. Anthony Kuznik, assistant provost, student affairs. "Weight training techniques for wrestling and other off-mat conditioning techniques will also be stressed, with sessions conducted separately for young wrestlers and older wrestlers."

Paul Cyr, former head coach at Fertile-Beltrami high school and currently assistant coach at St. John's University, is the camp director. Clinicians include Jerry Larson, three-time All-American heavyweight at the University of North Dakota; Scott Knowlen, 1983 All-American at UND; Brad Kerr, assistant coach at UND; John Anderson, former North Dakota State University All-American; and John Cyr, 1983 Minnesota state wrestling champion.

Cost for the camp is $30 for commuting wrestlers and $76 for wrestlers staying on campus. Those staying on campus will live in residence halls at UMC and will eat in the UMC dining hall (10 meals).

Enrollment will be limited to 50 wrestlers. To register, send $30 non-refundable fee by June 10 to Marv Bachmeier, Athletic Director, University of Minnesota - Crookston, Crookston, MN 56716. For more information, call Bachmeier at 218-281-6510, extension 415 or Kuznik at extension 346.

BSU Outdoor Programs Are Being Offered

Wilderness inquiry courses offered this summer through the Bald Eagle Center at Bemidji State University will provide students with skills needed to gain access to wilderness areas and to develop basic interpretive knowledge.

Those wishing to earn six credits exploring Norwegian wilderness may do so by participating in Wilderness Inquiry Norway July 31 to August 21, which involves backpacking through the Jotunheim region of that nation. The group also will hike into remote mountains and glacial terrain.

Two weeks of canoeing to develop wilderness living and travel skills is available on a canoe expedition to remote lakes and rivers of Canada. Those taking part in the five credit course will have an opportunity to learn about the habitats of many endangered plants and animals.

NORTHLAND THIRD baseman Gwen Nylen charged the plate as University of Minnesota-Crookston batter Janice Gubbels tried to lay down a suicide squeeze bunt in the first inning of Monday's Northwest Division community college softball game played in Thief River Falls. She fouled the pitch off as UMC coach Bill McManus looked on.

Northmen Will Host Region 13 Games Friday

Paul Johnson and Dale Lapic of New Prague who were both 3-0 through Normandale's first 16 games, with Lapic sporting a 1.85 earned-run-average. And the 18-2 Lions aren't lacking for offense, either, with a .385 team batting average, led by John Beckman, a sophomore outfielder from Jordan with a .535 batting average on 23 hits in his first 43 at-bats.

Lake Region, despite a small squad of 12 players, could be a tournament title contender behind the one-two pitching punch of Brent Viger and Al Enno. Viger was the winner against Anoka-Ramsey, pushing his two-year career record at Lake Region to 13-0. The Royals are 20-3 for the year.

Northland's chances in the Region 13 tournament maybe received a boost from the weatherman today (Wednesday) when wet conditions forced postponement of a scheduled doubleheader against Fergus Falls here.

While the Region 13 tournament is regarded as a nice addition to the Northland schedule, Engelman said most of the squad's attention had been focused on today's games against the Spartans. The 1 p.m. twinbill would have likely decided the Northwest Division pennant winner and the host site for the 1983 MCCC state tournament Saturday, May 28.

Fergus Falls is the current division leader with a 6-2 record, with Northland at 5-3, Brainerd 3-5 and University of Minnesota-Crookston 2-6. The Red Raiders and Trojans were also scheduled to meet today, with season-ending Saturday doubleheaders matching Northland at UMC and Fergus Falls vs. Brainerd. No new make-up date has been announced for the Northland-Fergus Falls games.

Rain Friday would push the Region 13 tournament back to Saturday and force postponement of the Northland-UMC games. Spectators are welcome to attend the Region 13 games free of charge.

Landsat 4 satellite covers every square foot of the earth every 16 days. Such satellite imagery has been used by the National Park Service to locate grizzly bear-attracting plants such as cow parsnip, huckleberries, licorice roots, horsetails, biscuit root and new growth grasses so park visitors can be forewarned to avoid such areas.

Auto Trail At Agassiz Refuge Open For Use

Lost Bay auto tour at Agassiz national wildlife refuge opened this past week and will remain open until September 30. The four-mile route originates at refuge headquarters located 11 miles east of Holt and is open during daylight hours, seven days a week.

Refuge office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Brochures with information about the refuge and auto tour are available at headquarters.

The unseasonably mild temperatures and snowfree conditions caused several bird species to return earlier than usual. The first Canada geese were observed on Marcy 7. Other early migrants include mallards, pintails, marsh hawks, bald eagles, likkdeer and robins.

Excellent winter survival and productivity during the past several years has resulted in large and healthy deer and moose populations. These animals can often be observed along County Road No. 7 which bisects the refuge and also along the auto route during early morning or evening hours.

Pool levels are about normal and habitat conditions are considered good for waterfowl production.

In Memoriam
In sad but loving memory of our beloved wife and mother, Paula Aune, who passed away May 15, 1981.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in days that used to be;
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.

Sadly missed by her husband and families.

Card of Thanks
Our special thanks for all the kindness and sympathy extended to us on the loss of our dear mother, sister, grandmother and great-grandmother, Belle Austinson. To Pastor Hushagen for his comforting words, to the Emergency Medical Tech, Dr. Herber and the nurses at Northwestern Hospital, the Green Funeral Home, the organist and soloist for their good services and to the many friends and relatives who shared our deep sorrow and loss and the church circle that served lunch.
God bless you all.
The families of Belle Austinson who passed away May 5, 1983

In Memoriam
In memory of our beloved son, Robert (Butch) Manning who was taken from us so suddenly 17 years ago, May 7, 1966.

We do not forget him,
We love him too dearly.
Gone from our life like a dream.
Our lips need not speak
When our hearts mourn
sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it is seldom seen.

Missed by his family, the Mannings.

Receiving of Bids for Rental of Fully Operated Excavation Equipment

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS — Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle River-Snake River Watershed District, 122 West Johnson Avenue, Warren, Minnesota until 9:00 A.M. o'clock on May 26, 1983 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes may range from ¾ cubic yards and larger and must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a servis recorder.

The work to be done consists of but is not limited to the clearing and disposal of trees and brush and the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks and the leveling of spoilbanks. The work required and the location of the work will be designated by the engineer for the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payment will be made on a monthly basis. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change during the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, that equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmens compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Construction On Highways To Top 17 Million

Over 170 miles of state highways in northwestern Minnesota will see some sort of highway construction during the 1983 construction season, according to District Engineer, Bob Wolfe, of the Minnesota department of transportation.

Twenty-six projects are scheduled for the upcoming season and about half of these have already been let. Projects will involve about 115 miles of resurfacing and about 43 miles of more extensive improvements involving grading or thicker overlays. Remaining mileage involves maintenance type projects and safety improvements.

This season will also see five bridges replaced and new traffic signals installed in Park Rapids and in Thief River Falls.

Estimated cost for this construction is over 17 million dollars. According to Wolfe, this will mean more jobs in the private sector. It has been estimated that for every million dollars spent on highway construction, 42 jobs are created.

Perhaps more important is the fact that the amount of work being done this year and in future years will allow the department to maintain the existing level of service on area roads and begin to look at more extensive reconditioning and reconstruction type work.

According to Wolfe, "We appear to be at the beginning of an improving economy and hopefully about to see an increase in the housing market that should create a large demand for forest products. There is also a two-year reserve of grain stored on Red River Valley farms that will move when grain prices improve. When this happens, there will be a huge number of heavy trucks moving on area roads and a real demand for a sound highway system."

"The type of program we have now should allow us to maintain the condition of roads that now have adequate strength and start thinking about improving those routes which, because of their condition, are now causing transportation problems for the grain, wood fiber and other industries in northwestern Minnesota. Better maintained roads also make this part of the state more attractive to the very important tourism trade."

This year's construction program is significantly larger than programs of recent years but will not mean an increase in Mn-DOT's permanent staff. While some temporary workers will be hired to handle inspection duties, no new permanent employees will be hired other than to fill positions vacated through attrition.

"Projects planned for this summer will be handled by the existing Mn-DOT work force even if it means taking employees off other duties and putting them on construction projects," Wolfe said.

"The current flexibility and high productivity of Mn-DOT's employees is very much appreciated when you consider we have reduced our staff by about 2,000 employees since 1970, closed 86 truck stations, increased the number of lane miles to maintain by six per cent and with the Federal and State road user tax increase, been asked to deliver a statewide construction program for 1983 of almost $350 million.

AL RUX, right, president of the Thief River Falls Jaycees for the past year, presented checks on behalf of the chapter as one of his final duties Wednesday evening during an awards banquet held at Lon's restaurant. Contributions were accepted (right to left) by Miss Thief River Falls Stacey Sandberg, $300 towards her expenses in the Miss Minnesota pageant; Lori Olson, $400 towards the children's wading pool at Bill LaFave Park; and Bill Corliss, $400 towards the crippled children's park.

Two Mail Box Support Plans Now Available

Minnesota department of transportation has developed two standard mail box installations which are recommended for use along rural roads.

Use of either of these designs can speed up mail delivery, minimize damage by flying snow and allow plowing equipment to do a better job of clearing snow. This can result in a cost savings in mail delivery as well as in road maintenance.

The two installation designs utilize a wood post or steel pipe and are simple, durable and inexpensive. Persons planning to replace their present mailbox or install a new box are urged to write to the Department of Transportation, Box 727, Bemidji, MN 56601.

Employers Can Hire Youth At Savings

Employers needing extra help this summer can hire young people and save more than half the cost of their wages through programs offered by Inter-County community council in Oklee.

Mary Lou Harthun, director of youth employment programs, said that employers may benefit from two money-saving programs.

On-the-job training program reimburses employers for up to 50 per cent of wages paid to youth workers during the training period.

Under another program, targeted jobs tax credits, employers may earn up to $3,000 for each person hired. The amount of the credit depends on the amount of wages paid to the young workers.

To qualify for the wage reimbursement and tax credit programs, employers must hire youths who meet program guidelines. Inter-County community council prescreens the youths to determine whether they are eligible before referring them to employers for possible employment.

"This year we expect employers will hire 100 young people under these two programs," Harthun said.

Inter-County community council serves employers in Kittson, Norman, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Roseau and Red Lake counties.

This summer Inter-County community council programs expect to provide employment for 550 area youth.

For more information, Harthun can be reached at P.O. Box 187, Oklee, MN 56742, phone (218) 796-5144.

LYDIA BERKEY TO MINISTER IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

SUNDAY, MAY 15, 7:30 P.M.

Basement Meeting Room — City Auditorium

Lydia Berkey

Dr. Lydia Berkey will be ministering in Thief River Falls, Minnesota bringing a wealth of experience and a powerful anointing in the area of healing.

She has been in the ministry for 55 years and has been associated with some of the well known healing ministries of the early outpouring of the Holy Spirit since the turn of the century.

Dr. Berkey has been personally acquainted with E W Kenyon, who studied at her church office for several years. She attended L.I.F.E. Bible School under Aimee Semple McPherson for three years. During this time she became involved with the ministry at Angelus Temple. Dr. Berkey assisted Mrs. McPherson in her healing services and received that same anointing.

Teaching people how to counsel and help others is one area of specialty. Training new ministers has also been an area she has been used in by God. She has helped launch many ministries.

THREE OF A KIND

At this point they're not very different from one another. Similar markings . . . all cuddly . . . identically impelled with a desire to explore the world.

Later they'll begin to show individuality . . . and respond to the personalities of those humans who soon become their world.

The human process of growing up has parallels. Only gradually does individuality become evident. And the developing child will be strongly influenced by those close to him who likewise become his world.

Our churches and synagogues in their ministry to families build upon this principle. While strengthening family relationships they help children to grow spiritually at their own pace. Their emphasis on truth and commitment makes the example of grown-ups more effective, more inspiring.

Your children deserve — your family needs — God's ministry to YOU.

Taxes Going Up

Following editorial is from the Granite Falls Tribune:

Minnesota taxpayers are going to pick up the tab for the huge state deficit plus a 30 per cent increase in state spending over the next biennium. Taxpayers will lose their federal tax deductibility and indexing. A bill sponsored by Senator Collin Peterson, DFL, will also make the 10 per cent surcharge on state taxes a permanent part of the new structure. Peterson's bill also extends Minnesota's temporary six per cent sales tax which was due to expire on June 30 for two years.

Minnesota is a high priced state to live in. We pay more for our state government and have more state employees than other states of comparable size, population and income. We pay more for education, for aid to dependent children, for welfare, for our legislative salaries, for state officials, etc. You name it and it costs the taxpayers more in Minnesota than other states.

Wealthy taxpayers, long the target of the DFL dominated legislature, business and industry, get the message loud and clear. They are voting with their feet, moving away from the state which abuses them via the high taxes. The more wealth which leaves the state, the smaller the tax base for leveling against. Fewer taxpayers will be picking up a larger tax burden. Bad news.

Peterson's bill is a blow to the state's remaining business and industry. It will also hurt Governor Perpich's attempts to attract new business or industry within the state borders. Repealing the indexing of state income taxes is another step backward in the state's "Robinhood" taxing system. Two more years of six per cent sales taxes will further discourage customers from purchasing goods and services in Minnesota.

The Tribune knows there are no easy answers to the state's financial problems. We believe a sincere effort could have been made by the legislature to freeze state spending rather than budgeting for 30 per cent more income than the state expects to receive. That is ridiculous.

No Cause For Congratulations

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

Our representatives in Washington can scarcely stop congratulating themselves on the most recent Social Security bailout. Never mind that the highly touted "bipartisan compromise" is largely a bundle of tax increases. After all, Tip O'Neill has said that this bill guarantees the system's solvency for "25 or 30 years".

Of course, we have heard such promises before. Five years ago, we witnessed another attempt to rescue the Social Security system. After the passage of the largest peacetime tax increase in history, President Jimmy Carter told us that the system was safe until at least the year 2009.

Rep. Claude Pepper said that the 1977 tax hike would "strengthen the Social Security System, not just for the immediate future, but far into the next century." Pepper claims "75 years" of solvency with this year's bailout.

The problem with the recent bill is that more than three-fourths of the "solution" comes in the form of tax increases. The bailout does virtually nothing about the problem of excessive cost-of-living benefit increases. Postponing this year's benefit increase from July 1 to January 1 is simply a token measure. Starting January 1, benefits will once again tend to climb much faster than the wages of those who support the system.

Tax and benefit increases during the past decade are staggering. After-tax wages have doubled since 1970; but in the same period, Social Security benefits have more than tripled and Social Security taxes have quadrupled. In twelve years, the maximum tax has climbed from $372.40 to $2391.90. Real after-tax income of Social Security recipients has increased five times faster than that of workers since 1967.

Despite this, the recent bailout adds $165 billion in Social Security taxes during the remainder of the decade. In the old Washington tradition of eating one's seed corn, the tax hikes in this bill will discourage job creation, eroding the Social Security system's base. Small businesses, the primary creators of new jobs, already have most of their tax liability in payroll taxes. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce estimates that over two million jobs will be lost because of the current tax hike.

At the heart of the problem is a system of cost-of-living adjustments that overcompensates for inflation. Nearly one-half of the FICA tax increases we will see in the next six years would not be needed if COLAs were capped at 60 per cent of the Consumer Price Index. The CPI is notorious for exaggerating the inflation rate.

The politicians would have us believe that the Social Security problem is solved. But we suspect that the clamor for higher taxes has only temporarily ceased. The recent bill does nothing to prevent benefits from rising faster than the wages of those who support the system. Without any meaningful reform, the current bailout must be viewed as just one of a series of tax increases.

Can't Afford To Wait

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

Let's talk a minutes about perceptions. Perceptions are different from realities in that a perception is the way someone or some group "thinks" things are, and a reality is the way things actually are.

Minnesota's business climate is perceived as bad. Forget for awhile the whole argument about whether it really is or is not bad. Just concentrate on what people perceive.

Who is it, for example, that perceives the business cimate as bad? Unfortunately, it's business people. The people who spend the money to build the businesses which employ Minnesotans and pay taxes and generally keep the whole state going. According to a study done by St. Cloud State University, 87 per cent of the business owners questioned about the Minnesota business climate viewed it as below average or poor. But again, forget whether these perceptions by business people are true or false, just accept that they exist. What effect does this information have on every one of us who live in Minnesota?

First of all, no business can go very long without making a profit. Profit is what makes businesses work, just like gasoline running a car or yeast raising bread. No profit, no business. Therefore, if business people in Minnesota believe they have an opportunity for better profits in South Dakota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa or Arizona, why wouldn't they move to those places? The reality is, they are moving to those places. We could quote numbers of how many have moved, and the numbers would just be questioned. But really, who cares about the numbers? The point is, it's lots of businesses, and it doesn't matter if they are leaving because the business climate here is poor or if they are moving just because they "think" the business climate here is poor. Jobs and taxes are lost just as quickly from perceptions as from realities.

The SCSU study questioned 1,000 business operators in Minnesota. That's a great many people who pay a great many salaries and taxes. What these people perceive is very important to every one of us who live here. When it comes to the business climate, we can argue about who is right and who is wrong until the ice goes off, but it won't change the perceptions. But there is one thing we can do to change the perceptions — we can convince the Minnesota Legislature that they are responsible.

Time after time it is the state which business people complain about. It isn't the snow or the people or the roof on the Metrodome that anger business people. It's the state. State taxes, state workers' and unemployment compensation laws, state surcharges, state regulations, state income tax deductions and on and on. But we are the state of Minnesota, and the legislators in St. Paul represent us. We, therefore, must tell them we don't like the perceptions and we want them to do something about it.

Unless it's an election year, the only thing that can really make a politician accept a sensible idea is pressure. Convince legislators that we'd all be better off if they quit denying the problem and tried improving the business climate to see if that's a solution. They certainly haven't found any other solutions. All of us in this state must exert pressure on the Minnesota Legislature. That means letters, phone calls and personal contacts. In June, the current legislative session will be over and it will be too late to do anything until next time. We can't afford to wait.

TRAINING FOR A ROAD RACE

Train with other runners, it's more fun and safer too.

As more and more Americans interested in physical fitness take up running (over 25 million so far), a large percentage of these are entering races to publicly test their personal progress. Here, from the experts, are some training tips you might follow:

- You should not enter a race unless you have run that distance regularly or have comfortably gone at least 2/3 to 3/4 of that distance in your training runs. Running a race requires both mental and physical conditioning. The tendency is to run faster and the mental pressure to push harder is greater. Finishing is more important than winning.
- Train with other runners so you have the feel of other runners around you. If possible, try to run over terrain — surface — and in weather conditions that are similar to those you will encounter in the race. Excessive cold, hot or humid weather should be avoided.
- Don't commit yourself to running in races too close together and never race after a fallow period in training. It's too late to start conditioning a day or two before a race. You're either in shape or you're not.
- Regardless of how you may feel, it is also a good idea never to race following an illness or injury unless you have a physician's approval. If unusual pain or discomfort occurs during training runs, stop and take care of the problem. Safety should be your first priority.
- Use other aerobic exercises to supplement your running program like: swimming, bicycling, and brisk walking, etc.
- Drink lots of water and avoid running to exhaustion the week before the race. Run only to limber up and keep the legs from stiffening that last week. Adequate rest and proper diet are more important.
- Race in well-fitted, impact-reducing, broken-in running shoes, the same shoes you train in. Never race in new shoes.

These training tips were provided by Washington National Insurance Company, sponsor of the annual nationwide Washington National Fitness Classic.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

The omnibus tax bill is beginning to take shape. Though there will no doubt be many changes before it's ready for the final vote, I thought you might like to hear about provisions relating to property taxes put together over the past four months by the tax laws division.

The measure we are looking at addresses the cost factor, saving the state nearly $93 million compared to current law. It also attempts to target tax relief equitably among groups of taxpayers and toward those with the heaviest tax burdens.

The bill under discussion suggests ways to make the system easier, but we will have to continue studying other possible changes. For now, let me summarize the property tax proposal presented to the house tax committee last week.

Homestead credit and the state property tax refund program — sometimes called the circuit breaker — have been the two sacred cows of our property tax system. They will remain in place with some revisions.

The maximum homestead credit for many taxpayers will be the same as under current law — 58 per cent up to $650. But people in areas with lower than average taxes will receive slightly less state relief than they do now.

The circuit breaker will continue to provide relief to people in low and middle income groups who may have some increases in their tax bills because of local levy decisions and the impact of other parts of the property tax measure. Alternatives are being discussed which attempt to target aid to people who need it most.

Currently, renters credit — at 23 per cent of rent paid — is an estimate of how much of the rent goes toward property taxes. Depending on the type of rental unit, its location, and so on, the acutal figure could range from 10 to 28 per cent of the rent paid. Low income people who qualify for rent subsidies based on their income would remain under the present system.

Awareness of problems in the property tax system resulting in heavy burdens on farmers has increased. A new method of assessing the value of agricultural land was adopted into law but has not gone into effect. It appears it does not accomplish what was intended.

The use of the rent capitalization method for assessing land was seen as an answer when farm land values were rising astronomically and property taxes with them. Today's changing economy and falling land prices call for a different approach.

The rent cap system would have allowed assessors to value agricultural land on its market value or its rental value, whichever was less. If the law were to go into effect, some counties would still use the present system. Others would use rent cap — causing disparities where taxing districts include parts of several counties.

Rent cap could result in some extreme shifts in tax burden among property types. Where rent cap does not reduce ag land valuation, the farmer could end up paying more property taxes, because his ag mill credit will be reduced.

The property tax bill under discussion would repeal the rent cap and create a method to assess land more realistically on its productive value. The bill would allow counties to levy outside their levy limits for their share of the soil survey — a joint federal, state, county program to rate productivity of farm land. Completion of this survey will faciliate our move to a more reasonable production valuation system.

Repeal of rent cap may be controversial, but there appears to be solid evidence rent cap could have a negative impact on farmers and small town businesses. I am optimistic a better valuation process can be developed and that is something we must continue to work on.

Changes relating to local government aids have been made in this proposal, but there is also another local government bill under consideration. The full tax committee is spending many hours each week going over this property tax bill and other tax matters, including income tax simplification and tax incentives to promote economic growth and new jobs.

Please let me hear from you on these tax issues — Room 253 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155, phone (612) 296-9918.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Herbert Hoover had a problem. The year was 1930 and the nation was in a recession. A recession — not yet a depression. Unemployment was just below nine per cent, but earlier recessions had seen unemployment approach 10 per cent and recovery had begun within a year. The nation had experienced recessions in 1910-1912, 1907-1908, and 1899-1900, and each time wages and prices had adjusted to contractions in the money supply and the American economy had surged ahead once again.

But this time, Hoover declared, things would be different. The federal government would not wait for the free market to restore growth. The government would take the lead in "fixing" the economy. In his memoirs, Hoover wrote, "the primary question at once arose as to whether the President and the federal government should undertake to investigate and remedy the evils." Hoover's answer — tragically — was yes.

Massive make-work projects such as the Hoover Dam were begun to "put America back to work." Yet, employment continued to fall.

The Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act was finally passed on June 13, 1930 and signed by Hoover two days later. Protectionism was supposed to raise the price of imported goods and thereby put Americans to work. Instead, nations around the world retaliated by raising their own tariffs and American exports could find no buyers. The stock market fell to 41 from a high of 381 in September 1929. Protectionism did not create more American jobs — it destroyed them.

To combat the mounting deficits Hoover went on to raise taxes on June 6, 1932. The top income tax rate was increased from 25 per cent to 63 per cent. The lowest rate jumped from one per cent to four per cent — a 400 per cent increase. Other taxes were also raised. The corporate income tax was increased. The inheritance tax doubled. A gift tax imposed. Postal rates jumped 50 per cent. Sales taxes were placed on autos, tires and gasoline. New taxes were imposed on telephone, telegraph and radio communication.

And yet, the deficit was not reduced. It increased. The increased taxes were such a burden on the economy that total tax revenues actually fell.

Of course, Hoover was not satisfied to simply raise taxes, increase protectionism and begin make-work projects. The federal government got into the business of fixing wages and prices, subsidizing whole industries and printing more money.

The American people, quite wisely, voted Hoover and his interventionism policies out of office in 1932 and elected Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who promised to reduce the tariffs, cut the federal bureaucracy by 25 per cent and maintain the gold standard.

However, once elected, FDR continued the policies of Herbert Hoover and repackaged them as the "New Deal." As a result, the 1929 recession became the Great Depression and lasted 11 years.

This little known slice of history is important for two reasons. First, most Americans still believe that Hoover was a devoted supporter of the free market. (What is the saying, "with friends like these, who needs enemies?") As a result the history of the Great Depression has been wrongly interpreted as the failure of the free market — rather than the example of failed government intervention that it truly was.

Second, it is important to keep Herbert Hoover and his response to the 1929 recession in mind as we listen to our present day politicians explain their "solutions" to today's unemployment situation. What is their program?

They want to raise taxes. Just like Hoover did. They would bring back protectionism. Just like Hoover did. And they would pass more make-work jobs programs. Just like Hoover.

And they would trigger another Depression. Just like you-know-who.

Unemployment: Made in Washington

Washington, D.C., home of the Internal Revenue Service and the Giant Panda Bears. Ever wonder what people in Washington do for a living? They don't produce automobiles like Detroit, or grow wheat like Kansas. Washington doesn't make television sets, or ball bearings, or steel ingots.

Instead Washington, D.C. makes laws. And regulations. It raises taxes and eyebrows. The only thing Washington makes — I mean really produces — is money. It prints it. Washington also imports money every April 15.

But the District of Columbia does have one major export: Unemployment. Through an ever increasing tax wedge, numerous regulations and special interest legislation, Washington has increased unemployment throughout the nation to over 10 per cent. Oh, yes, the politicians talk a great game about creating jos and increasing employment, but talk is cheap and doesn't do anything for the District's balance of payments. Creating unemployment is the really big ticket item for Washington's export trade.

The government has outlawed six different home industries. Remember the Vermont housewives who discovered in 1981 that knitting at home was a federal crime. Or more recently, the women in Ripon, Wisconsin, who were told that embroidering skirts in their homes and selling the skirts violated a 40-year old regulation. H.L. Mencken described a Puritan as someone who had a gnawing fear that someone, somewhere, was enjoying himself. Well, Washington has the same fear that someone, somewhere, is working. And heaven forbid, making a profit. Only thing to do, of course, is to lock them up until they promise to stop.

The Davis-Bacon Act was passed in the beginning years of the depression to keep black Americans from working in the construction industry. Despite the progress with civil rights laws in the 1950s and 1960s, the Davis-Bacon Act remains part of federal law and is estimated to cost the taxpayers more than $2 billion each year and cost the economy more than 100,000 jobs.

And Congress has refused to enact a youth differential for the summer months to allow young Americans to work for 75 per cent of the minimum wage. Such a change in the law — supported by the administration and most of the business community — would create between 150,000 and 600,000 jobs according to Secretary of Labor Ray Donovan.

In addition to regulations and anti-employment laws, Congress has increased income taxes, payroll taxes and business taxes each year so as to price American workers out of the world marketplace. Every tax is an increase in the cost of producing here in America and another incentive for the Japanese to undersell American businesses and workers. It isn't the cost of American salaries and wages that have priced American goods out of the world marketplace — it is the cost of the government. Behind the price tag on an American car is an array of federal taxes that make Toyotas and Datsuns look more and more attractive.

We invented transistor radios and computers and robots here in America, but taxes on savings and capital gains have driven the savings and investments of Americans overseas to finance the new businesses and jobs of our competitors.

The politicians are always telling us that they can create jobs. They can't. But if Washington would get out of the business of destroying jobs and opportunities for the American people, we could have a recovery unprecedented in our history and a job for every American who wanted to work.

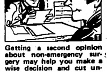
Surgery: Think About Getting A Second Opinion



Getting a second opinion about non-emergency surgery may help you make a wise decision and cut unnecessary medical expenses.

When a doctor advises you to have non-emergency surgery, you should know as much as possible about the pros and cons of the procedure before making a decision.

One of the best ways to reach that decision is to seek the advice of another qualified doctor. That's called "getting a second opinion."

When seeking that second opinion, it's important to ask the right questions. (You should ask them of the first doctor, too.) These are some of the points you should know:

- What is the specific problem?
- What is the operation planned?
- What are the likely benefits of the surgery?
- What are the risks of the surgery and how likely are they to occur?
- How long is the recovery period?
- What are the costs of the surgery? Will your insurance cover those costs?
- What will happen if you don't have the operation? Are there alternative treatments?

The more you know, the better prepared you'll be to make a decision about that surgery. Today, costs of second opinions are covered by many private health insurance programs. Medicare pays for them at the same rate as other services and most state Medicaid programs pay for second opinions.

Recent studies indicate that seeking second opinions could significantly reduce unnecessary surgical procedures and cut the nation's medical costs.

The Health Care Financing Administration offers a free brochure entitled "Thinking of Having Surgery?" To obtain a copy, write to Surgery, Department HHS, Washington, D.C. 20201.

The Administration also maintains a hotline telephone number to help you obtain the names of physicians specializing in your particular ailment. The toll-free number is 800/638-6833. In Maryland, call 1-800/492-6603.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Our government spends millions on the census that is taken every 10 years, but very few of us take the time to look at the results, which provide significant indications of problems and opportunities that will arise from population changes.

For example:

(1) The number of Americans 14 years of age and under is down 12 per cent from 1970 to 1980. This translates into fewer students in elementary, secondary and vocational schools, as well as universities and colleges, if those instititutions continue only to serve traditional students. This also converts into fewer viewers for the kid TV programs, fewer customers for products that kids buy, and fewer people available to work when this group completes its education and starts manning business, government and everything else that needs manpower.

(2) The 15-24 age bracket has grown 20 per cent in the last 10 years. As it passes through our education system and moves on, the growth to accommodate this group could mean contraction. There also is a need for more jobs to provide the necessary full employment.

(3) The 25-34 age bracket has expanded 49 per cent, which also explains the need for more jobs. Since this is the group that produces our crop of children, even if family size doesn't change, a substantial increase in the "baby-kid" area should be anticipated, which means that in the not too distant future there will be an increasing demand for baby products and kid products, and a surge of students coming into and through our educational systems . . . the present student shortage is just temporary.

(4) In the 35-64 bracket, there has been an increase of eight per cent. This means that we have a larger population getting ready for retirement, which, with longer lives, will further complicate the operation of the social security program, which is already short on money. Since people in this group have more health problems than younger age brackets, solving our skyrocketing health care costs is critical. And since this age group does more traveling, big-ticket purchasing and shopping for luxuries, businesses serving these people could have good times.

(5) The 65 and over group is up 28 per cent, which also explains our problems with retirement and health benefits through social security, particularly when you realize that these people are living longer than was anticipated when pension and social security programs were established. The geographic preferences of this group in the sun belt are significant to developers and commercial firms.

The census shows us that 23 per cent of our population is 14 and under, 19 per cent is 15-24, 16 per cent is 25-34, 21 per cent is 35-64 and 21 per cent is over 64. The trends and interpretations that we have made indicate how important this information can be to all of us.

Incidentally, as we watch our older population growing and recognize the need of our working population to constantly expand know-how in this knowledge era (which has followed the industrialization and service periods of our nation's development), I believe that the educational systems should not be contracted. Rather they should "reach out" to serve our working population to adapt to the constantly changing knowledge requirements, and to serve our retired population so that old age can be active and productive, and not a period of mental illness and "rusting out."

Some sidelights: During the colonial period, our population was 4,000,000; the civil war era saw us with 32,000,000 Americans; during World War I, we hit about 100,000,000; World War II saw us with a population of some 132,000,000; and now it is estimated that we have 230,000,000 Americans. Our country is still growing and is still a land of opportunity.

That's Straight Talk!

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

A number of constituents have called and written to ask me about the mortgage relief bill. It has now been passed by the House of Representatives and by the finance committee of the Senate.

The legislation is geared toward helping farmers and homeowners keep their property by offering temporary relief from mortgage payments they cannot meet because of the poor economy and unemployment. The bill approved by the House was a compromise which its author said would be supported by the state's financial institutions.

Its specific provisions are as follows:

+ Extending from 30 to 60 days the amount of time a person has to cure a default on homestead property before foreclosure proceedings can begin;

+ Extending from six to eight weeks the amount of time foreclosure sale notices must be published;

+ Providing a minimum of 0-day notice period before a contract for deed on homestead property may be terminated after default;

+ Permitting people to petition the district courts to delay foreclosure on residential homesteads for up to six months and on farm homesteads (located on more than 10 acres) for up to a full year. In the case of a contract for deed, the court may delay the contract termination for up to 90 days.

This last provision I mentioned is the real crux of the bill — giving some relief and very humane consideration, I might add, to people threatened with losing their homes. The criteria the courts will use, as outlined in the bill, is whether the petitioner is unemployed, underemployed or facing economic problems due to low farm commodity prices; that the petitioner cannot pay the mortgage or contract for deed; and finally, if the petitioner is a farmer, that there is a reasonable probability that he will be able to obtain necessary short-term financing to continue farming.

The courts may also approve written compromise settlements agreed to by all involved parties. And they can fix reasonable payments to be made during the extended repayment period. The courts are required to hear petitions within 30 days of filing and to rule within five days of the trials.

This legislation is limited to cases where no harm will result to the mortgagee or contract vendor. It does not include business entities or apartment houses.

It carries a sunset provision for July 1, 1984.

If you have any questions on this or other legislation before the House now, feel free to call or write to me at Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155, phone (612) 296-9918.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

A Consumer Service from the Office of the Minnesota Attorney General

DOOR-TO-DOOR CHARITABLE SOLICITATIONS: BE GENEROUS BUT BE WISE

A knock on the door. You open it and there stands someone asking you to give to a drug prevention program or a diabetes drive or any number of other worthy causes. Any amount will do, thank you. After all, it's all in the name of charity.

Or is it?

Most people door-knocking for charities are legitimate solicitors and so are the organizations they represent. But there is a small percentage out there who aren't. How can you tell which is which?

Well, for one thing, you can call the state Attorney General's Office or the state Department of Commerce. Together they keep tabs on all legitimate charities operating in the state.

But many times, residents are solicited after both offices are closed or on the weekends. What do you do then?

The following are some good ideas:

- Ask for a copy of the solicitation literature. Don't rely on information that you're allowed just to look at but not to keep. You may want to insist on reviewing and keeping letters of introduction or support so you can telephone the organization or individual giving the reference. You should know that documents showing incorporation of an organization as a non-profit organization do not imply endorsement by the state of Minnesota.
- Ask for and keep a copy of identification data including name, address (something more than a post office box), and telephone number of the organization, as well as the name of the solicitor.
- Ask how much of your donation is tax deductible.
- Establish whether you are talking to a volunteer solicitor or a paid solicitor. Ask how much of your contributed dollar is going to the organization's costs of soliciting and overhead and how much is going to the charitable purpose. Beware of vague answers such as "we only cover our expense," or "we are a non-profit organization." Look for clear answers such as, "we only spend 20 percent on soliciting and administration. Eighty percent goes to the charitable purpose."
- Give money by check and avoid cash donations. Checks can be traced by you back to the depositor. Cash donations are not only impossible to trace but are also difficult for the charity to control.
- Insist on a written receipt and read it. Frequently, information about the tax deductibility of the contribution will be disclosed. An important point: status as a non-profit organization does not imply that your donation will be tax deductible. The determination of tax deductibility is primarily made through the Internal Revenue Service.
- Don't be afraid to ask questions about where the solicitor lives. Some solicitors are from outside the neighborhood or sometimes from outside the state. If the solicitors are not from your area, you may want to ask more questions.
- If the solicitor is vague or applies high pressure, don't give. You can always take the name, address and phone number of the organization and send a check later.

Many fine charities depend upon your financial support and perhaps your volunteer services. These groups will anticipate your questions and be able to cheerfully and candidly respond. Give generously but give wisely.

100 Cars Expected For Weekend Show

Approximately 100 cars with an estimated value in excess of $1 million will be on display during the fourth annual North Country Auto Showtime Saturday and Sunday at the Thief River Falls sports arena and curling club building.

"Entries are coming in at a steady rate and should provide us with a 100-entry show," staed Marty Lendobeja, co-chairman of the event sponsored by the Prairie Schooners street rod club. "What surprises and pleases us the most is that about 75 per cent of the early entries are for cars that have never been shown here before."

Entries have been received in advance from throughout Minnesota and from North Dakota and Canada. The show is the largest of its type between Winnipeg and the Twin Cities.

Show hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday with the announcement of winners and presentation of trophies from 4 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Plans are to use both the sports arena and curling club building to house the vehicles.

Other events of public interest on Saturday will be the first of the monthly flea markets at Floyd B. Olson park in the downtown area and a swap meet sponsored by the Agassiz Antique and Engine club adjacent to the sports arena. The swap meet will continue on Sunday and be expanded to include a number of vendors from Saturday's flea market.

A pancake and sausage feed Sunday will be sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) with serving at the American Legion club rooms from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. at a charge of $2 per person.

Admission for the car show will be $3 for adults, $1 for children age six to 12, and no charge of visitors under six or over 65 years of age. In addition, a special family rate of a maximum of $7 is being tried this year to encourage family attendance. There is no admission to the flea market or swap meets and concessions will be provided in the swap meet area.

Randy Adamson, show co-chairman, noted that support of the show by the local business community has been better than ever this year. "It takes a really cooperative community effort to put on a show of this size," Adamson said, "The local support indicates the progressive attitude here, and I hope that attitude and effort will continue in the future years."

Increased local support has permitted the show sponsors to add several new categories of competition which should appeal to entrants and viewers alike. Special classes of competition have been added for convertibles, pickups and motorcycles. Classes have also been added for best interior, engine and paint with selection in each class on the basis of "wild," "mild" and "stock."

These additional areas of competition will supplement the usual classes for early and late model street rod, antique, collector and street machines, sports class, special interest, people's choice, mayor's selection, Miss Thief River Falls selection, president's pick and others. The Prairie Schooners will also offer a prize for best club participation to other clubs having entries in the show.

City Council Meets Tuesday On Bond Issue

Thief River Falls city council will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, in council chambers at city auditorium for the purpose of awarding bids on $800,000 in general obligation bonds, and possible action on finance committee recommendations regarding charges for service connections, and the lease-sale of the municipal service building to Northern Outerwear.

Other possible topics for discussion include the issuance of a liquor license for the Family Bowl, and meetings scheduled with the staff of Senator Rudy Boschwitz on Wednesday.

Women For Ag Chapter Being Formed In Area

Formation of a Minnesota Women for Agriculture chapter in this area of the state is being attempted and the next meeting will be conducted Monday, June 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Newfolden community center. Interested women from the Thief River Falls, Newfolden, Viking, Middle River and neighboring areas are encouraged to attend.

An initial organizational meeting was conducted recently with MWA state president Myrna Evenson and Treasure Omdahl of Warren, editor of the MWA Newsletter, in attendance. They reviewed their trip to the USDA forum in Washington, DC.

Marlys Moose of Viking and Anita Blazejewski of Newfolden were elected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively. Persons wanting more information on the organization may contact Mrs. Moose at 523-3075 or Mrs. Blazejewski at 874-7275.

Dale Rupprecht Named Regional Star Farmer

DALE RUPPRECHT, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rupprecht of rural Thief River Falls and a senior at Lincoln high school, has been named Region 1 Star Farmer through the state Future Farmers of America program. At left in the photo are his trophies for regional dairy proficiency and star farmer awards. His herd of 10 milking cows is on DHIA test through the Pennington county association and he makes use of the computerized records to determine several of his herd practices.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

While most high school students are still sound asleep in the pre-dawn darkness of a winter night, lights are on and the radio is playing in the dairy barn on the Donald Rupprecht farm northeast of Thief River Falls. Dale Rupprecht, 18, is tending to his 30-animal dairy herd before getting ready for a day of classes at Lincoln high school.

Dale was selected Region 1 Star Farmer and placed high in state competition at the Minnesota Future Farmers of America convention recently in the Twin Cities. He is a past president. of the Thief River Falls FFA chapter and currently serves as its president.

His interest, enthusiasm and effort have enabled him to increase his dairy operation from a grade Holstein heifer calf purchased in 1975 as a 4-H club project to his present herd of 26 registered Ayrshires and four grade Holsteins. He has 10 milking cows in his present herd and his FFA records indicate he completed 1982 with a net worth of $21,598.93.

Youth agriculture programs have assisted Dale in his development as a future farmer. He has been delegate to spring banquet and fall rally of the FFA, participated in dairy judging for three years and was first place individual in the Region 1 contest last year. He also served three years on the fund-raising fruit sale which the local chapter conducted.

He served as president of the Steiner 4-H club for one year, helped plan the club's yearly program and tour and has shown dairy cattle at the county and state fairs, Northwest Dairy day and the Red River Valley winter shows for a number of years. He was president of his church Luther league and also a member of the Farmers Union youth group.

Dale holds membership in the Minnesota and national Ayrshire Breeders association, Minnesota Valley Breeders association, Carnation Genetics group and Dairy Improvers, Inc. His herd is on test with the Pennington county Dairy Herd Improvement association (DHIA) with Jerry Hamre as supervisor.

According to his star farmer records, Dale has shown steady improvement in his dairy herd. The average pounds of milk produced per cow has grown from 12,000 pounds in 1980 to 13,760 in 1981 and 13,818 in 1982. More impressively, the butterfat production has grown from an average of 444 pounds in 1980 (3.7 test) to 525 in 1981 (3.8 test) and 569 pounds in 1982 (4.1 test).

His current rolling herd average for the 10 cows on DHIA test is 14,130 pounds of milk, 3.6 per cent test and 512 pounds of butterfat. Six of the 10 cows are in their first lactation and the herd has a mature equivalent rating of 17,794 pounds of milk. Dale's herd went on full DHIA test in January after three years of owner-sampler testing.

"It's those Holsteins that are holding the butterfat average test down," Dale said, going to his DHIA computer print-out to prove his point. "They produce a lot of milk but the butterfat percentage is way down

WHILE MOST STUDENTS are still snuggled in their beds, Dale Rupprecht of rural Thief River Falls has been in the barn at 5 a.m. to get his dairy herd milked and cared for before heading for school. The senior at Lincoln high school has been named District 1 Star Farmer through the Future Farmers of America program.

Kays Selected For London's Acting Academy

Two Moorhead state university theatre graduates are among 24 North American students chosen to attend the London academy of music and dramatic arts this fall in England.

Chris Kays of Thief River Falls and Michelle Cassioppi of Grand Rapids won admission to the professional academy after auditioning in New York this spring with 400 other candidates from the U.S. and Canada.

Chris Kays

Although the London academy accepts only 24 North American students each year into its one-year program, MSU has placed 10 of its graduates there in the past seven years.

According to Dr. Del Hansen, director of theatre at MSU, the London academy is one of the most prestigious threatre schools in England. "It offers some of the best professional training in the world," he said.

Kays, 23, is a 1978 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and the son of Mrs. Beverly Kays. He went to MSU three years ago from Northland community college in Thief River Falls and has since had parts in nearly 30 shows there, including his three years with the Straw Hat Players. He'll be a member of the Straw Hat company again this summer.

School Election Slated Tuesday

Annual school district elections will be held throughout the area Tuesday with evening polling hours in all districts but the opening and closing time varying according to district. In Thief River Falls the polls will be open from 4 to 8 p.m. at four locations.

Candidates for the Thief River Falls board of education are Paul Bortnem and incumbents Myrle Carlson, Larry McDowell and Greg Pribula. Carlson and Pribula are completing their first three-year terms on the board and McDowell has served for nine years. Today is the last day to cast absentee ballots.

Polling places for the Thief River Falls district will be as follows: St. Hilaire post office building for the previous St. Hilaire school district, Franklin middle school for the area south and east of the Red Lake river, Lincoln high school for the area west of the Red Lake river and the area vocational-technical institute for the area north of the Red Lake river and east of the Thief River.

An error in last Monday's edition of the Times listed the wrong candidates for the Plummer school election. Incumbents Karen Fossell and Ray Franklund are opposed by John Helley Sr. at Plummer and polls will be open from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Pershing high school cafeteria.

At Goodridge only incumbents Larry Vigen and Paul Troska have filed for reelection, although a write-in effort is rumored. Strandquist schools will have only incumbents Janice Borowicz

Themes Extoll Virtues Of Being Grandparents

Essays on grandparents were written by Thief River Falls elementary school students who entered competition sponsored by the local Retired Educators association. Themes written by the three winners in the competition are published below:

"My Grandma Isaacson"
by Amy Isaacson
First Place

My grandma lives in Pelican Rapids, Minnesota in an old white house on a farm. The farm has cows and cats. She used to have some sheep, but she sold them. She also used to have a horse named Lady, but they had to shoot her because she was getting too old.

Her house is big. She fixed it up a little bit so now it looks pretty modern. In the living room there's a chair where my grandma always sits when she's not working or cooking.

My grandma is short and plump with greyish-white hair. She seldom wears dresses except when it's a special occasion or something.

My grandma has a big raspberry patch. When my friend and I come to her house, we pick raspberries and sell them for a dollar a pint. Last summer we earned so much money that we got to go to an overnight horse camp.

My grandma collects bells and antique dishes. She has a whole china cabinet filled with them.

My grandma works at the turkey plant in Detroit Lakes. She gets paid good money because she's worked there for over twenty years.

My grandma loves to buy things, especially for me. She knows just what clothes are in style and what styles I like. Whenever we go shopping she hands me a ten dollar bill and tells me to do whatever I want with it (and boy do I ever!). You know how grandmas are.

My grandma has a huge yard! And it always looks just perfect.

I remember all those family reunions with her where I didn't know anybody except for my own family.

I don't ever remember going on any trips with my grandma. But one summer when I was three, my family went to the Black Hills and I stayed with her.

Grandma never really did like games or fun activities. But I know one thing that she loves to do, and that one thing is cooking. My grandma loves to cook! She bakes everything from bread to Mexican dinners. It tastes good too! She even bakes everything from scratch!

It's not only the cooking that I will always remember about my grandma. It's her smile, her laughter, and her warmth.

Wagner And Efta Vows Exchanged At Crookston

Marsha Wagner of Fisher and Robert Efta of Greenbush, exchanged marriage vows on April 16, at 4:00 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in Crookston.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Willis Wagner of Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Efta of Greenbush.

Officiating at the ecumenical ceremony were Rev. Daniel Hogum and Rev. Jerry Rogers. Melanie Engel, a friend of the bride, was the organist. Soloists were Cynthia Beiswenger, a friend of the bride, and Cynthia Efta, a cousin of the groom. Selections sung were "Wedding Song," and "God, A Woman and A Man."

Forming the chancel setting were two baskets of gladioli in pastel colors and candelabra with lavender tapers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in an ivory organza gown styled with a Chantilly lace on the bodice, bishop sleeves and at the Queen Anne neckline. Creating back interest were tiers of lace-edged, organza ruffles, cascading into a chapel-length train. Scalloped lace edged her floor-length veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of pink roses, lavender daisies and white carnations.

Cynthia Urness of Fisher attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Annette Berg, Barb Cameron, friends of the bride; Jacqueline Efta and Elizabeth Efta, sisters of the groom. Junior bridesmaids were Colette and Heidi Erck, nieces of the bride. All wore lavender chiffon off-the-shoulder gowns with bustle backs. In their hair, they wore a cluster of flowers, complementing their bouquets of pink and white carnations, accented with lavender daisies.

Serving as flower girl was Amber Efta, Argyle, a cousin of the groom. She wore an ivory, floor-length gown with a lavender ribbon tied at the waistline. The rings were carried by Michael Urness, a nephew of the bride.

Best man was Charles Efta, Greenbush, a brother of the groom. Myles and Lou Efta, cousins of the groom; Tom Wagner, a brother of the bride; and Steve Urness, a brother-in-law of the bride, were groomsmen. Ushers were Rod Johnson, cousin of the bride and James A. Efta, a cousin of the groom. Serving as usherettes were Paulette Wagner, and Patricia Efta, sisters of the bride and groom, respectively. The men of the wedding party wore dove gray Eaton-cut tuxedos with lavender ruffled shirts and lavender carnations boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wagner wore a mauve floor-length gown with a rose corsage. The groom's mother was also attired in a mauve gown with a rose corsage.

Honor guests at the ceremony were Martha Wagner and Paula Tangen, grandmothers of the bride; Victoria Efta, grandmother of the groom, and Carol Welter, the bride's personal attendant.

Host and hostess at the reception that followed at Northland lodge for approximatel 350 relatives and friends, were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Merrill and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Efta.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered fountain wedding cake surrounded at the base by six heart-shaped cakes. A cluster of flowers graced the top tier. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Gerhard Ross and Mrs. Ernest Vatthauer. Richard Ross and Gerhard Ross served the champagne.

Punch was served by Julie Efta and Andy Viner. Mrs. Michael Kolden registered the guests, Laurie Efta and Kathleen Efta arranged the gifts and Bobbie Wagner served as flower hostess.

Following a wedding trip to Duluth, the couple is at home in Badger, where they are engaged in farming. Prior to her marriage, the bride was employed at Town and Country in Crookston. Photo, James Hohman, Crookston.

Mulching Studied At Deer Park Garden Meeting

Mulching, its advantages and disadvantages, and the types of materials to use, were studied at the May meeting of the Deer Park garden club held at the home of Lois Swanson.

Mrs. Swanson led the study. She stated that one of the disadvanatages is mulching too early as it keeps the soil too cold for the seedlings to grow. She displayed samples of fir bark, sphagnum moss, pine needles and cottonwood leaves as excellent mulching for an acid base.

As a special feature, she had on exhibit a container gardening experiment featuring potted impatiens watered by the capillary method. She also showed her All American variety of Sweetheart Strawberry and Apricot Brandy Celosia seedlings started indoors.

To correspond with the topic, members answered roll call by naming various kinds of mulching.

President Helen Chervestad presided at the meeting. Plans for the annual spring plant sale at the Goodridge senior citizen center on May 20, was finalized. Members were reminded to bring a homemade pie to be served at the event.

The June tour was discussed. Willia Prestegaard volunteered the use of her home that day for the potluck lunch. Serving on the tour committee are Bernice Johnson, Lauretta Stucy and Luella Peterson.

Correspondance included a letter to the Community eduation advisory committee from Supt. Dr. Don Langan of Goodridge. Norma Hanson represents the Deer Park garden club on that committee.

To rejuvenate the gardening spirit, magazines were shown illustrating the use of nature's color wheel in gardening. Floral arrangements brought by the members were discussed.

Francis Aandal attended the meeting as a guest.

The local meeting was highlighted by the installation of officers with Mary Ann Myhrer as installing officer. (A picture of the officers appeared in an earlier edition of the Times.)

Adding a somber note was the draping of the charter in memory of Mildred Fritzinger and Louise Rulien who were members of the local unit; and Marie DeWitt of Minnesota, past national president.

At the business session, monetary donations were made to the March of Dimes, Kideny fund and the Airport Memorial.

Thelma Manning won the door prize, Doris Duray, the attendance prize, and Cathy Jorgenson, the special Mother's Day prize donated by President Louise Brezney. During the fellowship hour that followed, lunch was served.

Elida Eliason's grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Korhonen and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Franz provided vocal and instrumental selections at the Good Friday service. Harvey Dyrud gave the meditation and Verna Rood, the closing prayer.

Also of interest were a program presented by the Senior Citizen Rhythm band, a visit from the members of the Miriam circle of Trinity who served doughnuts with the afternoon coffee, the bowling game at Oakland Park nursing home with the host team winning, and the Easter hat parade by residents and staff with residents Marie Anderson and Eldred Johnston, winning first and second prize, and staff member Carolyn Jablinski, third prize.

Welcomed as a new resident was Dan Horien of Holt.

A group of residents and several staff members attended the funeral services for Mildred Fritzinger held at Trinity Lutheran church.

Visiting with the residents during the month and assisting them in table games were Constance Driscoll, president of the American Legion auxiliary, and Edna McNelly. Creating a festive air to the dining room tables were the bouquets of daffodils donated by Jarvis Prichard.

Other activities at the Home, as reported by Ella Overum, were movies with pop corn, dart ball, shuffle board, bowling, choir and band practice, morning exercises, and the craft activities in the craft room and men's workshop.

DeCor Club Hears Report of Ninth Dist. Convention

At the meeting of the DeCor club of the Thief River Falls General Federated Women's clubs held Monday evening, May 9, at the Eula Kvikstad home, President Madeleine Scramstad reported on the district convention held recently at Stephen.

She stated that the DeCor club had been represented at the convention by four delegates: herself, Ethel Aase, Mildred Wick, and Geneva Overum.

She said that the theme of the convention "Hats Off To Spring," was emphasized by a skit "The Story of the Dozen Hats," by members of Stephen hosting clubs, Athena, Monday Study and Woman's Club. Of special interest were the recognitions given to Mahnomen Library club and the Moorhead Woman's club, who were noting their 70th and 90th anniversaries. Following a style show of clothing from the early 1900's to the present time, District art chairman Dee Forney of this city announced the winners of the art contest.

Winners from Thief River Falls and the division in which their items were entered were: Mildred Wick of the DeCor Club for her afghan in yarn crochet; Jean Hogan, knitted garment and oil painting; and Margaret Saetre, stitchery. In the student division, Becky Berggren of Newfolden placed first with a free form vase. Newfolden Study club received first in the Year book awards and the Zehian Club placed first in membership.

Key note guest speaker at the convention was President of the Minnesota Federation of Woman's clubs Lu Stoffel of Hastings. Following her presentation, the Ninth District president Marge Bush of Newfolden, together with members of the Modern Study club of Twin Valley gave Mrs. Stoffel a quilt featuring a square made by each club in the district. The credential report showed 76 delegates, six past presidents, 12 district officers and 75 club members attended the convention together with visitors, guests and judges.

Mrs. Scramstad concluded her report by mentioning the Service of Remembrance honoring members of the Ninth District who had died during the year. Among those listed were Ebba Sagmoen of Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Scramstad also announced that the 1984 convention will be held in Breckenridge.

At the local meeting, Ethel Aase reported on the General Clinic held May 3; and Carla Peterson gave the report on the heart clinic held May 4.

It was also noted that all members had attended the birthday party on April 16 for Lillian Aasland, a member of the club, who is currently a resident of the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital. The party, held at Mrs. Aasland's home on Crocker Avenue, was hosted by her daughters.

Eleven members attended the local meeting together with two guests: Evelyn Peterson and Bernice Wiener.

Pulsar Stars Drum Through Entire Universe

Pulsars are dying stars of great power. Each drums its distinctive beat outward to the universe, some pulsing as slowly as one beat every four seconds, one throbbing as fast as 600 beats per second, but most ranging at about two to seven pulses per second, according to University of Minnesota "Starwatch."

When first discovered some 15 years ago, these stars were thought to be conscious conveyers of mysterious messages. The truth is perhaps even stranger.

A pulsar begins in a supernova explosion, the most violent star death and the fate of only the largest stars. When such stars have exhausted their nuclear fuel, they collapse under their own gravity.

Accelerating collapse creates a tremendous explosion, blowing some of the star outward into space. The core then crashes more deeply inward, creating the densest kind of star in the universe. A star that once had several times the mass of our sun becomes only slightly bigger than a small asteroid, perhaps five to 10 miles across. The almost unimaginable gravity created on the pulsar's surface would increase the weight of an average-sized person to some 100 trillion pounds — about the weight of Mount Everest.

When the star collapses, the laws of physics must remain in force but take strange turns, according to John Dickey, astronomer at the University of Minnesota. Angular momentum — the same force that makes bycycles and toy tops more stable as they move faster — must be conserved. The result is that the star spins faster and faster as it collapses, beginning at a few hundred spins per second.

The other relevant physical law — the conservation of magnetic flux, the strength of the star's magnetic field — is also intensified on a pulsar. Its magnetic field becomes some 200 trillion times stronger than that at the earth's surface.

Then, much as some electric power plants on the earth create electricity by rotating a strong magnet, the pulsar itself becomes an awesome electromagnetic generator. Its pulses are the evidence of this natural electricity. With each spin, a vast beam emerging from the two poles of the star sweeps over everything in its path — including Earth — like a vast lighthouse light.

Gradually, the intense pulsating draws energy from the rotation, slowing the pulsar down. By the time the pulses are about four seconds apart, the star's beam is too weak to be detected by Earth-bound telescopes. The wound-down corpses of these stars might well litter the universe.

To hear two pulsars, which are among the most exotic kinds of star known, call the University of Minnesota's Starwatch tape at (612) 376-5587. The tape, made at the national radio astronomy observation's Greenbank, WV, facility, features pulsar 0329 with its beat of 1.5 pulses per second reaching Earth from about 8,500 light-years away and pulsar 0833, pulsating at 11 pulses per second from some 1,600 light-years away.

Oklee Woman Into Sewing Bits & Pieces

Times Reporter

"String, Log cabin, Double tulip, Hatchet, Frame-a-print, Pretty Triangles..." names of quilt patterns sprinkle a conversation with Ione Austad of Oklee, like the names of old friends. Mrs. Austad currently has a display of quilts and quilt patterns on exhibit at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls.

Both knowledgeable and enthusiastic about her hobby, Mrs. Austad says she has been making quilts for 25 to 30 years, adding that she has gotten more extensively involved with it during the last 15 to 20 years. Her involvement has reached a point now, where quilt making has become nearly as much-of-a-small business as a hobby. Ione says she has made as many as 85 quilts in a year, although many of those were just tops.

Ione notes that many people prefer to avoid the painstaking work of sewing all of the little pieces for a quilt top together, but still enjoy assembling the top and lining together. She says there are different ways to assemble a quilt, adding that in true "quilting" the front and back are sewn together with the batting in between, forming a pattern of high and low areas. Although she admires the technique, Ione says she prefers to tie her quilts together, using short loops of yarn which are knotted at intervals across the entire quilt. Although the reasons given for her preference include the fact that tying is more traditional, less time consuming and doesn't require a special quilting frame, Ione notes that the main reason is that she just got started that way.

When she got started is something Ione says she isn't real sure about, but she knows that she was sewing doll clothes when she was six years old. "I had to do everything by hand then, of course," she says with a twinkle in her eye. "I feel like I just always loved to sew."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Weberg, she was raised on a farm near Trail. Although she doesn't remember her mother sewing a lot when she was young, she says her mother did make a lot of piece quilts in her later years. Her father moved to Hibbing to work in the mines when World War II began, and Ione married Ole Austad, who farmed near Oklee.

As the wife of a farmer, raising three boys and two girls, Ione says that finding time for sewing used to be a problem. She and Ole are semi-retired now, with one son, Russel, living at home and working as a carpenter. Ione notes that although she doesn't have as many interruptions now, she still has housework, her yard, flowers and garden to attend to. Other hobbies which she enjoys include reading and working crossword puzzles. She also attends about four of the larger flea markets in the state during the summer, where she sells quilts and homemade dolls.

Although her first quilts were made for family members and friends, requests began coming in from people who admired her work, and Ione began charging for her handiwork. She says she currently gets about $25 for a double bed sized top, and $50 for an assembled quilt. She notes that in traveling in the southern part of the United States, she saw quilts in roadside craft shops selling for as high as $800.

Even though she does all of the work herself, from cutting out the pieces to tying the final knot, Ione says that she can complete a quilt in about two days if she doesn't have too many interruptions. By carefully planning her work, she notes that she can sew the entire quilt top without ever cutting the thread on her sewing machine.

Ione says that she has about 10 different patterns that she uses a lot, adding that the number of existing patterns is practically unlimited. She notes that by sewing the quilt squares together in different ways, larger patterns emerge, creating a new design. Her personal favorite is the "String" pattern, which has 44 individual pieces sewn together in a 15 inch square.

Asked where she got the fabrics for all of the quilts she makes, Ione commented, "when you've been sewing as many years as I have, you accumulate a lot of pieces." She says she also gets scraps from friends, and exchanges with her sister who also does a lot of sewing. In fact, love of sewing seems to be a family trait of sorts, as her sister has made as many as 100 quilts in a year. "I also buy fabric when it's reasonably priced," she adds.

Ione says that most of her quilt tops are made of 100 per cent cotton. She says that although polyester wears and washes better, most women still prefer cotton, probably because it's more authentic. The history of quilts and quilt patterns, about which a number of books have been written, reveals that the early pioneers often used their quilts as a way of brightening up the drab interiors of their humble cabins.

Although she enjoys meeting people and the extra income which her hobby provides, Ione says the main reason she sews is that it is fun for her. "It's not as costly as a lot of other hobbies, and you have something useful and attractive when you're done, but mainly I sew because I enjoy it. I doubt that I'll ever get tired of it."

there."

It was in 1978 when Dale purchased his first registered Ayrshire from the Lynn and Mike Hanson herd at Goodridge. He liked the high butterfat percentage and feed conversion of the brown and white cows as well as their longevity in both reproduction and milk production. He has added to his herd by raising his own heifer calves and purchasing bred heifers from other producers.

One of his animals he purchased from the Hanson herd was grand champion dairy animal at the Pennington county fair and has produced three heifer calves in as many years. Recently he and Mike Hanson purchased a registered Ayrshire bull from Rockwood Ayrshire farm of Parkers Prairie, the top herd in Minnesota among Ayrshire producers for both type and production.

Dale has shown cattle at Northwest Dairy day for eight years, at the county fair since 1976, and at the state fair in 4-H for four years and open class for three years. On July 4 he will show his animals at the state Ayrshire show at Cannon Falls.

In his 4-H club work he has carried projects in tractor, veterinary science, junior leadership, automotive, poultry and several areas of the dairy project. Dairy was his major project in the FFA program.

Attesting to Dale's individual abilities and efforts is the fact that he has done most of the work on his own. He does his own chores (sometimes hiring his 15-year-old brother Daryl to help), purchases hay and grain from the home farm, does his own feed mixing and grinding with a portable mixer borrowed from a neighbor and keeps his own records.

The dairy barn on the farm hadn't been used for dairy cattle for many years and the milker hadn't been used for 20 years when he restored it and put it into service. He added a milk house to the barn last year and installed a 200-gallon bulk tank. And he still helps his father with field work on their small grain farm.

Despite the 5 a.m. start with chores every morning and the restrictions placed on an individual's time by having to tend a dairy herd morning and night, Dale is looking down the road to a future in the business. He would like to eventually have an 80-cow milking herd of registered Ayrshires with a tie stall barn and milking parlor. He knows it will cost a bundle to get into that operation, but his demonstrated ability indicates he is likely to make it work.

EXPANDING HIS HERD of Ayrshire dairy cattle, Dale Rupprecht of rural Thief River Falls can be pleased with sharp looking heifer calves like this one. The calf will carry the registered name of Daleshire Pam but Dale has nick-named the heifer "Seven" because of the white marking on her forehead. Dale now has a herd of 26 registered Ayrshires and four grade Holsteins and looks toward an 80-cow milking herd sometime in the future.

IONE AUSTAD, Oklee, holds up one of the beautiful quilt tops which she has made, which are currently on display at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls through the end of the month. Although the small pieces are sewn in a "Log Cabin" pattern, into identical squares, she notes that the way the squares are assembled creates a larger pattern. Ione says she can assemble a quilt similar to this one in about two days, and plans her work in such a way that she can sew the entire top without ever cutting the thread on her sewing machine. Some quilt patterns have as many as 44 pieces in a 15 inch square.

Crop Prices Rise Slightly During April

Probably as a result of the PIK program, Minnesota crop producers saw mostly better farm prices in April. Except for declines in flax and dry bean prices, April crop prices were higher than March. The average corn price climbed to $2.84 per bushel, the highest level since July of 1981.

Livestock producers did not fare as well. With the exception of beef cattle and wool, Minnesota prices for livestock commodities were lower, according to figures provided by the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Prices paid by U.S. farmers held steady in April. The prices paid index was unchanged from March as higher prices for feeds and fuels were offset by lower prices for feeder livestock and motor supplies.

USDA surveys seed prices each April and September. Prices paid by U.S. farmers for seeds in April rose only one point from last year, held in check by price declines for many types of seed. A summary of those prices paid by U.S. farmers for field seeds in April 1983 and changes from a year ago includes the following: Alfalfa (cert.) per 100 lbs., $208, up $6; alfalfa (Uncert.) per 100 lbs., $163, up $10; seed potatoes, per 100 lbs., $6.90, down $1.20; hybrid seed corn, per bu., $64.60, up 90 cents; seed wheat (Spring), per bu., $6.69, down 20 cents; seed oats, per bu., $4.37, down 14 cents; seed barley, per bu., $5.22, down 38 cents; seed flax, per bu., $9.24, down $1.96; seed sunflower, per 100 lbs., $211, up $11; soybeans for seed, per bu., $10.10, down 60 cents.

Average prices received by farmers for April 1982 compared with April 15, 1983, respectively includes the following: All wheat, bu., $3.76 and $3.84; corn, bu., $2.38 and $2.84; oats, bu., $1.98 and $1.45; barley (feed and malting) bu., $2.34 and $1.94; soybeans, bu., $5.99 and $5.92; flaxseed, bu., $6.81 and $4.63; dry edible beans, cwt., $24.00 and $10.20; all hay, baled, ton, $72.00 and $74.00; alfalfa hay, baled, ton., $74.00 and $80.00; other hay, baled, ton, $62.00 and $55.00; potatoes, cwt., $4.40 and $4.40; all sunflowes, cwt., $11.90 and $8.80;

MN Inventors Congress Set June 10 to 12

In times of economic hardship, people tend to make do with less, and to be more creative in solving their problems. It is a time when inventors and inventions seem to flourish.

The Minnesota Inventors congress in Redwood Falls recognizes the need to help inventors protect and sell their inventions. It was founded 26 years ago to do just that — provide information and help to inventors.

For instance, would you — as an inventor — know how to go about protecting your idea? How would you make sure that you, and not a disreputable manufacturer, made the profit from your invention?

At the Minnesota Inventors congress, inventors have an opportunity to talk over their problems with patent attorneys, government officials and others, receiving advice that would cost hundreds or thousands of dollars were they to seek it on their own.

Minnesota Inventors congress for 1983 will be held Friday through Sunday, June 10-12, at the Redwood county fairgrounds in Redwood Falls. For more information, including a detailed schedule of the three-day event, write for a free brochure to: Minnesota Inventors Congress, Box 71, Redwood Falls, MN 56283, or phone 507-637-2828.

Their house is large, white and has two floors. In the front yard there's a row of large Spruce trees that are fun to climb in and play hide-and-go-seek. In the back yard there's woods and a bird feeder. There is always lots of different kinds of birds there and my grandpa knows the names of most all of them, some I've never heard of before. On the right side of the house is a tire swing my grandpa made. It's always a race to see who gets there first.

In the inside there's a kitchen, living room, bathroom, playroom, and four bedrooms. In the playroom there is a big upright piano that's over fifty years old, but it still plays good.

My grandma is tall and slender, has red hair, and glasses. She wears slacks, or jeans, with blouses or sweaters, and blue sneakers.

My grandpa is tall and has broad shoulders, black hair, and glasses. He usually wears flannel shirts, with jeans, and around the house he wears slippers.

Both grandma and grandpa are retired. Grandma was a nurse, and grandpa was a farmer. Now he rents his land out to another man.

Grandma and grandpa have a green Buick, that has big fluffly, soft bucket seats that lean way back when you push a button.

They have six children. The oldest is Joan than Sharon, (that's my mom) than the twins Catherine and Caroline than Martha, than William (Bill for short). In all there are thirteen grandchildren.

When we go to grandma and grandpa's house we usually either play UNO, rummy, checkers, put together puzzles, or bake cookies and bread. And sometimes grandpa gives rides on the tractor. And sometimes he lets me drive it by myself!

I guess there is only one word for grandparents and that's "SPECIAL." Because who else but grandparents will take special time and just play with you, who else sticks-up for you when no one else will, and who else tells such great bed time stories. It's grandparents and I'm glad I have them.

"My Grandmother"
by Dianna Olson
Third Place

My grandmother is small she isn't very tall. She wears little dresses with an apron. She's a full-blooded Norwegian. She has blue eyes, she wears little black boots with her dresses and a little brown sweater.

Even though it is hard to get around because she is so small and fragil. She sits on the counch and tells me stories of when she was a little girl. That is fun when she tells me stories because I get to learn about when she was a young girl.

She doesn't have a car. But my sister Natalie likes to take her shopping. Sometimes when I go shopping with Natalie and Grandma Huset. My grandma tells me to go and pick out gum or a candy bar. But it doesn't matter if she buys me anything or gives me a gift. I like her so much because she's kind, caring, loving, and she's my little sweetheart.

WIC Program Topic Of Meet In Minneapolis

Interested Minnesotans will have a chance to discuss the state's plans for implementing the federal special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC) at a meeting set for May 25 in Minneapolis.

Minnesota department of health is sponsoring the meeting, which is open to the general public. Participants will be able to discuss the fiscal 1984 Minnesota state plan of program operation for WIC, being prepared to comply with U.S. department of agriculture regulations adopted under the amended child nutrition act of 1966. A draft of the proposed plan is available for public inspection upon request.

Any individual or group can submit written or oral testimony at the meeting by registering by May 23. Testimony will be accepted on a first come, first served basis.

The meeting will be held at the Minnesota department of health, 717 Delaware Street S.E., Minneapolis, begin at 10 a.m. in the board room and conclude when all registered speakers have testified. For further information, write the WIC Program, Minnesota Department of Health, 717 Delaware Street S.E., P.O. Box 9441, Minneapolis, MN 55440, or call (612) 623-5436.

Cost Of Using Car Increases Due To Taxes

If you are a typical Minnesota motorist-taxpayer who drives 20,000 miles a year, you'll be paying the government about $105 more this year for the privilege of operating the family car.

Minnesota AAA reports that recent state and federal tax increases have brought the average tax bill to $296 per car in Minnesota. If a proposal now pending before the Minnesota Legislature passes, the government's bite out of the auto budget will jump another $15 to $25 per car, bringing the total tax bill as a private highway user to $311 for each car owned and operated, compared to $206 in 1982.

The proposal involves the elimination of the current state income tax deduction for fuel tax and registration fees under the guise of simplifying Minnesota state income tax returns by making them conform more closely to the federal form 1040.

Accordinging to AAA, the proposed change will not affect taxpayers who use their vehicles for business purposes because they can still deduct highway user taxes as part of their business operating expenses. The full impact of this proposal will hit only the private passenger car owner.

On the basis of the Minnesota department of revenue estimates, elimination of the deduction for highway user taxes from the returns of about 1.5 million Minnesotans who itemize their deductions will raise an additional $22 million in 1984 and $24 million and 1985. And although the impact of this proposal on the individual motorist is not huge by itself, it comes on the heels of state and federal motorist tax increases and the cummulative effect on the cost of operating the family car is another $105 or more a year to the government in addition to climbing gasoline prices.

For the family car, the annual tax bill for each car driven 20,000 miles at 20 miles per gallon includes: four cents federal gas tax, $40; 13 cents state gas tax, $130; and average registration fee, $36 for a 1982 total of $206.

With 1983 increases the additional cost will be five cents federal fuel tax, $50; four cents state fuel tax, $40 for a new 1983 total (so far) of $296. Proposed is elimination of deductibility of highway users fees for state income tax purposes, $15, making a 1983 cost total of $311.

Law Mandates Late Property Tax Refunds

Law change in 1982, which delays the mailing date for property tax refunds, has prompted many requests by senior citizens and renters to both the Governor's office and the revenue commissioner's office asking for special consideration in having their refunds mailed early.

Previous to 1983, all rent refunds and property tax refunds of senior citizens and disabled persons could be claimed on their Minnesota income tax return and mailed any time after January 1.

Law change makes it mandatory for the commissioner of revenue to mail the renter refunds in August of 1983 and refunds based on home ownership in October of 1983.

Statute change does not provide the Governor nor the commissioner of revenue the discretion, regardless of the circumstances, to issue the refund at an earlier date.

Please consider these constraints before writing to the Governor's office or Commissioner Arthur C. Roemer.

Average Auto Age Listed At Seven Years

The country's auto population now is the oldest it has been since the mid-1950's, reports the Automotive Information council (AIC).

AIC also points out that more than 6.8 million cars on American's roads are 15 years old or older.

The average age of all cars now is slightly over seven years, compared with six years in 1975 and 5.5 in 1970.

Hand in hand with the higher age of cars is the reduced level of scrapped vehicles. R.L. Polk & Co., an industry statistical firm, says that only 8.4 million cars and trucks were scrapped last year. This compares with more than nine million the previous year. In 1979, by comparison, more than 11 million vehicles were scrapped.

Of those vehicles not reregistered, 6.9 million were cars and 1.5 million were trucks.

Cars scrapped during the year totaled only 6.5 per cent of the car population, second lowest since 1953.

The high age of cars and the low scrappage rate indicates that many cars probably are being driven in poorly repaired and possibly unsafe condition, AIC says.

It urges motorists to have their cars inspected and reparied before an unnecessary accident happens.

Delayed repairs result in much greater cost later on, says AIC. It's like the old adage of "a stich in time saves nine."

AIC suggests that proper maintenance will save money in the long run and will prevent the inconvenience of a no-start situation, a breakdown on the highway or an accident caused by poor brakes, steering, suspension system, tires or other neglected components.

Service dealers report that cars are not being brought in with the frequency of past years, but there has been a recent upsurge, perhaps because of a growing awareness of the need for safety.

Back-Siphonage Is Danger To Water Supplies

As the spring planting season approaches, the state health department has again issued its annual warning about possible contamination of water supplies, due to improper mixing of herbicides and pesticides.

The department is asking farmers and water supply operators to be careful when they add water to herbicide or pesticide mixing tanks, so these chemicals will not be allowed to enter the water supply system. Both public and private systems can be affected.

"The problem we're concerned about is called back-siphonage," said Gary Englund, of the department's environmental health division. "It can happen anytime you allow the water supply pipe or hose to make contact with the liquid in the mixing tank. Under certain circumstances, such as a drop in the water pressure, the herbicide or pesticide can be drawn back into the water supply. The fluid can even flow uphill."

"The result can be a contaminated water supply," said Englund. "It happens to one or two municipal water systems and a lot of private wells in Minnesota every year." Englund recalled an incident several years ago in which a herbicide was back-siphoned from a farmer's tank truck into a city water system. Health authorities had to restrict use of the water until the entire system could be flushed out and refilled.

Contaminated private wells must be pumped out until the amount of pesticide or herbicide in the water falls below acceptable levels, according to Englund. Although the department does not test private wells for herbicide or pesticide contamination, that service is available for a fee from a number of private laboratories.

Englund had some suggestions for preventing back-siphonage. One solution is to attach the water pipe or hose to a mechanical support, so the end of the supply line is held above and away from the body of the mixing tank. An adequate "air gap" between the end of the supply line and the tank's filler opening is essential. An alternative solution is to fit each supply line with a "backflow prevention device" approved by the state health department.

More information about backflow prevention devices and private well testing is available from the Minnesota Department of Health at (612) 623-5227.

Ivory Coast Bakers' Team Visits State

Minnesota wheat research and promotion council will be hosting a four-man Ivory Coast bakers trade team in Minnesota on May 16 to 19.

According to Ed Ross, chairman of the Minnesota wheat council, Fisher, the team's travels will consist of stops in Duluth and Minneapolis to view different aspects of the wheat industry which are of interest to them.

Ross stated, "While the team is in Minnesota, it is important to stress the quality of the Hard Red spring wheat. The Ivory coast has not been a traditional U.S. market, but rather has been a purchaser of lower quality French wheat. Recent wheat market development activities in that country have been aimed at introducing bread products that require the higher quality wheates from the United States. Therefore, this opportunity lends itself to showing these bakers some of the superior products that can be produced with our wheat." Although the bakers do not do the actual importing for the Ivory coast, their influence over purchasers can lead to purchases of the higher quality spring wheats, Ross said.

While in Minnesota, the team will visit the Port of Duluth to view the transportation system, as well as visit a terminal elevator. The team will then travel to Minneapolis where they will visit the Minneapolis grain exchange along with a tour of a bakery and kitchens. They will also have the opportunity to visit a flour pre-mix company, which is of interest to many foreign bakers.

According to Ross, this team is one of seven scheduled teams to visit Minnesota this summer, sponsored by the Minnesota wheat council and its affiliate, U.S. wheat associates, Inc. The Ivory coast team will be accompanied by Rick Row, the regional director of U.S. wheat associates for the African region based in Casablanca, Morocco.

Minnesota's Crime Rate Up Slightly

Number of serious crimes in Minnesota showed a slight 1.8 per cent increase for the first three months of 1983 compared to 1982, according to public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Total number of offenses was up to 32,284 from 31,699 as listed on the statewide criminal justice information system report.

Bureau of criminal apprehension, which compiles the statistics, said rural areas showed an increase of 9.7 per cent compared to a 0.5 per cent increase in urban areas. Minneapolis had a 4.8 per cent increase. Figures are not available for St. Paul.

Violent crime (murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault) decreased 16.7 per cent and property crimes (burglary, larceny, vehicle thefts and arson) increased 2.9 per cent.

Fifteen murders were reported during the first three months of 1983. Only seven were the result of a gunshot — five by revolver or pistol and two by a shotgun. In 10 murders the victim was an acquaintance, either family member or friend of the murderer.

Of the 706 robbery offenses, only 223 were committed with a firearm, 369 were strongarm, 82 were committed with a knife or cutting instrument and 32 were with some other type of weapon.

There were 535 aggravated assault offenses reported. A gun was used in 136 assaults, 195 involved a knife or cutting instrument and some other type of weapon was used in 82 assault cases.

Of the 8,404 burglaries reported, 5,637 involved forcibly entry. No force was necessary in 2,071 unlawful entry cases. There were 696 attempted entries. Additional information shows that 5,555 burglaries occurred at residences with 1,838 committed at night, 1,436 committed during the day and 2,281 unknown. There were 2,849 non-residence burglaries (1,703 were committed during the night, 143 during the day and 1,003 were unknown).

Agencies submitted detailed information on 20,551 larceny offenses. Losses exceeded $200 in 5,199 arsons. Losses between $50 and $200 were reported in 5,116 arson cases and totaled less than $50 in 10,236 arson fires.

Film Report A Hoax

Illinois attorney general Ty Fahner advises that reports of an Illinois firm making an offensive film relating to the "love life" of Jesus are absolutely false. His office has recently received a number of letters from this area, apparently resulting from a well-intentioned ad which a concerned person ran in the Times and perhaps other area papers.

"I understand the outrage that this report causes," the attorney general said, "but, fortunately, the story of such a movie is totally false. I wish we could respond to each person individually, but it's impossible. This kind of hoax causes a tremendous waste of energy and resources for everyone involved."

The false report apparently originated with a story in an Illinois news magazine four years ago. The magazine later corrected the report but the false report persists.

Public Lands Sale

When an outpouring of public resentment resulted from an announcement that 15 to 18 million acres of national forest land would be selected for "intensive study" and possible disposal, the U.S. department of agriculture cut the figure to about six million acres. The public reaction has not abated.

USDA claims that the six million areas are "limited to isolated parcels, some lands in checkerboard ownership patterns, lands needed for community expansion, and some lands currently under special use permit which are used for a single purpose and are unlikely to be needed for public purposes in the future."

Not so, says the Wildlife Management institute in its "Outdoor News Bulletin." The institute points out the following:

"Consider the fact that among those six million acres being studied for sale are half of the Pawnee national forest in Colorado, a third of the Oconee national forest in Georgia, more than a quarter of the Shawnee national forest in Illinois, 27 per cent of the Manistee national forest in Michigan, all of the Holly Spring and Tombigbee national forests in Mississippi, all of the Kiowa national grassland in New Mexico, 90 per cent of the Uwharrie national forest in North Carolina, all of the Black Kettle and Rita Blanca national grasslands in Oklahoma, more than a third of the Wayne national forest in Ohio, all of the four national grasslands in Texas, and nearly half of the Thunder Basin national grassland in Wyoming."

The six million acres comprise 3.2 per cent of the national forest system. According to forest service figures, they provide more than a million 12-hour days of hunting and fishing each year and many times that in other recreational uses.

USDA has no authority to sell national forest lands, and could not do so without congressional authority. We should advise our U.S. Congressmen and senators that such authority should not be granted.

The Right To Speak

Following editorial is from the Sacramento (CA) Bee:

In response to the recent flurry of heckling directed against speakers on university campuses, most prominently the University of California at Berkeley, national organizations representing college presidents, professors and students have have issued a call urging "respect (for) the rights of others to listen to those who have been invited to speak on campus."

The plea, "Invited Speakers and Academic Freedom — a Call to Action," was endorsed by the American Council on Education, the American Association of University Professors, the U.S. Student Association and other groups. It comes after a series of events in which invited speakers, most particularly U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, were hissed and booed when they appeared in college lecture halls.

Because of the heckling, Kirkpatrick canceled a second scheduled appearance at Berkeley — she managed to finish her first after an extended interruption — as well as a scheduled commencement speech at Smith College later this spring. More recently, pro-Khomeini hecklers interrupted a speech at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kan., by Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, and at the University of Wisconsin, Eldridge Cleaver, the former Black Panther leader, who has since turned conservative.

The plea from the educational leaders is perfectly appropriate; the only regrettable thing is that it needs to be issued at all. For the issue here is not expression of disagreement, which can be made through picket signs or leaflets or in countless other ways without depriving the speaker of his or her opportunities to speak or the audience of its opportunity to hear the speaker. The issue is, rather, the attempt to silence free speech by harassment and intimidation.

Those attempts are always rationalized in the name of some higher moral purpose in a context where there can be no higher purpose. The irony in the cases of Kirkpatrick, Yamani and Cleaver is that if the protections of academic freedom and free speech were broken, it would be their enemies — the pro-Khomeini Iranians and the radical left-wingers — whose right would be the first to go.

Two Good Questions

"Whether you'd like your legislators to do more or less decision-making and spending of your money for you, please get in touch with them to let them know your preferences," suggests Rep. John Burger of Hennepin county. "I really believe the legislature is doing too much to you and for you already, and the future looks even worse.

"If I'm right," the legislator continues, "please tell all the legislators more clearly and frequently. Indications here in St. Paul seem to be that more coercive decision-making, more intrusion into your lives, and more taxing and spending are what you are about to get if more legislators are not given more public opinion to the contrary."

Undoubtedly Rep. Burger's assessment of the legislative situation is accurate. It has been the nature of governing bodies to intrude on the lives of citizens and, for whatever benevolent purpose professed, the trend is likely to continue.

"I believe that we should, when we legislate," Rep. Burger writes, "be sure that every law will produce better results than the free choices of individual citizens we represent would produce if we didn't intervene, and I believe that freely-made choices by individual citizens, reacting without coercion, will produce better results than our decisions by law will produce for them."

The metro are legislator notes that he has been receiving many calls and letters from people protesting, objecting, moving or threatening to move, closing or threatening to close their businesses because government is already intervening too often and too much in their private lives, private property and personal decision making. He suggests, and we agree, that there are two questions legislators should always be able to answer before they vote on any proposed legislation:

(1) "How is what you're forcing us to do better for us and for society than what we would do for ourselves if you let us make our own decisions?"

(2) "Why are your decisions to tax our money away from us and use it for what you want (or give it to somebody else for what they want) better than leaving it with us to use for what we want?"

Rep. Burger points out that every law the legislature passes forces or coerces somebody to do somthing that would not happen the way it is legislated if the lawmakers didn't adopt it. He notes that the legislators are "moving into the law-passing stages of some burdensome, intrusive and threatening state interventions into the lives of our citizens."

If each legislator would try to answer the two good questions posed by Burger before voting, the results of the legislation could well be a little more acceptable for all of us.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Two cavemen were huddled close to their fire while the rain and sleet poured down outside amidst peals of thunder. "We never used to have this crazy weather," one man grunted, "before they started fooling around with bows and arrows."

The first grader troubled his teacher by drawing everything in art class in heavy black crayon. Black houses, black barns, black animals, even a black sun appeared on his papers. She called a meeting of the boy's parents, the principal, a school counselor, the social worker and a psychiatrist to help assess the child's apparent attitude problem. After a series of tests and interviews, a classmate solved the dilemma when she asked, "How come Johnny only has a black crayon?"

We heard about a couple who believed it would help their marriage if they agreed never to go to bed while angry with each other. Last we heard they hadn't had any sleep for three weeks.

Task Force Appointed For Waste Sites

New advisory task force has been appointed to represent communities with areas selected or proposed by the Minnesota waste management board as "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, and to advise the board on the state's long-range policies for managing hazardous wastes.

"Processing Areas Task Force," appointed in April, includes representatives of eight areas outside the Twin Cities metro area selected by the board in April 1982 as "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, and 16 areas in the seven-county Twin Cities metro area proposed by the board as "preferred areas,"

The waste management board is required to issue an "Inventory of Preferred Areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, which will include areas deemed suitable for each of three major categories of hazardous waste facilities: chemical waste treatment plants, hazardous waste incinerators and "transfer-storage" facilities (temporary collection points) for hazardous wastes.

The state will not site or operate such facilities, but is designating "preferred areas" where it will encourage and assist private developers in establishing commercial hazardous waste processing facilities. The areas will not be used for the land-disposal of hazardous wastes; the process is separate from the search for a state hazardous waste disposal site.

Task force provides a special means by which residents from processing area communities can provide recommendations to the board on the state's long-range hazardous waste policies, and is not specifically provided for in state law. The 1980 waste management act provided for the establishment of "Local Project Review Committees" from each of the candidate hazardous waste disposal sites.

Processing areas task force — along with the local project review committies and other advisory groups — will advise the board in its development of a state hazardous waste management plan. That plan, to be issued to the 1984 legislature, will recommend the policies and measures for managing Minnesota's hazardous wastes through the year 2000.

In formulating state hazardous waste policies the plan could recommend new standards for the treatment of processing of hazardous waste by industry, changes in state hazardous waste regulations, new financial requirements on industry regarding hazardous waste management or other measures that affect the siting, construction or operation of new hazardous waste facilities.

Processing areas task force differs from the local project review committees for hazardous waste disposal sites in that the task force will not send a representative to serve on the waste management board — a power provided to the disposal-site committees under state law.

By this August, the waste management board will select areas in the Twin Cities metropolitan area which, along with the eight existing areas already selected outstate, will comprise the final "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities.

Members of the processing areas task force were each appointed by waste management board chairman Robert Dunn, on the recommendation of the local government affected by the board's "preferred area" designations.

Ray Ecklund, administrative assistant, city of Crookston (Bob Tuseth, alternate) was selected as a task force member to represent the outstate community. With a "preferred area" for hazardous waste processing facilities.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

A copy of your April 25 editorial has been sent to me. It responds to our "Statistical Look at the Economic Status of Women in Minnesota and the U.S."

You said "labor force" is not explained. True. It is a term used to describe the group of people working outside the home for pay. Unfortunately, a lot of people — mostly women — work inside the home and don't get paid or don't have their work count as "real work."

You are correct in drawing the inference that "somehow society is failing women by creating a situation which forces them into poverty situations." Generally, society believes that we ought to pay men wages to support a family but when women are left with families they generally cannot earn as much as men and child support is not enforced. Thus, they are left with children and not enough income.

As to female-headed households, virtually all women heads households at various times in their lives, young un-married women, never married women, women left with children, and widows. All of these are expected to be self-supporting. Part of the purpose of the statistical sheet was to educate people, to make them think realistically about what is going on, not live in a romantic world of either what used to be or ought to be. I left the interpretation of the statistics up to individual readers.

Finally, you state that I did not list the percentage "of all Minnesota households below the poverty line." Actually, I did. It's on page 4. And it's seven per cent. But when you look at female-headed households only the percentage grows astronomically. I'll leave it to you to decide why that is.

Sincerely,
-s- Arvonne S. Fraser

Zoo Observes 5th Birthday In Apple Valley

Bands, balloons, celebrities, camel rides and lots of monkeys will all help the Minnesota Zoo observe its fifth birthday celebration May 19-22.

The birthday party will kick off the new camel and llama rides in the children's zoo. The zoo will offer dromedary and Bactrian camel rides for a small fee through Labor day.

In reflecting on the zoo's first five years of growth, director Stephen Iserman said, "We as Minnesotans have accomplished a great deal with the public facility. We've received three top national education awards, been featured in many national publications, bred many endangered species and ranked as a top state attraction. Our fifth birthday marks another beginning of a great summer full of activities."

All four days of the birthday party there will be a flower display, a variety of musical entertainment, birthday buttons and, of course, the 1,700 zoo animal stars.

On Thursday the zoo will host a special senior citizens day.

Friday the zoo will stay open until 8 p.m. for community day. There will be puppets, a choir, twirlers, dancelines, square dancers and late whale, dolphin and bird shows.

Saturday, May 21 is Zoo Goer members day, highlighted by face painting, clowns and a special reception.

The actual birthday, Sunday, May 22, will feature the first annual "Zoo Doo" in the afternoon with local celebrities tossing animal chips for distance and accuracy. There also will be lots of birthday cake for everyone. The zoo is located just south of the Twin Cities in Apple Valley and is open 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Research Scale Scheduled For Installation

Minnesota department of transportation plans to install Minnesota's second weigh-in-motion scale on the Bemidji bypass this summer.

According to district engineer Bob Wolfe, the scale is a research tool that will yield valuable truck weight and classification data that is used in the development of roadway designs.

Wolfe emphasized that the scale is not intended for enforcement use and that the readings obtained from this type of scale would not be admissable as evidence in a civil or a legal action.

In fact, the site will not be manned and identification of individual trucks will be impossible. The scale will be a fully automatic operation which electronically stores the gathered information and then periodically transmits that information to a computer in St. Paul.

Information about truck weights and classification is currently gathered manually throughout the state. This method is costly and not always as accurate as engineers would like. There is also a hazard to workers and motorists when conventional weighing operations are conducted on the roadway.

New weigh-in-motion scale will automatically weigh and classify vehicles as they pass over the scales providing engineers with exact truck weight information at that point on Highway 2.

Data received at this location will reduce the need for manual weighing and classification operations and will help to interpret the truck weight and classification data gathered manually in other areas of the state.

The New G.I. Bill

It might appear odd that some of us in Congress are concerned about military enlistments when times appear so good. It's true that enlistments are up. And so are so-called "high-quality" enlistments. While only 49 per cent of Army recruits were high school graduates in 1980, that percentage is expected to climb to 90 per cent this year.

So what's the worry? The economy is improving. Bad economic times are boom times for military recruiters. With the high unemployment rates of this prolonged recession, the military has been an attractive option for many young people. For some, it represents the only option. On the other hand, a good economy is historically bad for military recruiters.

So instead of looking confidently about today's enlistment figures, we had better do something to assist tomorrow's. There could be particularly tough times if military pay is again allowed to lag behind the civilian sector. There could be real trouble ahead when in 1986 the number of military-aged youth in our population begins a steep decline.

Education programs are one of the major benefits provided for veterans. It has been widely recognized that veterans deserve assistance in readjusting to civilian life and over the past 40 years Congress has created several valuable veterans education programs. In fact, a survey taken by the Army in 1977 showed that the main reason soldiers joined the Army was because of education benefits.

Currently there are two basic programs in operation. The first, available to veterans who enlisted between Feb. 1, 1955 and Dec. 31, 1976 allows veterans to attend school full time, receiving $342 monthly up to 45 months. Vets receive these benefits up to 10 years after completing their tour of duty.

The second program is the Veterans Education Assistance Program (VEAP), which replaced the GI Bill. It covers all vets who enlisted after Dec. 31, 1976. VEAP allows servicemembers to contribute to an education account which is later matched two-for-one by the government.

Service-members who choose to enroll in the program must pay between $25-$100 a month for 12 months. Benefits of up to $225 per month are then paid out for each month the vet attends school for up to 36 months. Again, the veteran has 10 years to use the benefit.

But VEAP has not been very successful. The fact that only about 25 per cent of today's service-members participate in the program isn't surprising when you consider that in 1981 the minimum VEAP contribution was more than 11 per cent of entry-level pay. How can we expect a kid — who isn't making much money as it is — to commit to a long-range plan that takes such a good chunk of his salary?

What's more, only 60 per cent of those who sign up for VEAP actually stay in the program. Thus, less than 20 per cent of those who enter the service will be eligible for an education benefit when they leave. This compares to the over 60 per cent usage of the GI bill. Clearly, veterans are not being served by this program.

Along with eight of my Senate colleagues, I have cosponsored legislation which I believe achieves the three goals of helping recruitment, retainment, and providing an education for vets. But perhaps more importantly, it would return vets to a simple, basic program — one that vets can count on.

Our new GI bill would provide a basic benefit of $300 per month to service-members who complete at least two years of service beginning October 1, 1983, and are honorably discharged. Ex-GIs would receive one month of benefits for every month of service, up to 36 months. Members of the Reserves or National Guard would receive $150 per month.

The bill would allow service-members with 10 or more years of service to contribute $25 to $100 per month (up to $6,000 total) to an education fund. After a 24-month vesting period, the total would be matched two-for-one by the Department of Defense for use either by the servicemember or a spouse or child.

The third provision of the bill would allow the service secretaries to offer career service-members an education leave-of-absence of up to 12 months, in which they can use their GI bill benefits full time. Service-members granted an education leave would be required to extend their term of service by two months for each month of education leave. Service-members on education leave would continue to draw their basic pay, but would not be permitted to draw any allowances to which they otherwise could be entitled.

Both of these last two provisions address the critical retention issue by offering service-members and their families.

The Vietnam-era GI bill was perhaps one of the most successful government programs ever developed. It was easy to understand and gave educational opportunities to thousands of veterans who may not otherwise have been able to afford a college education. At the same time, it assisted armed forces recruiting and helped veterans readjust to civilian life. Today the U.S. is beginning to reap the benefits of that investment.

The new GI bill proposed will again offer education opportunities to veterans, and will start up a second round of investments in America. The GI bill has proven its worth, now it is time to reinstate it.

I would like to know what you think of the present condition of vets education benefits.

Rights Listed If SSI Grant Is Overpaid

You might have seen a news account about a severely disabled Minnesota woman who'd spent most of her life in a wheelchair, and who in 1981 had been notified by the social security administration (SSA) that her supplemental security income (SSI) was being stopped because she owed them $5259.20 for improper payments.

SSA said that accumulated interest on her prepaid burial plan had taken her assets $289 above the SSI eligibility limits. (SSI is a federal program paying minimum survival benefits to needy persons who are 65 or older, or who are blind or disabled. To be eligible, one may have only little or no cash income and minimal assets which could be converted to cash.)

Her Northwest Minnesota legal services attorney argued that under law, an SSI overpayment recovery action can be waived (cancelled) if the recipient has made an honest mistake and can't afford to return the money. SSA agreed to a waiver, and dropped the recovery (or recoupment) action.

If you are on SSI, you should be aware that overpayments — that is payments you might receive for which you are not eligible — can occur for many reasons. You might forget to report a change in living arrangements, a hospitalization, an addition to income or assets, or the death of a spouse; or SSA could make a mistake calculating your benefits. To avoid overpayments, report to SSA immediately any change in your status. (Even then, the next check sent before the amount is adjusted is likely to include an overpayment.)

If SSA has overpaid you, they must seek recoupment of the money either by asking you to agree to repay it in full or over a period of time, by taking it out of your future SSI checks, or by suing you for the amount plus court costs. But before beginning any recoupment actions, they must notify you of the amount they say you owe, the action they're taking to recover their money, the time your have to appeal their decision and your rights in the matter.

What are your rights? First of all, you have the right to appeal the recoupment determination itself if you don't think you received an overpayment, or if you disagree with the amount of overpayment. (This appeal is called a reconsideration.)

Second, you have the right to apply for a waiver of the recoupment action itself if in some way you don't think you were at fault. (Waivers are allowed when it would be unfair, against good judgment, or defeating the purpose of SSI to collect the money; or if the amount is too small to justify recoupment efforts.)

You should be encouraged to pursue both the waiver and the reconsideration. If one is denied, the other may be granted. But remember that timing is important and it might be wise to start them both at once. To keep your current SSI benefits coming while a reconsideration is being considered, you must file for it within 30 days of getting the recoupment notice. (If you don't file for a reconsideration within 60 days of the notice, you lose your right to file for it at all.)

If you request a waiver within 30 days of getting the notice, SSA will not start recoupment of the overpayment until there's been a hearing and a decision on your waiver request. (There is currently no time limit on applying for a waiver; however SSA may place a 60-day time limit on them, so you'd be wise to act promptly, or to contact an advocate for information on this.)

Unfortunately, handicapped or elderly SSI recipients are sometimes not adequately informed about their rights in recoupment actions. Make sure you don't ignore any notices. And whether you've gotten a notice or reported an overpayment yourself, make sure you act promptly to pursue any help you may need to understand your rights, and do so before making any repayment agreement.

If necessary, ask a friend, an advocate or an attorney for help or information. If a large amount is involved, if you question anything, if you want to make sure your papers are properly completed, and certainly, if there is any hint you may be charged with fraud (a criminal offense), you may want to consult an attorney.

Finally, if you have pursued all appeal channels, including a hearing, and you have lost, you have the right to ask SSA to begin the recoupment at a monthly amount that you can afford. It pays to know the law!

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Last week, the Minnesota Senate passed the Omnibus Tax Bill for the 1983-85 biennium. I voted in favor of this important piece of legislation, which will maintain property tax relief, provide funding for an emergency jobs program and help restore economic stability to state and local governments during the next two years.

The Senate bill, approved on a 35 to 32 vote, calls for initiation of the Iowa indexing plan. Under this plan, state income tax tables are adjusted to inflation whenever the state has a healthy budget reserve.

The bill also will reduce the state's corporate tax rate for small businesses, and it will simplify the tax system by conforming it more closely to current federal tax deductions. In addition, the bill provides funds to cover more than $500 million in spending obligations shifted from the current budget period to the next biennium.

In the area of income taxes, the bill establishes a new deduction for one wage-earner families who have been hit hardest by the state's income tax system. The bill retains the existing state deductions for charitable contributions and adoption expenses.

The tax bill also includes a number of significant economic development proposals, including a $126 million public-private jobs program. In the area of business taxes, the bill reduces corporate income tax rates, establishes deductions of up to $5,000 for interest and earnings of small business debentures, eliminates corporate capital gains deductions, and cuts in half the excise tax on Minnesota-produced liquor.

In terms of property tax, the bill will reduce state aid and credit payments to homeowners and farmers by $70 million, by changing the formulas for delivering those credits. Under the bill, the Homestead Credit aid is reduced from 58 to 50 per cent on the first $65,000 of market value, and the agricultural mill credit is changed from a mill rate system to a percentage of gross taxes, with this credit limited to $2,000 on agricultural and timberland and to $100 on seasonal, recreational residential property.

The tax bill also returns more control over local services to the local government level. Local government aids to counties will be cut in half in 1984 and eliminated entirely in 1985. Township aid also will be reduced, with a $6.8 million limit set for 1984.

Other features of the tax bill include:

—Reduction in the business property tax rate formula to 34 per cent in 1984 and 28 per cent thereafter for the first $50,000 of market value;

—Elimination of local levy limits for towns and cities with populations under 2,500;

—Elimination of the rent credit refund and creation of a separate rent deduction; —Establishment of a $250 million budget reserve account to protect against future budget deficits.

This tax bill is an important vehicle for providing real economic renewal to the state of Minnesota. It is not geared toward short-term, individual profits, but rather toward the future improvement of life for all Minnesotans.

This bill passed the Senate and now the Senate and the House tax bills will go into conference committee to produce an acceptable compromise.

I would like to hear from you about the tax bill or other issues of concern. Please write to me at my office, 306 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155; or telephone (612) 296-8660.

Prowlers Face Rival Jacks, Pirates

When Bemidji came from behind to beat Thief River Falls 8-6 earlier this month in a North Half Region 8AA high school baseball encounter on the fairgrounds diamond, it marked the Lumberjacks' 11th win in the last 13 meetings between the two long-time rivals.

In fact, Thief River Falls has not beaten Bemidji in a regular season baseball game since 1977.

Only wins by the Prowlers over the Lumberjacks in the past 13 games were in post-season play.

Thief River Falls beat Bemidji 3-1 to win a Region 8AA Sub-Region 4 title in 1977 when the Prowlers lost a 9-6 decision to St. Cloud Apollo in the Region 8AA semifinals at St. Cloud.

In 1980, Thief River Falls edged Bemidji 3-2 in North Half Region 8AA play at Detroit Lakes, then lost to Moorhead 5-1 in the semifinals.

Thief River Falls will try to break the Bemidji jinx Wednesday when the Prowlers visit Bemidji for a 3:30 p.m. game.

With post-season play approaching, Thief River Falls needs wins this week against Bemidji and Crookston to gain a more favorable tournament seed. The Prowlers, right now 1-3 against North Half Region 8AA competition, could finish at .500 with a victory at Bemidji Wednesday and a doubleheader sweep at Crookston Thursday. Rest of the Prowlers' schedule features Class A competition — Bagley, Ada and Middle River.

Moorhead and Bemidji appear headed for a 1-2 finish in the North Half Region 8AA standings at this point, with the rest of the positions a real scramble between Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Park Rapids and Crookston.

North Half Region 8AA tournament games will be played Tuesday and Thursday, May 31 and June 2, at Crookston.

Football Match-Up Remembered

Ted Anderson, assistant principal at the Detroit Lakes junior high school and a member of the Detroit Lakes public schools staff since the 1949-50 season, was honored recently at a retirement reception.

In reviewing a career that has him No. 1 on the Detroit Lakes schools seniority list, Anderson talked with the Detroit Lakes newspaper about his tenure as an assistant football coach under Marv Helling, who went on to be head football coach at the University of North Dakota and is now a member of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) staff. And one of Anderson's favorite subjects is about the unbeaten 1953 Detroit Lakes team and a key Laker confrontation that fall with Thief River Falls.

It was a clash of unbeatens in the fifth week of the season, and it was declared as the "Game of the Week," by the late Ted Peterson of the Minneapolis Tribune, who was on hand personally to see the game here in Thief River Falls.

A key turn of events early in the game led to an easy 44-6 Detroit Lakes victory. The Prowlers, after receiving the game-opening kickoff, marched the ball to the Detroit Lakes 11-yard line before losing a fumble. On the Lakers' first offensive play from scrimmage wingback Lynn Parkel raced 89 yards untouched for a touchdown. That play completely deflated the Prowlers, recalled Anderson, as the Lakers built a 12-0 first quarter lead, made it 24-0 at halftime and led 30-6 after three quarters. Parkel gained 192 yards on nine carries that day, scoring two touchdowns. Fullback Rich Borstad added 100 yards and two touchdowns on 14 carries.

There were no high school football playoffs at the time, and the Tribune rating by Peterson was regarded as naming the "official" state champion. The Lakers finished No. 2 in Minnesota that fall behind No. 1-ranked St. James.

Cooperative Programs Approved

Five new cooperative sponsorship programs in Region 8A for the 1983-84 and 1984-85 school years have been approved by the Minnesota State High School League.

Also, Park Rapids and Nevis will field cooperative Region 8AA programs in boys and girls track.

MSHSL cooperative sponsorship applications during 1981-82 and 1982-83 seasons extended for the 1983-84 and 1984-85 seasons in the area include Ada and Borup in football; Hallock and Kennedy in baseball, girls golf, boys golf, boys track; Hallock, Lancaster and Humboldt-St. Vincent in girls track; and Hallock, Humboldt-St. Vincent, Lancaster and Stephen in hockey.

IN A DAY dominated by home runs, Normandale batter Joe Lammers laid down a sacrifice bunt in front of Lake Region catcher Dan Pecka during the fifth inning of the NJCAA Region 13 baseball tournament championship game played in Thief River Falls Saturday. There were 13 home runs hit in the three games. Lake Region had seven of them, but the Royals still wound up losing to the Lions 14-7 in the finals after beating Madison Area Tech 14-10 in the first round.

Region 13 Baseball Slugfest Won By High-Scoring Normandale

Offense — lots of it — was featured Saturday in the 1983 National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region 13 baseball tournament played in Thief River Falls.

For those who anticipated low-scoring, close-to-the-vest defensive struggles among the four representatives from Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin, it must have been a disappointing show. But for those who revel in loose, almost non-stop run-producing developments, it was a bonanza.

Three games played in sometimes sub-freezing temperatures produced 59 runs and 52 base hits — 13 of them homers — as hitters feasted on a revolving door of frustrated pitchers.

When the shelling finally ended some 10 hours after it began, Normandale was the survivor. The Lions of Bloomington did it with sheer power that produced 26 runs on 22 base hits as they leveled host Northland 12-2 in the semifinals and doubled Lake Region 14-7 in the championship game. The North Dakota state champion Royals had their offense in high gear, too, with a 14-10 opening game victory over mistake-prone Wisconsin state champion Madison Area Tech.

Normandale coach Rob Fornasiere said he wasn't at all shocked by the Lions' offensive production. "We've been hitting the ball well all year, averaging 10 runs a game, so it didn't surprise me when we scored that many runs," he explained. And on a day filled with base hits and runs, he said he was very happy with his team's defense — something no other coach could say. The Lions booted just two balls in two games. Madison had seven errors in just one game and Northland had five, with Lake Region throwing away eight chances.

For their efforts, the 21-1 Lions will move onto NJCAA district tournament play, hosting the Iowa state champion in a two-out-of-three game series this weekend, with the winner advancing to the national tournament May 28-June 3 in Grand Junction, Colo.

It was the end of the year for Lake Region, 21-4, and Madison Area Tech, 9-8. Northland, 12-5, continues regular season play this week.

Lake Region 14
Madison Tech 10

A trip from Madison, Wis. to Thief River Falls, Minn. takes about 10 hours, according to Gary Breneman. But the return trip probably seemed a lot longer after he watched his Madison Area Tech ball club self-destruct in a 14-10 Region 13 semifinal game loss to Lake Region.

Madison pitchers surrendered 12 walks, and when they did throw the ball across the plate there were 10 Lake Region base hits and seven Madison errors to keep the bases full of Royals.

"That was definitely our worst game of the year," mused Breneman. "That's the most errors we've had all year. The mental part of our game was missing today. We feel fortunate that we got here, but we felt we could play a lot better than what we showed."

Lake Region pitching did its part to make it a 3½-hour marathon, too, by issuing nine walks and giving up eight base hits.

It was a see-saw contest from the very start. Madison had a 4-2 lead after three innings; Lake Region went ahead 5-4 in the fourth and looked in control finally with a 7-4 edge in the top of the sixth before surrendering three runs in the bottom of the inning for a 7-7 tie. But just when Madison was back in it, they were out of it when the Royals' Brent Viger belted a three-run home run in the seventh. Lake Region then clinched it by scoring four times in the eighth without the benefit of a base hit; five walks did it for them.

Dan Pecka also homered for Lake Region, with Greg Skaar and Greg Feiner clearing the fences for Madison. Skaar started it with a lead-off homer in the first.

Normandale 12
Northland 2

An hour behind schedule because of the long opener, the Normandale - Northland semifinal game nearly put the tournament back on time when the Lions broke open a 3-2 ball game with a nine-run fifth inning explosion that promptly put an end to things on the 10-run-rule, 12-2.

It was an embarrassing one-sided loss for the host Northmen. "I think it would be fair to say we got stroked," acknowledged Northland coach Chet Engelman. "They obviously have a nice ball club, and they obviously hit the ball well. We saw where they had a number of .400 hitters in their line-up, but you sometimes wonder if those things aren't padded a little bit. Well, we now know those figures are legitimate."

Normandale had a 3-0 lead through three innings, thanks to a two-base first inning outfield error and a two-run second inning home run by Joe Lammers, the No. 8 hitter in the Lions' batting order.

Northland battled back, though, with runs in the fourth and fifth to pull within 3-2. In SECOND DOUBLES combination of Bob Vanyo (right) and Thane Mundell watched as Vanyo's shot cleared the net against Moorhead's Pat Nelson and Erik Holten during the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational high school tennis tournament played Friday. The Thief River Falls players, like almost all the rest of the tournament participants, kept their warm-up suits on throughout play as cool temperatures and strong winds made for less-than-ideal playing conditions. Despite the weather conditions, Vanyo and Mundell emerged as winners at No. 2 doubles.

Green Wave Wins Title In TRF Tennis Invitational

In a very close finish, East Grand Forks was a winner Friday in the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational high school tennis tournament.

East Grand Forks emerged with 11 points, followed closely by Crookston with 10, Thief River Falls 9, Moorhead 2 and Northome 2.

"We were happy with our performance," reported Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, "We weren't that far away from East Side. They're just a little too tough in singles."

Thief River Falls' doubles teams fared extremely well as Chad Broadwell and Steve Bendickson teammed up to win at No. 1 while Bob Vanyo and Thane Mundell took the title at No. 2. All four are seniors. Vanyo and Mundell have been season-long partners. Broadwell, the Prowlers' No. 2 singles player, was paired with Bendickson in absence of Ken Kompelien, who missed the tournament because of another commitment.

In singles, East Grand Forks' Phil Burke and Jim Vonasek were winners at No. 1 and No. 3, respectively, while Crookston's Jeff Claassen took the trophy in a tight finish at No. 2.

Claassen, Thief River Falls' Dan Imgrund and East Grand Forks' Del Nelson all finished 2-1 with two points, swapping wins against each other. The trophy winner was decided on the fewest number of losses, with Classen losing 18 games, Imgrund 19 and Nelson 21.

Weather conditions weren't ideal — cool temperatures and strong winds.

Northome was represented by a single entry, No. 1 singles player Barry Furuseth, a former Waubun standout.

Thief River Falls will close out its 1983 regular season schedule Tuesday with a make-up match against Waubun here at 3:15 p.m. Post-season play begins next week.

Northmen Play Spartans, UMC

Northland community college baseball team was scheduled to resume its revamped Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) schedule today (Monday) with a Northwest Division doubleheader against Fergus Falls here in Thief River Falls.

Regular season ends Tuesday for the Northmen with a doubleheader at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC). Both the Fergus Falls and UMC twinbills have 12-noon starting times.

Those games' were scheduled to be played last week, but wet weather forced changes, postponing a Wednesday meeting with Fergus Falls, then putting Friday's Region 13 tournament here back to Saturday, the day the Northmen were to play UMC.

There were games played last week in the division, with Brainerd sweeping UMC Wednesday 6-1 and 4-3, followed by a Fergus Falls sweep over Brainerd Saturday 13-11 and 9-8.

That left the Northwest Division standings looking like this: Fergus Falls 8-2, Northland 5-3, Brainerd 5-7 and UMC 2-8.

Both Northland and Fergus Falls are shooting for a Northwest Division pennant. The Spartans can win it with a split today, while Northland needs a sweep of the visitors to be in position to win it Tuesday.

Northwest Division champion will host the 1983 MCCC state baseball tournament May 28.

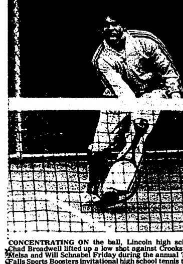
Rustad Beaten At NCAA-II Tennis Meet

Thief River Falls' Mitch Rustad, a junior on the University of North Dakota tennis team, was a first-round loser in both singles and doubles at the 1983 NCAA Division II national tennis tournament last week at San Marcos, Texas.

Invited to the Division II tournament after a runner-up finish at No. 1 singles in the recent North Central Conference tournament and a championship finish at No. 1 doubles with Dean Rudrud at the NCC finals, Rustad was beaten 6-3, 6-3 by Tim Downey of Southern Connecticut State while Rustad and Rudrud were beaten in doubles by Jens Capp and Wayne Ashmeade of Mercyhurt College of Pennsylvania 6-1, 6-3.



CONCENTRATING ON the ball, Lincoln high school senior Chad Broadwell lifted up a low shot against Crookston's Brent Melsa and Will Schnabel Friday during the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational high school tennis tournament played on the courts at Lincoln, Northland community college, Franklin middle school and East Side. Broadwell and Steve Bendickson teammed up to win the No. 1 doubles title.

Region 13 Title Won By Lions On Saturday

the fourth, Jeff Cwikla was hit by a pitch and was replaced on the bases by Bob Rockwood's fielder's choice ground ball. Rockwood stole second and scored on a two-out throwing error at shortstop on a ball hit by Todd Bergland. In the fifth, Scott McKeever, who had two of the three Northland hits, dropped a two-out single into right field, stole second and scored on Kevin Sanders' ground ball single up the middle.

"It looked like we were back in it," mentioned Engelman. "We thought we'd get our runs, but we also thought we'd get another at-bat."

They didn't. In the bottom of the fifth, Normandale bats, limited to a pair of hits through four innings, pounded out six hits as 10 batters went through the order with just one out. Shortstop Mike Burnette, the No. 3 hitter, started and ended the inning with home runs. His two-run shot suddenly ended it on the 10-run-rule.

"We may have been ten-runned," noted Engelman, "but at least we were here playing. Most of the other teams were home wathcing TV."

It took one-hour, 42-minutes to complete this one.

Normandale 14
Lake Region 7

In beating Madison Area Tech, Legion Region was losing to Normandale, according to Royals coach Gene Roebuck after his club dropped a 14-7 Region 13 championship game decisions to the Lions.

His reasoning centered around Lake Region pitching ace Brent Viger. Unbeaten in his two-year college career, Viger wasn't the starter in the first-game 14-10 win over Madison as Roebuck went to Al Enno in an effort to save his ace for the finals. But Viger had to come on in relief to cement the Madison win, pitching nearly six innings in two relief appearances that left him tired for the championship game. In fact, he wasn't used until both Enno and Brian Luehring were both found to be ineffective against the Lions' big bats.

"I knew we were in trouble when we had to go with Viger in the first game," explained Roebuck. "I knew our shot at Normandale (never mind the fact the Lions had yet to play the Northmen), hinged on getting by without Brent in the first game. When we had to use him, I knew we were going to give up some runs in the second game."

Still, Lake Region, thanks largely to home runs by Viger, a big sophomore from Edmore, N.D. who hit three consecutive home runs in the first, third and fifth innings, the Royals were able to match the Lions for half the game. In fact, they went ahead 7-6 when Viger and Luehring greeted Normandale relief pitcher Joe Wozniak with back-to-back home runs in the bottom of the fifth.

But three Lake Region errors led to four Normandale runs in the sixth as the Lions out-scored the Royals 8-0 over the final four innings, including Mike Burnette's third homer of the day. Enno had homered earlier for the Royals.

This was another 3½ hour job under the NJCAA nine-inning rules instead of the seven-inning games teams play throughout the regular season.

A CHECK for $2,900 was presented by Jerry Bugliosi of McDonald's Restaurant in Thief River Falls (left) to Kittie Cornell and John Michael Anderson to complete the McDonald's Cares Program, a coupon-selling effort that helped fund 1983 Lincoln high school golf and baseball teams, spring sports ticketed for budget-saving cuts by school officials without community financial support. Cornell is a McDonald's employee who headed the fund-raising effort, and Anderson as president of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club, helped coordinate the activity. Top three coupon-sellers receiving prizes from McDonald's included Michelle Olson, who was presented with a $50 savings bond; Todd Ortloff, who earned a $25 savings bond; and Bob Geatz, given a $10 McDonald's gift certificate. All three, incidently, participate in the spring sports involved in the fund-raising efforts — Olson is a member of the girls' golf team, Ortloff is on the baseball squad and Geatz is a member of the boys' golf team.

Spuds Handle Prowlers 11-5 In Moorhead Finals

An 11-1 winner over Minot, N.D. in the first round, Thief River Falls was an 11-5 loser to Moorhead in the championship game Saturday of the four-team Moorhead invitational high school baseball tournament.

The split for the day left the Prowlers with a 5-4 season record. They had a Thursday game with Roseau rained out. Their next start will be Wednesday at Bemidji, a 3:30 p.m. game moved back one day from its original Tuesday playing date.

Highlight of the day for the Prowlers was the first-game pitching performance of junior righthander Brian (Scott) Johnston in an 11-1 rout of Minot.

Johnston pitched four innings of two-hit shutout baseball and settled for a four-hit, five-inning victory. He walked one and struck out seven.

"That's the best game he ever pitched in his whole life," remarked Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "He was awesome. His curve ball was unreal. If he pitches like that we can beat anybody."

Thief River Falls took a 1-0 lead and turned it into a 4-0 spread in the third inning when a bases-loaded error on a potential double-play ball scored two runs and Johnston followed with an RBI single.

A Minot run in the top of the fifth made it 5-1, but Thief River Falls ended it on the ten-run rule in the bottom of the inning on four base hits and two walks. Ryan Bakke had a two-run single to start it, with Todd Ortloff ending it in similar fashion.

Moorhead 11
TRF 5

Thief River Falls, after taking a 5-4 lead in the top of the fifth inning against Moorhead, surrendered back-to-back solo homers to the Spuds in the bottom of the inning, then watched as the winners cemented an 11-5 championship game victory with a five-run sixth.

A bases-loaded two-run single by Rick Spong was the big blow in the Thief River Falls fifth inning outburst. The Prowlers had loaded the bases with just one out in the second but failed to score.

Steve Hartog and Rod Hill put Moorhead, a 3-1 first-round winner over Fergus Falls, back in front with their homers in the bottom of the fifth.

DNR hotline

1. I would like information on ruffed grouse hunting season. Their numbers are the lowest I have ever seen. I have a cabin three miles from Hayes Lake State Park, and I haven't seen a partridge in over a year. Should grouse season be curtailed to let the numbers build up?

Les Lockhart, Badger

Environmental factors such as adequate food, snow cover and weather conditions during the nesting and rearing seasons determine the size of the grouse population. Populations fluctuate on a nine to ten year cycle, and DNR drumming counts show we are presently in the low part of the cycle. Closing the hunting season would not increase grouse numbers. Low populations in the mid-1960s and again in the mid-1970s were followed by high populations three to five years later sithout having to curtail the hunging season. Ruffed grouse season will begin on September 17, 1983.

Jim Breyen, assistant Regional Wildlife Supervisor

2. Are fresh water clams good to eat?

Archaeological studies show that Native American groups ate clams, but two ecological problems should concern modern clamers. First, clams are filter feeders and water pollutants may accumulate in their bodies. Second, there is a decline in clam numbers, especially in areas of the Mississippi river where they have been over-harvested for the button industry, and where siltation has changed their habitat. In areas where clam populations have remained stable, clamers should consider the water quality before eating them.

Jim Fylpaa, Lake Bemidji State Park Naturalist

3. A beaver dam is locking the entrance to my favorite fishing lake. Is it legal to break it apart to get a boat through?

Beavers are protected animals. You must get permission from the DNR before amaging beaver houses or dams.

Butch Dyrland, Enforcement Supervisor

4. How does the DNR control major forest fires?

Major forest fires may require hundreds of firefighters, an extensive communications system, helicopters equipped with remote controlled water dropping buckets, bulldozers, and air tanker planes that can carry up to 2,000 gallons of fire retardant. Each fire is different. It is up to the Fire Boss to evaluate the fire and order the firefighters and equipment that is necessary to control the blaze.

Dale Peterson, Assistant Regional Forestry Supervisor

Add Divisions To Silhouette Matches Here

Two more officially sanctioned metallic silhouette competitions are being added to the IHMSA rimfire and centerfire pistol competition. Starting with matches on Sunday, June 19, "hunters pistol" and "smallbore rifle" will be offered as NRA approved matches.

Matches will be conducted at the Pennington county sportsmen's club range located three miles north of the intersection of Dewey avenue and Eighth street (highway 1) in Thief River Falls.

Hunters pistol match will be fired at metal silhouette targets including 10 chickens at 25 meters, 10 turkeys at 75 meters, 10 pigs at 50 meters and 10 sheep at 100 meters. The targets are one-half the size of the large rifle and large pistol targets and competition is open to any pistol firing a straight wall cartridge.

"We reserve the right to ban any cartridge that results in excessive target damage," states Irving Swanson, chief statistical officer for the matches, "and we have our fingers crossed right now regarding the new .357 Maximum cartridge, but will wait and see what happens."

The smallbore rifle matches should have the greatest appeal among plinkers. It is open to rifles using the .22 long rifle cartridge only but will have two classes, one for light rifles up to seven and one-half pounds and one for heavy rifles up to 10 and one-half pounds. Weights include all sights and other shooting aids or equipment on the gun.

Smallbore rifles will be fired at 10 metallic target chickens at 40 meters, 10 turkeys at 77 meters, 10 pigs at 60 meters and 10 sheep at 100 meters.

Swanson points out that there are very few restrictions in all of these events as to allowable grips, sights and other items. Scope sights are allowed in these NRA events and stock and grip modifications may be made if they do not constitute a support. All courses are fired from a standing position without any support being used and definitely provide a challenge to the shooter, Swanson said.

If there are enough entries to warrant division, separate categories will be set up for scoped rifles and those with open sights.

An un-sanctioned experimental pre-run will take place May 15 when targets will be set up during the regular IHMSA matches here. A $5 entry fee will be charged and cash prizes awared to the top shooters.

Pennington county silhouette matches are planned for June 19, July 24, August 21, September 18, October 16, November 20 and December 18. James Stolp Jr. is the executive officer, Hardy Hodge the chief range officer and Swanson the statistical officer. Tom Rogus will be jury chairman.

Information on the matches is available by sending a stamped, self-address envelope to Irving Swanson at 812 Duluth av. N., Thief River Falls.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Paula Aune:

GRANDMA

You really have a heart of gold.
When I am around you listen to me.
Your years add up but were never old
When I was troubled you always had the key.
All the time I could feel your love
Even though you didn't show how you feel.
You always believed in the Lord above.
No matter what the problem you could always deal.
The word came and it hit me hard.
I think about it now and I almost cry.
May the Lord keep a strong guard.
While you hold your place in the sky.
It was hard to see you go
But still I love you so.

Written by L. Aune from the grandchildren. 1t39c

Card of Thanks

We would like to express a special thank you for all the kindness and sympathy shown to us, in our time of sorrow, when Grandma disappeared.

Thank you to the Thief River Falls Police and Pennington county Sheriff's departments, the skin divers and city and county employees involved in the search in the river. Thank you to the Red Lake Falls Police and county Sheriff's department, to Mark Ruth and Marvin Hagl, who found Grandma, to Dr. Scheuneman for all his help and Green Funeral home. Also, to Rev. Berton Hushagen and Father Dave Super for their prayers and comforting words, to Dorothy Larson and Jane Mackenroth for their music and to the ladies for serving a nice lunch following the service. Also a special thanks to all who brought food to our home, sent flowers, cards and memorials.

God bless you all.

PUBLIC INFORMATION RELEASE

ALL BIDS MUST BE SUBMITTED ON HUD FORMS

BROKERS MUST SUBMIT THE FOLLOWING:

Each offer must be in a separate envelope. The envelope should be marked "SEALED BID" and contain the property's address and FHA case number.

FHA Insured Sale — 10 Day Bid Basis:

Form 9551, Broker's Tender and Offer to Purchase, 1 packet.

All Cash-As-Is Sale — 10 Day Bid Basis:

Form 9551, Broker's Tender and Offer to Purchase, 1 packet.

High Bidder has 3 working days from the time of HUD verbal notification to bring in Standard Retail Sales Contract, Form 9548, and the earnest money as follows:

FHA-Insured Sale: Insert under Item "H" of the purchase agreement, "HUD will not warrant a dry basement." The earnest money is one-half of the down payment on a standard FHA 203 sale, i.e., 3% of the first $25,000 and 5% of any amount above that.

All Cash As Is Sale: Insert under Item "H" of the purchase agreement "Item 6 above and Item 11 on the reverse do not apply. See attached addendum." Submit the lead base paint addendum.

Properties not sold at the bid opening are on a FIRST COME basis. Brokers are to submit complete sales packages on these transactions.

Broker fee is 5% of bid amount. Selling Broker on any properties located outside of Ramsey and Hennepin Counties will receive a $300 BONUS.

HUD will pay all taxes due and payable in the year of closing; in addition HUD will pay on FHA insured homes any non-homestead portion of taxes due the following year. There will be no additional promotions.

HUD Properties must be sold without regard to the prospective purchaser's race, color, sex, marital status, religion or national origin. All information herein is believed to be correct, however, it is subject to change and HUD assumes no responsibility for error or omission.

When an offer is accepted on an All Cash As Is Sale, the earnest money is then converted to an escrow account to be used toward compliance with lead base paint requirements, should any lead paint be suspected in/on the property. IF THE SALE DOES NOT CLOSE WITHIN 45 DAYS, HUD MAY RETAIN THE EARNEST MONEY ON ALL CASH AS IS SALES.

ALL CASH AS IS SALES are now being given 45 days in which to close rather than 30 days. Please change the sales contract addendum to reflect this change.

The energy conservation addendum has been eliminated from the HUD Standard Retail Sales Contract concerning the all cash sales.

PERSONAL CHECKS NOT ACCEPTED. SUBMIT CASHIER'S CHECK OR MONEY ORDER MADE OUT TO HUD.

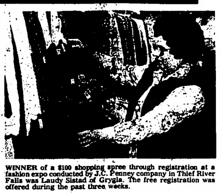
The first paper in America to carry advertisments was the Boston Newsletter in 1704.

Early colonial newspaper ads lacked today's subtle lures and aggressive marketing. They simply announced that a ship had arrived from England with cloth, nails and other necessities. Basically, these ads said: "If you want this, here it is."



WINNER of a $100 shopping spree through registration at a fashion expo conducted by J.C. Penney company in Thief River Falls was Laudy Sistad of Grygla. The free registration was offered during the past three weeks.

It was reported to the Pennington county sheriff's office this week that the two largest gravestones in the Norden church cemetery had been tipped. One wonders what type of criminal mind could ever find satisfaction in committing such an act.

Spring Crop Report Notes Cold Weather

According to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service, low soil temperatures slowed germination of seed and restricted growth of hay and pasture. Hayfield condition is rated six per cent poor, 45 per cent fair, 44 per cent good, and five per cent excellent. Pasture condition is rated 13 per cent poor, 42 per cent fair, 39 per cent good and six per cent excellent.

Dry topsoil conditions intensified in most of the west central district and parts of the northwest, north central and central districts. In these drier areas, spring fieldwork has moved along rapidly and is nearing completion.

By contrast, almost no fieldwork has been done in large areas of the southwest and south central districts, which continued to have excessive topsoil moisture.

Persistent cool, cloudy weather had prevented the melting of some snowbanks until this week; now heavy rains during the week have added to the delays. Farmers in southern counties had to work around wet spots if they could work at all, and corn now being planted is going into ground that is quite a bit cooler than usual for this time of year. A statewide average of four days during the week were suitable for fieldwork.

By district, the fieldwork situation varied greatly; an average of six days were suitable for fieldwork in the northwest and west central, but only one day in the southwest and two days in the south central; other districts averaged three to five days suitable. The state's topsoil moisture as of May 6 is rated two per cent very short, 16 per cent short, 42 per cent adequate and 40 per cent surplus.

With dry, cool weather in the major growing areas, seeding of small grains has made good progress, but emergence has been slow. Spring wheat had been 66 per cent seeded as of May 8, which compares with 61 per cent a year ago and the five-year average of 63 per cent. An estimated 12 per cent of spring wheat has emerged, compared with 19 per cent last year and 30 per cent for the five-year average.

Oats are 64 per cent seeded, versus 73 per cent last year and 66 per cent for the five-year average. Oats are 10 per cent emerged, compared with 20 per cent last year and 32 per cent for the five-year average.

Barley is 61 per cent planted and eight per cent emerged; last year at this time the figures were 45 per cent planted and nine per cent emerged; the five-year average is 51 per cent planted and 23 per cent emerged. Flax is off to a slow start with only four per cent seeded to date verus 17 per cent for the five-year average.

Planting of row crops had just begun when rains halted progress late in the week. Field corn is 14 per cent planted, behind last year and the five-year average at 34 per cent and 33 per cent respectively. Soybeans are one per cent planted, compared with four per cent last year and five per cent for the five-year average. Sunflowers are two per cent planted compared with five per cent last year and 12 per cent for the five-year average. Sugarbeets are 72 per cent planted, two per points ahead of the five-year average. Potatoes are 14 per cent planted compared with 20 per cent for the five-year average.

ANTIQUE AUTOS will have their own division of competition when the fourth annual North Country Auto Show Time takes place Saturday and Sunday at the Pennington county fairgrounds. Both the sports arena and curling club building will be used to house the approximately 100 show cars and street rods expected to be entered in the show competition. Shown above is Les Kulseth of Thief River Falls with the 1922 Model T Ford which he has restored and will enter in the show. With the exception of the car's carburetor, it is mechanically correct, Kulseth said, having been assembled from parts gleaned from a number of Model T's of that vintage. With its present engine, it is capable of making long trips, "but you better plan on plenty of time to get there," he said. While the car is capable of 50 miles per hour, a 30 mph cruising speed is a more reasonable expectation.

Nine-year veteran board member Larry McDowell — the top vote-getter in his three previous elections — was defeated in his bid for reelection in Thief River Falls with the lowest voter turn-out here in a number of years.

Paul Bortnem, a first time candidate, received 691 votes to be elected to the District 564 board, finishing ahead of incumbents Myrle Carlson with 639 and Greg Pribula with 633. McDowell trailed with 549. Bortnem, Carlson and Pribula were elected for three-year terms. Bortnem is chaplain at Northwestern hospital.

At Grygla board member Ell-Kay Foss, the only incumbent on the ballot among four candidates for two positions, also turned up with the smallest vote total. Lois Olson received 136 votes to top all candidates, followed by Leland Larson with 71. They were declared elected. Mark Carlson topped all candidates with 153 votes, winning heavily in Newfolden, trailing Olson by three in Viking and edging him by one in Holt. Mrs. Amundson had 90 votes in Newfolden to only 70 for Olson but received only eight votes each from Viking and Holt while Olson had 26 and 14.

Bond Issue Approved By City Council

Thief River Falls city council accepted bids on sale of $800,000 in bonds, delayed a decision on authorizing a liquor license for the Family Bowl, and authorized spending of funds for installation of a stop light at First Street and Highway 59, construction of a beach house at Bill LaFave Park, and reroofing of three municipal buildings.

Two separate bond issues were actually authorized, with $600,000 in general obligation bonds issued to fund improvements to the city's water treatment plant, and a separate issue of improvement bonds in the amount of $100,000 to cover the downtown parking assessment district project; and $100,000 to cover the 1982 street improvement project.

Bid was awarded to the firm of Allison Williams, which offered a net interest rate of 8.225 per cent, for a total interest cost of $444,971.25. Net purchase price for the bonds was $787,200. Other bidders were First National of Minneapolis with a net interest rate of 8.382 per cent; Dain Bosworth with a net interest rate of 8.4339 per cent. Dogs Cause Losses In Sheep Flock

FREE ROAMING DOGS created a substantial and depressing loss for Jerry Konickson when they tore into his flock of sheep early last Friday morning. The Konickson farm is located about four miles southeast of St. Hilaire along county road 17. Konickson awakened at 6 a.m. to the sounds of frightened sheep in his barnyard. He hurried out to see what was the matter and discovered two large dogs attacking his sheep right in the yard, having pursued them from the pasture half a mile from the barn. He returned to the house for a rifle and subsequently killed one of the dogs and wounded the other.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"After you've been around sheep for awhile, you get a pretty good idea of what is going on just by the sounds they make," stated Jerry Konickson of rural St. Hilaire. "Right now there are a few ewes looking for their lambs."

The ewes won't find those lambs. They are among the victims of an attack Friday morning by two large dogs which killed 20 sheep on the farm and left another 25 injured, some so severly they will die or have to be destroyed.

Konickson was standing in the barnyard of his farm when we visited with him. Orphaned lambs — about 20 of them — were penned in one area of the barn. Some were feeding tentatively on commercial pellets. Others, only a few days old, should have been with their mothers and may need special individual bottle feeding. The mothers are dead.

In another area of the barn were injured ewes. One was dragging a bloody rear leg, the hoof turned at an odd angle as the result of an obvious fracture. Others had gaping wounds where chunks had been torn out of their rumps, necks or shoulders. Others wandered aimlessly about the barn, some trying to eat and others merely hobbling stiffly.

On a hayrack in the barnyard was a pile of sheep carcasses, mostly ewes but also several lambs. Another ewe lay nearby, as well as a light colored female dog, presumably of some German Shepherd or Siberian Husky ancestry. A rifle leaned against the wall of the barn and Konickson was dejected and angry.

"I just shot three more ewes a little while before you came," he said sadly. "I knew they would never make it and I couldn't stand seeing them suffer any more. I probably should put some others out of their misery, too, but they seem to be trying to eat and maybe they'll make it. I'll just have to keep an eye on 'em and see what happens."

Konickson, who has been among the St. Hilaire area farmers with three successive cropless years due to weather, had been counting on his sheep flock to provide the family with some income. He had borrowed the money to buy them from the Farmers Home administration and they were still under loan. The flock included a total of about 140 ewes, five rams and 135 lambs. He didn't think his fire insurance policy covers this type of loss.

"I could tell there was a lot of commotion out there," Konickson said about waking up Friday morning and hearing the disturbance in his

Poppy Days Are Scheduled By Legion Auxiliary

Red crepe paper poppies, a reminder of the sacrifices made by veterans and their families in the last four wars will be offered to the public on Wednesday and Thursday of next week by the American Legion auxiliary, according to an announcement made today by Constance Driscoll, president of unit 117, and Lyla Quam, chairman of the poppy program for the year.

This annual event, undertaken by the members of the Ecklund-Holmstrom unit, is part of a nation-wide program in memory of the soldiers who gave their lives in the cause of freedom.

Since the Poppy was adopted as the memorial flower in 1920, poppy programs have been conducted annually. As a part of physical and psychological self-help program, by veterans for veterans, the flowers are hand made, petal by petal, by disabled and hospitalized veterans in shops run by auxiliary volunteers. The poppies are then sold by the shop to auxiliaries who offer them to the public, not for a price, but for voluntary contributions.

Funds collected on Poppy Days are used by the local unit to aid needy veterans and families in this community as well as those hospitalized throughout the state.

Mrs. Driscoll stated, "Local auxiliary members will be on the streets during Poppy days to not only splicit contributions, but to ask the public to wear the poppy with pride in rememberance of the civilian who took an oath to serve his country and in honor of those who gave their lives that America survived as a free nation." She said that "The measure of a man may be his willingness to serve his country; but the measure of a country is its willingness to honor those who served to protect a free world."

Flea Market Season Opens Here Saturday

Thief River Falls flea market will be held on Saturday at the Floyd B. Olson park in downtown Thief River Falls. The one-day flea market is traditionally held on the third Saturday of each month, May through September.

This year the Agassiz Car and Engine club and Prairie Schooners Street Rod club will be holding their North Country Auto Showtime at the sports arena this weekend. A two-day auto swap meet will be held on the fairgrounds adjacent to the arena. It is expected that many of the regular flea market dealers will set up downtown for the market on Saturday and then move to the fairgounds for the Sunday swap meet.

The flea market will operate as it has in the past with an emphasis on informality. The seller fee is $5 for a 20-foot space and no reservations are required or accepted. Sellers are to bring their own tables if they wish to sell from tables. There is no charge for anyone bringing six items or less to the market.

Dogs Cause Big Loss In Sheep Flock

barnyard. When he went outside there were sheep outside the fence. They had knocked down fence and gates as they crashed into them attempting to flee the dogs. Sheep were piled into a corner of fence behind the barn, several lambs suffocated in the mass of panic-stricken animals. The dogs were still in the pasture.

Konickson went back in the house for his rifle and when he returned the dogs were still there. Lamenting his poor shooting, he none-the-less killed one of the dogs and wounded the other which headed north after being hit.

Further investigation indicated that the dogs had apparently been at their grisly play for some time. Dead sheep were scattered throughout the large pasture as well as injured sheep that had to be destroyed. One sheep was even found across the river about three-quarters of a mile from the farm yard, indicative of the panic the dogs must have caused.

Identity of the owners of the dogs has been established, Konickson told the Times today. They came from several miles away — one from within the city of St. Hilaire and the other near St. Hilaire. He said revealing the names of the owners would serve no useful purpose. But he hopes that he may be able to recover his losses to some extent through insurance which the dog owners may carry. An insurance adjuster is expected to inspect the flock today.

Konickson didn't have an accurate estimate for his loss — although the ewes were young and should have been capable of producing lambs for several more years — but a $50 average value would put the total loss somewhere around $2,000 on animal value alone. It's another worry and expense that a struggling farmer doesn't need.

And it isn't the first time Konickson has been victimized by dogs. Last year he lost 40 lambs when a neighbor's dog went on a killing spree. Effort is being made by the neighbor to repay that loss, but he has also faced three years without a crop and money is hard to get.

Konickson isn't looking for sympathy. He would rather have his sheep than make a settlement for the losses. But he believes owners of dogs which are not confined should be aware of the problems that they can cause and the damage they can do, as well as the wide area they can cover.

For the protection of their pets as well as the problem of their own liability, dog owners should be certain their dogs do not roam away from home. Strange dogs around the Konickson flock likely won't be given an opportunity to prove their intentions. Other livestock producers will likely take the same precautions.

Assistance For Rental Unit Repair Offered

Established by Congress in October of 1978, the moderate rehabilitation program provides for improvements to existing rental housing units and for housing assistance payments on behalf of lower-income families leasing these units.

The program will be administered by Northwest Minnesota multi-county housing and redevelopment authority in Mentor and will be available to owners of rental units in need of repair in Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Polk, Pennington and Red Lake counties, excluding those cities with their own housing authority.

In order for a housing unit to qualify for the program, the required improvements must cost at least $1,000 per unit and be economically feasible within the "fair market rents" allowed for the program.

Although the property owner is responsible for contracting for all required improvements and for obtaining financing from either public or private sources, Multi-County will assist the owner in these functions. Once construction work has been completed, the housing authority will accept the unit(s) for the program, and execute a 15-year contract with the owner to provide rental assistance. Families occupy the units as assisted tenants by signing a lease with the owner and the multi-county office.

By providing increased rental income and financial security, the program encourages owner investment in substandard or aging housing that might otherwise continue to deteriorate, and makes this housing available to lower-income families.

Flash Flood Workshop Set In Rochester

Rochester, where a flash flood caused five deaths and more than $50 million in property damage in 1978, will be the site of flash flood and flood warning workshop, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 24 to 25, according to the Minnesota department of public safety, one of the workshop sponsors.

Purpose of the workshop will be to raise public awareness of the increasing dangers from flash floods, particularly in high-risk areas of Minnesota. Sessions will also address the topic of how to avoid the dangers of flooding, before, during and after the event.

Subjects discussed at the workshop will include: flood warning and response planning; a case study of Rochester, 1978-83; public awareness; flood proofing considerations; zoning and land use management; and a case study of Whitewater state park.

Workshop participants will have a tour of the Whitewater area on the afternoon of the second day. A new automated flood warning system will be dedicated in the park area that day.

In conjunction with the workshops the department of public safety is distributing posters with several suggestions on how to deal with flash flooding. The posters promote flash flood awareness week, May 22 to 28.

Flash floods can occur in any wheater. Heavy rain, ice dam breakup and dam failure are all causes. Those affected should be prepared to evacuate in case of flash flood. A "flash flood watch" means heavy rains may soon cause flooding. A "warning" meaning to being immediately to evacuate the area. Flash floods can sweep away people, cars, trees, bridges and buildings.

Sponsors of the Rochester workshop include the Minnesota department of public safety, emergency services division, department of natural resources, waters division, the Minneapolis office of the national weather service, association of county planning and zoning administrators, St. Paul district of the crops of engineers and the federal emergency management agency.

Senate Gets Second Chance On Budgeting

Senator Rudy Boschwitz says that the senate's decision to return the federal budget back to the committee for more work "gives the senate a second chance at producing a credible budget."

Boschwitz said he was disappointed with the process by which the senate has handled the federal budget so far this year.

A member of the senate budget committee, he says the reason the senate has been unable to reach a consensus is that the leadership has tried to reach for political solutions to the more substantive problem of balancing the budget.

"It seems that this year it has been more important to try to find 51 votes than it has been to strive for a balanced budget," Boschwitz said. "By simply looking for 51 votes they've forgotten to come up with a logical plan that people could understand.

"With all due respect, it is the fault of the senate leadership," Boschwitz said. "We are the leaders of the senate. We should have tried to give the kind of propulsion to a budget that would lead toward a balance."

Boschwitz has endorsed a formula budget over looking at programs individually.

He said he would endorse a plan that looked like this: Defense — five per cent real growth; appropriated programs — three per cent real growth; entitlements (Needs-tested) — six per cent; (non-needs tested) — three per cent.

"It is important to make a distinction between needs-related and non-needs related programs," Boschwitz said. "Needs programs are those safety net programs that help those who perhaps need it most."

Boschwitz predicted that by following a formula budget for a period of years, "there would be no question that we could balance the budget."

"More importantly, what that would do would be to build confidence among the people that what we are doing is fair, equitable, and above all, responsible," he said.

IFO President Critical Of HECB Studies

Agencies that rely on predictions of the higher education coordinating board (HECB) often are misled and make erroneous judgments, according to Dr. David L. Simpson, president of the inter faculty organization (IFO), the bargaining agent that represents the faculty in the seven four-year state university system and is affiliated with the Minnesota education association (MEA).

Simpson is on leave from his position as a professor of mathematics at Southwest state university, Marshall. Simpson, in fact, is calling for an investigation by the legislature — one of the agencies he says often are misled — of the HECB's techniques in forming projections of enrollments in the state university system (SUS).

"We believe that if legislators take a detailed look at HECB's current report, which predicts SUS enrollment by the year 2000, and compare that report to the one issued just four years ago, they'll share the skepticism and alarm expressed by competent researchers throughout the higher education community who are concerned about HECB's integrity," Simpson asserts.

Simpson's reference is to HECB's enrollment projections for the SUS, which it released April 28. He charges that wide discrepancies exist between figures contained in the April report and those in reports issued as recently as 1979 and 1981. "Accurate enrollment projections are essential to long-range planning, not only in the SUS but in all other post-secondary education institutions."

Simpson continues: "But long-range planning simply is impossible with data HECB makes available.

The SUS currently enrolls some 37,000 full-time-equivalent students (actually, the 37,000 FTEs translates into some 40,000 individual students — some of whom are part time) — but the system receives full funding for only 31,552 FTEs. The 31,552 figure was SUS enrollment in 1977, the year the legislature froze funding.

"This means," Simpson explains, "that enrollment decline becomes significant only if it drops below 31,552."

HECB now predicts that SUS enrollment will reach its low point — approximately 29,000 — in the 1994-95 academic year; than increase to more than 33,000 by the year 2000. The 1994-95 figure represents a decline of only 7.7 per cent from the 1977 base year.

"It is important," Simpson declares, "to compare the current projections to those issued in 1979, when the HECB predicted that enrollment in the SUS would drop 27.7 per cent below that of 1977, bottoming at 22,800 in 1994-95. That's a more than mild discrepancy; that's a 37 per cent discrepancy."

In 1981 HECB modified its projection, Simpson points out, predicting that the system would lose 17.7 per cent of its students (compared with the 1977 base) and bottom at 26,000.

This type of projection, Simpson contends, is misleading and can lead to erroneous judgments.

This sky-is-falling tactic, Simpson says, created a disservice and prompted cries of "close something" by a number of state officials. "By 1981, HECB seemed to be indicating that only part of the sky would fall. Now it appears that the sky isn't going to fall at all.

"I think it's high time," Simpson concludes, "that all of us begin to take a serious look at the basis upon which fundamental decisions in higher education are being made.

"There's no question that the legislature became, continues to be and, if procedures don't change, will continue to be increasingly dependent on the HECB when making policy decisions that affect closing of institutions, elimination or reduction of program, transfer and elimination of faculty.

"It's unfortunate that after a careful examination of HECB policy and procedure we must conclude that many of our policies are based on foundations that sit on quicksand."

THIS QUIET SCENE along a coulee behind the Jerry Konickson barn is a far cry from the experience early Friday morning when two dogs killed or injured approximately 45 ewes and lambs. Konickson said he found dead and crippled sheep scattered throughout his large pasture, lambs trying to rouse their dead mothers, ewes bleating and searching for their missing lambs. Three days later the appearance of the Konickson's own dog near the pasture spooked the sheep into a stampede of terror, he said, although the animals normally never seemed to notice the dog at all. Konickson shot one of the dogs and wounded the other, and is trying to find out the identity of the owner of either dog. "Maybe they have some insurance that could help cover the loss," he said. "I sure don't."

BSU Dance Workshop Set June 10 to 12

Specialists and celebrities in the fields of jazz, ballroom, ballet and tap dancing are featured instructors at the second annual dance workshop June 10-12 sponsored by Bemidji state university and Bemidji Dance, Inc.

Workshop is designed for participants ages nine through adult, preferably with a knowledge of dance basics. For those not interested in actually trying out the steps but who enjoy watching polished dance routines, an observer classification is available.

Bobby Burgess, a regular member of the Lawrence Welk show cast, will lead classes in tap, musical, comedy and ballroom dancing. Burgess is an accredited teacher of dance theory as applied to television and film at the University of Southern California.

Burgess will also hold a special ballroom dance session open to the general public June 11 at 7 p.m. Cost is $5 for those registered in the entire weekend of classes, $7 for others.

Ballet and pointe classes are under the instruction of Roni Mahler, ballet mistress for the Cleveland ballet. Mahler has performed as principal dancer for the national ballet of Washington, D.C. and guest artist at the Sidney festival ballet in Sidney, Australia.

Gus Giordano is the creator of the Giordano technique, an explosive and powerful dance method, and he will teach all levels of jazz style and technique. Staff choreographer for WTTW-TV, ABC-TV and NBC-TV in Chicago, Giordano also served as a guest of the USSR cultural exchange program in 1969.

Cost for the entire three-day workshop is $45 for juniors (ages 9-12) and $65 for seniors (ages 13 and up). Observer fee for juniors is an additional $10. Classes take place in Memorial hall on the campus of Bemidji state university.

Housing in the BSU dormatories and meals on campus are also available at reasonable rates. The entire weekend of courses may be taken for one graduate or undergraduate credit through BSU at an additional cost of $46.

Registration deadline for the second annual dance workshop is June 1 and full payment must accompany the registration form.

For registration materials, or more information, contact Marion Christianson, Physical Education Complex, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2769).

Asks For Early Announcement On Crop Plans

In a letter to secretary of agriculture John Block, Senator Rudy Boschwitz has called for an early announcement of the 1984 crop programs. He asked that the 1984 wheat program be announced by June 15, 1983, and the 1984 feedgrain and upland cotton programs be announced by August 15.

"Farmers will soon be making planting and purchasing decisions for the 1984 crop year," Boschwitz said. "The decisions will be based in part on commodity programs announced by the department of agriculture.

"For that reason, we need an early announcement by USDA to assure farmers that there will be enough time to act during the fall season," he added. "Also, an early announcement will help restore the economic stability and viability of agri-business adversely affected by the 1983 payment-in-kind program.

"We all hope that the farm economy recovers quickly, but the farmers' input industries must also survive to properly serve our agricultural production effort," he said. "In addition, the economic health of these support industries must be maintained to protect both jobs and the economic viability of rural communities."

"An early announcement of the 1984 crop programs will enable farmers to plan adequately and help preserve the farmers' vital input industries through these challenging times," Sen. Boschwitz said.

TRF, Grygla Incumbents Lose Election

Goodridge but couldn't defeat the incumbents who had filed for reelection. Larry Vigen and Paul Troska with 66 and 64 votes, respectively, were reelected to the District 561 board with 113 votes cast in the election. Lawrence Kiesow received 54 write-in votes and Glennis Iverson had 26 while 10 other write-ins received from one to three votes each.

Strandquist and Oklee incumbents had no trouble at all in their unopposed reelection bids. At Strandquist Gordon Borsvold, nominated by petition, received all of the 33 votes cast in the election while Janice Borowicz received 30 votes. At Oklee James Dulka received all 51 of the votes cast and Lloyd Mercil had 49. There were no write-in votes.

In winning top spot in the School District 564 election, Paul Bortnem had the most votes at Franklin with 313 and Lincoln with 239, tied for the top spot with McDowell at St. Hilaire with 54 and was edged by three votes by Pribula at the AVTI. The four polling places were used for various geographical areas of the district.

Except for St. Hilaire, McDowell had the low vote total in each of the school district polling places. He joins Ken Murphy and Ken Wiebolt among the ranks of those board members who topped the ballot in their previous election only to taste defeat three years later.

Murphy, now a city councilman, led candidates with 1,223 votes in 1978 only to lose in 1981. Wiebolt had 606 votes in 1979 to lead all candidates but was defeated in 1982. McDowell collected 990 of 1,465 votes cast in his first election in 1974 to lead all candidates, then topped the list in 1977 with 547 of 674 votes cast. In 1980 with 11 candidates on the ballot he again led the pack with 675 votes. There were 1,699 votes cast that year.

Again this year the turnout of 932 voters is poor for a district the size of School District 564. Record vote for the district is 2,170 in 1971, followed by 2,150 in 1978 when a special levy of 8.25 mills was on the ballot. There were 1,002 votes cast last year, 1,153 in 1981 when six candidates were on the ballot, 1,699 in 1980 when 11 candidates filed for election and 943 in 1979 with six candidates.

Last year, when closing of the St. Hilaire school was an issue, more than a fourth of the ballots cast were voted in St. Hilaire. Two St. Hilaire area residents, Harlan Hallstrom and Archie Cameron, were elected to the board. This year only 71 of the 932 ballots cast were voted in St. Hilaire, or 7.6 per cent of the vote. There were 11 absentee ballots this year (included in the Lincoln vote total) and one write-in vote each was received by Ken Murphy, Tom Williams and Mrs. Gary Moore.

It Pays To Shop At Home

BALLOONS containing messages from residents of Oakland Park nursing home were taken outside and released to the whims of the wind last week, as one of numerous activities held during national nursing home week. In the sheltered area at the front of the building the balloons rose slowly, but were quickly carried out of sight by the brisk wind which whistled over the roof. Rain which began to fall just before the scheduled release, was nearly forgotten in the excitement, and dampened everything but their enthusiasm.

CARD PLAYING and visiting are an important part of the senior meals and activities program which brings large groups of senior citizens to the coffee shop at Northwestern Hospital five days a week. Noting that May is older Americans month, Grace Ortloff, site manager and coordinator for the senior meals and activities program, noted that any person over age 60 was eligible for the program which aims to provide proper nutrition as well as a chance to mix and mingle. Balanced meals are prepared by the hospital staff and subsidized by the government, so that participants need only contribute what they feel they can afford.

that the owner of the Family Bowl had requested that council delay making a decision on issuing him an on-sale liquor license until the June 28 meeting. Alderman Don Goodrich questioned City Attorney Robert Wurst about what the law said regarding minors in a liquor establishment. Wurst noted that state law forbade minors being employed in a liquor establishment except as restaurant, bus boys or musicians, but added that city ordinance did not allow them at all unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Goodrich commented that unless the liquor was kept away from the bowling lanes and restricted to a separate area, the owner would be legally required to evict minors from the establishment. "That takes away a good source of recreation for our youth," he added. Alderman Bill Penning noted that bowlers had been sneaking in bottles and mixing their own drinks for years, commenting "this is not the time to get conclusive." Mayor Carlson noted that the owner was concerned about finding out whether he would be able to get a license before he spent a lot of money, adding that they could answer that question in June.

OLGA HARSTAD, a resident at Oakland Park nursing home, had four generations present for a mother-daughter tea which was held last Wednesday, as part of national nursing home week activities. From left to right are her daughter Mrs. Virginia Field, daughter-in-law Mrs. Lenora Harstad, Olga, granddaughter Mrs. Jody Field, and great granddaughter Tera Jo Field.

At the request of the Minnesota department of transportation, council agreed to advance its share of the cost for installation of a traffic signal at the intersection of First Street and Highway 59 South. Total cost of the light was estimated at $60,000. Cost is divided with the state and federal governments, with the city responsible for approximately 12 per cent, and the federal share approximately 78 per cent. Cost will vary somewhat depending on what the bids come in at, but the city's share was estimated at $7,396.68. In addition the city will be responsible for providing power to the light and all routine maintenance.

Council also approved authorizing $1400 in designated funds for construction of bathrooms at Bill LaFave Park. Although city forces were originally scheduled to do the construction, Alderman Goodrich noted that the unexpected move of the park and recreation department out to the Toreq building did not allow time for construction at the swimming beach, and a blocklayer would have to be hired. Dedicated funds are collected from real estate developers in lieu of property dedicated for parks or playgrounds.

Also authorized was a call for bids on a proposal to reroof city auditorium, the old arena, and the Stewart and Walker building. Insulation was also to be added to the auditorium, on the recommendation of an energy audit which estimated a cost payback of nine years. Cost was estimated at $11,500 which would be taken from federal revenue sharing funds.

In other business, the council:

— Authorized an agreement with Stan Sjoberg, allowing him to make an additional connection to the city sewer line for an addition to his home. Agreement allowed him to pay half the normal service connection charge of $473, since he was not adding a connection to the water main.

— Heard that no final agreement had been reached with Northern Outerwear for the lease-sale of the Municipal Services building. Finance committee will be meeting to work out final details of an agreement which would prevent the company from selling the property at a large profit within five years, since council agreed to sell at a good price to retain jobs in the city. Agreement is also expected to protect the company from losing money on improvements made to the building. Gary Flynn, president of Northern Outerwear commented that the agreements were only precautionary, since the company has no intention of giving up the building in five years.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, "What do you think about various alternatives to Christianity? Don't all religions basically teach the same thing?"

A. Many people wonder why we make such a fuss about Jesus Christ and Christianity, since they believe all religions are basically the same. They assume that all faiths are all talking about the same thing, but are putting it in a different way.

Some ask, aren't all the different religious groups, such as Christians, Moslems, Mormons, Buddhists, etc. experiencing the same God, yet explaining it in different ways? Thus can't they all be true, but with each giving a different emphasis?

All religions cannot be true at the same time, because they teach many things completely opposite from one another. For the claims of one will exclude the claims of the other.

As to the matters of salvation and the person Jesus Christ, only historic Christianity recognizes Him as the eternal God becoming a man who died for the sins of the world and rose again the third day. Salvation is obtained only by putting one's trust in Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God. Acts 4:12.

I Timothy 2:5 says, "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus."

John 14:6 Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Even though many religions seem to be the same on the surface, the closer one gets to the central teachings the more apparent the differences become. It is totally incorrect to say that all religions are the same.

Philosophical systems and other religions, in their search for truth and meaning to life, fall short in their quest. Without the Bible as a solid foundation, there is no way to determine whether or not we have the truth. It alone offers people truth and hope through Jesus Christ. (Colossians 1:27)

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Check Expenses For Possible Deductions

There are literally thousands of possible deductions regularly overlooked by taxpayers, according to the Minnesota society of CPAs. Naturally they don't all apply to everyone and some may seem ridiculous, but an "alert search" of your expenses may remind you of some deductions and credits you may have missed, the CPAs say.

For starters, here are some unconventional expenses people have been allowed to deduct in the past:

— Care and feeding of a horse used for a sheriff's volunteer posse;

— Cost of shoe shines for a jet pilot required by his employer to look spiffy;

— Ransom money paid to free a valued employee held by kidnappers;

— Cigars kept on hand by a non-smoking business owner to give to clients.

— Clarinet lessons recommended by an orthodontist to help correct a child's teeth; and

— Whiskey prescribed for a heart patient.

Even if none of these apply to you, these examples should get you thinking about deductions you may be able to claim. People often overlook everyday expenses, simply because they don't think of them in terms of potential tax savings.

For instance, everybody knows doctor bills are deductible. But are you aware that the cost of traveling to your doctor may also be deductible? Some unusual medical costs are deductible too. This includes the cost of a face lift, or hair transplant that is surgically performed, or even hair removal through electrolysis.

If you need professional help preparing your tax return, any fee you pay is deductible. If you decide to prepare the returns yourself, any cost for special books or publications with instructions and tax tips is deductible.

If you are a nurse, what you spend buying and laundering uniforms is deductible. And what about that watch you need for taking a pulse? If it breaks, the repair bill is deductible.

The general rule is that special clothes you must wear as part of your work are deductible, provide they are not adaptable for street wear. Thus, a baseball player who wears a uniform while playing or a professional singer who wears a rhinestone-studded tuxedo while performing are eligible to deduct costs of buying and cleaning their outfits.

If you moved to take a new job, within certain guidelines you can deduct your moving costs. Even the costs of moving the family pet or household goods are part of your deductible moving expenses.

Depending upon circumstances, certain costs are deductible in some instances but not in others. For example, on a business trip you can deduct the costs of having your suit dry cleaned, but once you get back home any cleaning cost is a nondeductible personal expense.

If you pay a babysitter to watch your children while you and your spouse go to the movies, you can't take a deduction. But if you pay a babysitter or daycare operator to care for your children while you and your spouse work, a portion of your costs can give you a tax credit. Dollar for dollar, a tax credit is worth more than a deduction because it's subtracted directly from your tax bill instead of your income.

Casualties may not be deductible unless they are sudden, unexpected or unusual. Thus, if the hot water heater in your home bursts, the cost of replacing it is not a deduction because it probably deteriorated over time. However, damage to your rugs, furniture or drapes caused by water or rust from the burst water heater do qualify for the casualty deduction.

Overall, CPAs advise you to thumb through your checkbook and review all your expenses for the year. You may discover something deductible. When in doubt, ask your tax advisor.

Try to get all the deductions you are entitled to. Remember, if you are in the 40 per cent tax bracket, every $10 deduction means $4 in your pocket. Lots of little tax deductions can add up to big savings.

Check Expenses For Possible Deductions

There are literally thousands of possible deductions regularly overlooked by taxpayers, according to the Minnesota society of CPAs. Naturally they don't all apply to everyone and some may seem ridiculous, but an "alert search" of your expenses may remind you of some deductions and credits you may have missed, the CPAs say.

For starters, here are some unconventional expenses people have been allowed to deduct in the past:

— Care and feeding of a horse used for a sheriff's volunteer posse;

— Cost of shoe shines for a jet pilot required by his employer to look spiffy;

— Ransom money paid to free a valued employee held by kidnappers;

— Cigars kept on hand by a non-smoking business owner to give to clients.

— Clarinet lessons recommended by an orthodontist to help correct a child's teeth; and

— Whiskey prescribed for a heart patient.

Even if none of these apply to you, these examples should get you thinking about deductions you may be able to claim. People often overlook everyday expenses, simply because they don't think of them in terms of potential tax savings.

For instance, everybody knows doctor bills are deductible. But are you aware that the cost of traveling to your doctor may also be deductible? Some unusual medical costs are deductible too. This includes the cost of a face lift, or hair transplant that is surgically performed, or even hair removal through electrolysis.

If you need professional help preparing your tax return, any fee you pay is deductible. If you decide to prepare the returns yourself, any cost for special books or publications with instructions and tax tips is deductible.

If you are a nurse, what you spend buying and laundering uniforms is deductible. And what about that watch you need for taking a pulse? If it breaks, the repair bill is deductible.

The general rule is that special clothes you must wear as part of your work are deductible, provide they are not adaptable for street wear. Thus, a baseball player who wears a uniform while playing or a professional singer who wears a rhinestone-studded tuxedo while performing are eligible to deduct costs of buying and cleaning their outfits.

If you moved to take a new job, within certain guidelines you can deduct your moving costs. Even the costs of moving the family pet or household goods are part of your deductible moving expenses.

Depending upon circumstances, certain costs are deductible in some instances but not in others. For example, on a business trip you can deduct the costs of having your suit dry cleaned, but once you get back home any cleaning cost is a non-deductible personal expense.

If you pay a babysitter to watch your children while you and your spouse go to the movies, you can't take a deduction. But if you pay a babysitter or daycare operator to care for your children while you and your spouse work, a portion of your costs can give you a tax credit. Dollar for dollar, a tax credit is worth more than a deduction because it's subtracted directly from your tax bill instead of your income.

Casualties may not be deductible unless they are sudden, unexpected or unusual. Thus, if the hot water heater in your home bursts, the cost of replacing it is not a deduction because it probably deteriorated over time. However, damage to your rugs, furniture or drapes caused by water or rust from the burst water heater do qualify for the casualty deduction.

Overall, CPAs advise you to thumb through your checkbook and review all your expenses for the year. You may discover something deductible. When in doubt, ask your tax advisor.

Try to get all the deductions you are entitled to. Remember, if you are in the 40 per cent tax bracket, every $10 deduction means $4 in your pocket. Lots of little tax deductions can add up to big savings.
